At each plate was a paper telling of some of Indiana's good points. Some of them we were acquainted with, like the recreation facilities available, Santa Claus, Ind., a popular post office at Christmas time, the 500 mile race and the toll road. But there were other points of interest for the traveling diner which we didn't realize were present or didn't remember. For instance, Indiana is known as the most typically "American" of the 48 states; the largest steel mill in the world is located in Gary, and Calumet, Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting and Gary constitute one of the foremost steel producing areas in the country; over 90 per cent of all building limestone comes from three Indiana counties; Indiana ranks first in growing of tomatoes for canning and produces two-thirds of all the peppermint and spearmint oils; coal mines are located in the southwestern part of the state; manufactured also are petroleum products, furniture, auto and airplane parts, radios and television sets and parts, glass, refrigerators, soap and clothing.

The state bird is the cardinal, the state flower is the zinnia and the state tree is the tulip tree.

All we did was go out for dinner and we got an education thrown in besides.

If you're wondering why not much is said about the varsity game against Waterloo Friday night, it's because Number Three Son had developed an ear ache which was irritated by the cheering during the close reserve game and the reporter had to leave between games to take said Number Three Son home.

PTA To See School Const'n Method

James J. McCarron, Fort Wayne architect, will present the program for the Riverdale P.T.A. next Tuesday evening, November 17, at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. McCarron is a representative for the Great Lakes Lift Slab Corp. of Chicago, a firm which has developed a new technique in school construction using concrete. A film will be shown showing the lift-slab method of building construction. Mr. McCarron will then apply the method to the construction of new school buildings according to the requirements which may be needed in various localities.

Two schools have been constructed in Fort Wayne using the lift-slab method. One was completed in about three months.

P.T.A. president Ted Haberkorn has extended an invitation to the community to attend the meeting and become acquainted with the new technique in building construction. "With our anticipated acquisition of a new school in what we hope is not the too far distant future, Riverdale patrons may find it beneficial to know something about what is available in the various types of construction. Tuesday's meeting will present one of these methods," he said.

Riverdale patrons who wish to obtain their 1959-60 P.T.A. membership card may do so at Tuesday's meeting. Dues are $1.00 per family.

Legion Fish Fry Nov. 14

A fish fry is in the offing for local fish-eaters, and all the fish you can eat makes the invitation especially inviting.

The fry will be sponsored by Walter Whitehurst Post 263 of the American Legion at Saint Joe on Saturday evening, November 14, from 5:00 to 8:00 p. m. The fry will be served in the Saint Joe Fire Hall.

The menu will include: all the fish you can eat, french fried potatoes, cole slaw, bread and butter, coffee or milk and pie; all served cafeteria style.

Cost of the supper is $1.00 for adult servings and 50c for children under 12 years of age.

CROP Seeks Doubled Quota

Local officers and workers who are planning for the 1959 canvass for CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) in DeKalb County have been asked to double their effort for a successful drive this year. Rev. John Dickens, 107 E. 18th Street, Auburn, DeKalb County CROP Director, in announcing that organizational plans for this year are under way also made mention of the pressing world needs for food distribution.

To share the burden of CROP needs with DeKalb County friends, Rev. Dickens gives excerpts of a letter from National CROP Director Alfred Farmer:

"Yesterday, while I was in the Church World Service office in New York, word came from Washington that powdered milk will no longer be available from government surplus. The supply has dropped so low that there is no surplus; only enough to care for domestic needs and the regular expart trade. After orders already accepted are filled, none of the voluntary agencies will receive any more of this nutritious food.

"Minutes later, I was talking to a case-worker for International Social Service. Mrs. Farmer and I have been trying for months to adopt one or two children from Hong Kong. I was phoning to find out why it is still delayed.

" 'Mr. Farmer, we are working on it,' she told me, 'but our doctors in Hong Kong have found that very few of the children recommended by the orphanages for adoption in the U.S. are able to come. Besides those who are actually sick, practically all are so undernourished that we can't risk the long trip. We are surprised at what we have discovered about the shortage of food in the orphanages. I know CROP and Church World Service have been sending powdered milk, but it just isn't enough to go around.'

"I didn't have the heart to tell her that even that would be cut off when current shipments are used up. And I knew it was not only the fate of our prospective daughters in Hong Kong that was in the balance, but also that of thousands of children in Korea, Taiwan, India and Africa — wherever the voluntary agencies have been sending the government donated milk.

"Can your county or community reach double its goal? It can, by having twice as many canvassers; by having twice as devoted and well-trained canvassers; by telling the story twice as well in the churches and in the press; by encouraging givers to twice as generous."

Canvass dates for DeKalb County, which will probably be early in December, will be announced in the near future. A 30-minute sound film, "The Long Stride," is available for showing in DeKalb County by churches and organizations, by contacting Rev. Dickens.

Just Musing

For all of the commotion that is raised occasionally when a smalltown newspaper editor says what he thinks for public consumption, and all of the grief that may follow, it is still worth that turmoil because there are others who say something nice, something complimentary, something encouraging.

It is disturbing to realize that what a person says may not be fair or justified or reasonable. The words that come from these hunt-and-peck motions I'm now making could be grossly unfair to someone. And certainly any editor who voices his opinions is conscious of his responsibility to fairness. He would not speak so directly at times except that he feels he must say something. While they are not always intended to speak about somebody or some group particularly in this community, still opinions are about somebody or something and they do apply every place we go. So it is a matter of wearing the shoe if it fits. And for every remark an editor may make publicly about the people he knows and the things they do, there are how many more remarks made about him in private which he cannot "enjoy." But that's all in the game.

I said there are those who give you a boost once in a while and make up for those who give a shove. But even these compliments are disturbing, because there is always the possibility that what is expressed in a public opinion is not lived up to in the life of the individual who expresses that opinion. So, instead of having a greatly expanded chest when someone says, "That was a good editorial you had last week" or "I thought your editorial about so-and-so was just wonderful," there is a great fear felt that the writer may not be doing what it was said should be done or felt. The question ever arises, "Do these people, who believe in what they have read, live themselves as if they believed it? Do I live as if I believe it?"

It is easy enough to tell someone what they ought to have done after they have done something and made a mess of things. Sometimes even if they have done all right, it's still easy to tell how it could have been done better. The real challenge, though, comes in having the courage to suggest doing things in a way that is morally right for everyone, even in the face of criticism by the majority. A lot of progress comes to us the hard way and the longer way because too often the apparent easy solution is chosen in preference to the morally right way, and something must be done over again. Most people are aware of what is morally right; but personalities are allowed to enter into the situation and morality takes a back seat.

An editor knows full well what the consequences may be when he presents his thoughts for public consumption. And ninety-nine per cent of the time those views are given considerable thought before public airing. He is also aware that his words may be the very words for his own consumption. And whatever benefit may come to others is also there for him.

Teddy Roosevelt said, "Speak softly but carry a big stick." Even this sage saying needs a caution: "Be careful, you may hit yourself over the head with it."

Others say . . . .

I'M THANKFUL I'M ALIVE

A man bought a farm long since grown over with weeds. At the end of the first year, a minister came and complimented the farmer on how well he and the good Lord had succeeded in beautifying the place; to which the farmer replied, "Thank you Reverend, and I'm glad you included me because it sure was a mess around here when the Lord was running it by Himself!"

Yes, God helps those who are willing to help themselves, and it is written: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7).

During this month of Thanksgiving, it may be helpful to recall these bits of ancient wisdom; for as nuclear as we are, as "far out" as we'll ever be, the reason for our existence remains the same. We are here because of the irresistable urge to reproduce. Helplessly we arrive in this world, add what we can to the general confusion, and then depart with equal helplessness. The impression left behind by most of us usually just about equals the hole left in a bucket of water after a clenched fist is withdrawn. Man, in his incredible ego, has figured out all sorts of fancy reasons for being here, with paradisiacal goals to match. In his cleverness, he has risen to dizzy material heights. By his own hand, he has cut his workday down to a third. He has freed his wife from the drudgery of the kitchen. His lines of communication are complete. He has sixteen hours a day to himself, and he is a miserable, tragic figure. And all because he has cast aside many precious gems of ancient lore.

As smart as we are, three-score-and-ten is still just about the limit. An objective glance at the mirror still reveals one of the lesser beauties among God's creatures.

The excuse for our existence is still the same as it ever was: to serve our Creator by serving our kind. There isn't a soul alive who doesn't know in his heart that the greatest satisfaction always comes from love for and service to others. And yet, fools that we are, we envy and hate and despise and deceive. We pity when we should love. We resent and begrudge when we should respect and admire. We are sick in our heads, fascinated by gossip and droll, scorning truth and light. A craftsman these days is a weirdie. Integrity is for squares; tradition for the birds. But you know, to each of us there comes eventually a moment of truth, by the brilliant light of which the answers to many questions become remarkably clear.

Long life is a privilege denied to many; but life of any length is an opportunity to share in the marvel of creation. Even if we do nothing but sit there and rot, we enrich the soil, in spite of ourselves. But to the extent that we make use of our facilities with which we are endowed, thus do we gather this glorious experience called life. I don't know about you, but I'm thankful I'm alive and busy living!

—Arthur Godfrey in McCall's (contributed by John Paul Hill).

WHAT MAKES THE LEAVES CHANGE COLOR?

In the last days of September, a slowing-down takes place throughout the land. The time has come for Nature to relax. The growing season is over, and a sense of ripeness hangs heavy in the air.

In certain woodland sections of the nation, one of Nature's most dramatic spectacles is staged—the panorama of autmun coloration. With a final gesture of farewell, the rich green sights of summer burst into flaming reds and yellows, splashed with scarlet, gold and brown.

Many people, when they think of autumn colors, picture the forests of the north, where snappy breezes nip the stands of oak and maple early in the season. But, strangely enough, this is not the case at all. Oregon and Washington have no autumn colors; the fire of fall is never seen west of the Dakotas. It does, however, appear in the Deep South.

The line bordering the area of transformation begins in Canada, runs south through Nebraska and Kansas, bends eastward into Oklahoma and part of Texas, and then cuts through Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia, heading toward the Atlantic. Only within this boundary do the trees of the United States put on their autumn masquerade each year. In the entire Northern Hemisphere there are only three areas where this phenomenon occurs—one in Asia, one in Europe, and one in North America.

If the sugar maple, famous in New England for its fiery fall hues, was transplanted to California, it would change from green to brown in autumn without even a hint of red. A difference in the mineral content in the soil may have something to do with the mystery. No one knows for certain.

Autumn coloration in general is something of a mystery. But most experts agree that a combination of climate and leaf chemistry is at the heart of the process. In areas where summers are sunny and warm, the leaves of deciduous trees, which shed their foliage each year, become lush and healthy. These leaves are actually miniature "laboratories" which manufacture plant food for the entire tree. Minerals are drawn from the earth through the roots and sent to the leaves in the form of sap. Here they are transformed into essential nutrients by chemicals called enzymes and chlorophylls, and by the action of sunlight.

The blue-black or dark-green collor of the chlorophylls "mask" other colors present in the leaves throughout most of the summer. But in the early fall, the process of growth slows down. The chlorophylls begin to decompose, and the other pigments, hidden there all the time, begin to show through. At the same time, the tree loses its "appetite" and less and less food is sent back to the branches and trunk. Cool weather slows things down even more. When the evening temperature drops below 45 degrees F., flow-back stops altogether and the food is "trapped" in the leaves. If there is a lot of sunlight available during the day, this food becomes brilliant in color. If there is no sunlight, the leaves will simply turn brown. Artifically shading part of a leaf will produce a two-tone effect.

Variations in the kind and amount of chemicals trapped in the leaves account for differences in color. The basic color is yellow, but leaves with sugars and starches left over display reds, scarlets, and blues. Red maple and sour gums become bright scarlet, while ash and the sweet gums tend toward purplish shades. Tulip trees, poplars, and willows appear pale yellow because of the chemicals produced by the breakdown of chlorophyll. Even the evergreens shed leaves in autumn hues—but not all at the same time. The dying leaves turn pale yellow and brown, but the bright green leaves that remain make the change less noticeable.

Keeping close track of weather conditions during the early fall makes it possible to predict how brilliant or dull autumn coloration will be. If there is much rain and cloudy weather, the leaves will manufacture very little sugar, and the color will be poor. The same thing will happen if the nights are warm—food will not be trapped in the leaves, and the brightest colors will be lost. But if there are many warm, bright sunny days followed by cool nights, conditions are perfect for the fire of fall.

The blaze of grandeur that spreads across our woods when autumn is at its best may mean the end of a cycle, but who could imagine a better, brighter way to say good-bye?

"We're having more fun in our ALL-ELECTRIC home!"

Says Mrs. James Bratina

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

"The whole family has been a lot happier since we moved into our all-electric home," says Mrs. Bratina. "Now my husband and boys help me in the kitchen because the electric oven and appliances are so easy to operate. And clean electric heat helps reduce my household chores, as do my other electric helpers. We all have more time for family activities in our all-electric home!"

UNTO DEATH

Lesson for November 15, 1959

It has often been dangerous to be a Christian. This should not be a surprise to anyone who knows the story of Jesus. He himself said that if a man wanted to be his follower he would have to take up a cross every day. Christians nowadays often wear crosses as jewelry, but what Jesus meant was no trinket. Indeed, in his time nobody would have dreamed of making an ornament in the shape of a cross. (Did you ever see a necklace or watchchain with a tiny electric chair attached?) A cross always meant one thing: a horrible death. Not a death by accident, not a suicide, but a death by court order or mob violence, a form of death inflicted only on the worst criminals, enemies of society. You will have to be considered a criminal, Jesus said, in effect, you will have to be prepared literally to be executed as a criminal, if you are going to follow in my footsteps.

People Don't Die for Opinions

Most Christians throughout the centuries have not been called on to be actually killed for their faith. Jesus did not mean that only those who die a martyr's death can be considered Christians. Still, in almost every age of Christianity, there have been martyrs. First, in the long list is a man named Stephen, whose story is told in Acts. A brilliant scholar, a convincing debater, he proved to be so good at showing how RIGHT Christian faith is, that his enemies decided the only way to stop hm was to arrest him. Perhaps they did not mean to kill him; but kill him they did, in what is surely one of the strangest lynchings in history. For the men who stoned Stephen to death were not a mob acting without knowledge of the court. They were members of the court itself.

Now, some one might ask why Stephen was stubborn. Why couldn't he agree with the majority? (In that court he was a minority of One.) Why couldn't he at least keep his opinions to himself? If Christianity were a matter of opinions, of course Stephen could have kept his to himself. But people don't die for opinions. They die for convictions. And a conviction does not go down to the uttermost depths of a man's mind and soul unless he IS willing to die for it.

Christianity is not a matter of opinions that can easily be changed. It is a matter of people who have convictions which change their whole lives, so that their lives are expressions of their convictions. They will lose life rather than surrender.

Martyrs In Our Tme

The roll of those who have died for their Christian faith is a long one. It is not finished, and it has grown much longer in our time. The writer of these lines has worshipped in a "refugee" congregation in Korea, a martyr church. Every member of it is a native of north Korea, who left home to come to south Korea, a strange land to him and not too hospitable either—to begin life again in poverty but in Christian freedom. Not only that, but almost every member of that congregation has lost some relative, murdered by communist orders.

Centuries ago the church used to distinguish between "red" and "white" martyrs. The first kind sealed their testimony in blood. The second kind were not killed but, being always ready to die, suffered for their faith in other ways, perhaps long continued. All honor to martyrs of both kinds. Most of the foreign missionaries, or "fraternal workers" as they are often called, live as white martyrs. Beyond our ordinary comforts of home, away from most of their families, exposed daily to contagion, surrounded by a world so depressing that many missionaries' minds have given way under the strain, overworked and too seldom reinforced, they nevertheless live rejoicing. Every one has heard of the young missionaires who were murdered by those Amazon Indians. Their widows are carrying on their unfinished work today. The wives have not been killed; but who shall say that they are not equally martyrs?

There's nothing like a new car—and no new car like a Chevrolet. This is the 1960 Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Coupe!

PEOPLE SAY THESE ARE THE THINGS THEY WANT IN A CAR...and CHEVROLET for '60 comes closest to meeting every need!

Interviews with thousands of car owners across the country show clearly what they like or dislike about their present cars . . . and what they want most in their 1960 cars. Here's what the people tell us they want . . . and here's how Chevrolet meets their needs.

"Price, that's what's uppermost in my mind." All Impalas and Bel Airs with V8 engines are lower in price, as are automatic transmissions and many other popular options. Also Biscaynes now include as standard equipment conveniences formerly optional at extra cost.

"And how about operating economy? And resale value?" You keep right on saving after you buy your favorite Chevrolet, too. And Chevrolet's traditionally higher resale value means you'll get more back when you trade.

"Give me plenty of good old-fashioned comfort." There's comfort and then some in this one. Chevy's long on space, for one thing. Once you're under way you'll know just how comfortable Full Coil suspension makes your ride.

"Safety—don't forget safety!" You're surrounded by safety features in a new Chevrolet. You've got big, sturdy brakes underfoot, for example, that last longer. As it has been for years, safety is standard equipment in Chevy.

"Let's keep upkeep down, too." More than ever, Chevrolet for 1960 is built to stay on the road and out of the repair shop. You can tell that from its hushed, unruffled way of going, from the solid thunk of Chevy's big doors. Of course, if you should need service, you're always near efficient, economical attention to your needs.

"I want a car that will stand up to the driving I do." For proof of Chevy's staying power, just spend a minute watching the nearest road. You'll see more Chevrolets traveling on it than any other car—evidence-on-wheels of Chevrolet durability. (And that higher resale value attests to it, too.)

"Me for a sweet-handling car." Handling's always been Chevy's forte, and 1960 is no exception. But really, this kind of lightness and precision you've simply got to enjoy for yourself.

"... a car you can look at and be smug about buying it." Chevrolet for 1960 leaves the low-price field far behind when it comes to fashion. But you're the best judge of styling, so take a good close look at Chevrolet. We warn you: you're about to fall in love.

"And performance. Let's have a hot one!" Chevy's spirited V8's have set the standard for ultra-efficient power in American-built passenger car engines. You've got a long list of performance-minded transmissions to pick from, too.

So that, friends, is what you told us you want. We think it can be summed up rather well in just one word: value.

Get the full story of Chevy's brand of value soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

RURAL SURVIVAL $50 to $500

She calls husband from fields

Safe in their shelter under three feet of protecting earth, this farm couple could survive the most severe radioactive fallout from a nuclear attack on this nation.

Most rural Americans, like this couple, could gain protection against fallout if they built inexpensive basement or underground shelters. Radioactive fallout from enemy H-bombs could be carried by the wind onto the remotest farm hundreds of miles from attacked cities.

THIS WELL-DESIGNED underground shelter would cut radiation to 1/5000th of what it would be outside. Ordinary basement shelters with added shielding would save most of their occupants outside target areas.

This shelter, built for $500, includes running water and sanitary facilities, a gasoline-operated generator, and facilities for feeding and sleeping eight people. The farmer hired a bulldozer to dig the hole, then built the shelter himself from used timbers and concrete.

The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization provides specific information telling farmers how to protect their families and livestock from fallout, what to do before an attack, how to build a fallout shelter, and what food to store.

After an attack, civil defense authorities would broadcast frequent fallout forecasts to the surviving population and advise farmers how long they could safely emerge to perform essential tasks in maintaining the production of food so vital to national recovery.

Fallout shelter information is available free by writing to OCDM Rural Civil Defense, Battle Creek, Mich.

Earth shields from fallout

MODEL FALLOUT shelter of concrete blocks shows some of the equipment, supplies and living facilities that would be needed to remain under cover for up to 14 days. This is a basement type shelter adaptable to either rural or suburban homes. The 8-inch solid concrete block walls shown would give the same fallout protection as 12 inches of earth. Details on how to build and equip such a shelter are available by writing Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich. (OCDM Photo)

MOBILE RADIO truck, designed and paid for by the Seventh-day Adventist Disaster Relief group, is inspected by some of the members of the National Advisory Council on Rural Civil Defense, a committee of prominent farm leaders, teachers and writers who advise the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization on its rural civil defense program. Mobile control units would be needed after a nuclear attack to direct rural survival and to help marshal the nation's food production for victory and recovery. (OCDM Photo)

BUILDING A FALLOUT shelter does not have to be an elaborate project. Darrell Barnes is adding a protective ceiling and block wall to an old coal bin under his home near Ithaca, Mich., to produce a simple but effective fallout shelter for less than $50. Civil Defense Director Robert Russell, who is the county sheriff, looks on as Barnes is questioned on the construction of his shelter by Leo A. Hoegh, director of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, and Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams. They were touring rural civil defense facilities in Gratiot County, Mich. (OCDM Photo)

CANNED GOODS and other foods well covered against radiological contamination or spoilage are the best kind of emergency food surplus for a fallout shelter. This underground shelter contains a bountiful supply of food, kept naturally cool by being underground and rotated occasionally for freshness. Note the gasoline-operated generator on the floor against the far wall. After exposure to fallout, foods well wrapped could still be used by carefully washing off the radioactive dust on the outside covering. Further information of special interest to rural Americans may be obtained free by writing OCDM Rural Civil Defense, Battle Creek, Mich. (OCDM Photo)

Comets Lose

The Riverdale Comets suffered their second defeat Friday night at the hands of the Waterloo Wildcats. The final score was 44-40. The game was all tied up at the half at 19-19.

The reserve squad, however, notched its first victory with a 34-32 squeak over the Waterloo reserves.

The reserves almost relaxed too much after opening with a 7-2 lead, then leading still at the half 13-6. Waterloo began scoring while holding the Comet reserves in check tied it at 17-17 before going to a 21-17 third quarter lead.

After missing on 2 lay-ups Wallace made up for it by hitting 2 fielders while Lothamer scored on a spectacular lay-up to help take the Comets to a 30-25 lead. Waterloo hit on long shots and Riverdale led 32-31 with 49 seconds to go. A free throw by the Wildcats tied it 32-all before Ross flipped in a fielder. Riverdale fouled with 1 second to go but Waterloo missed to make it 34-32.

Comets Beat Wolf Lake

The Riverdale Comets racked up their first win of the current season Friday night by soundly trouncing the Wolf Lake five 68-54. Except for a brief period in the third quarter when Wolf Lake pulled up to within 5 points of the Comets, the locals were in command.

The varsity began bombarding the nets and were ahead 9-0 when their opponents called time out with 3:39 to go in the first quarter. Wolf Lake didn't score for 6 minutes and 20 seconds, getting their first bucket at the 1:40 mark. That was the extent of their scoring in the quarter with the Comets leading 19-2 at the end of the quarter.

The first foul of the game wasn't called until only 46 seconds remained in the first quarter, a Comet guilty of an infraction.

Wolf Lake began hitting in the second period trailing 24-11 at the 4:00 mark. They pulled up to 31-21 at the half.

With the Comets hitting a cold streak, Wolf Lake came within 5 points at the 6:10 mark of the third quarter ,31-26. The locals then reorganized and began to pull away, leading by 9 at 36-27 at the 3:-15 mark, then by 49-35 at the end of the third quarter.

With Gerry Heyman setting the pace with sensational field shooting, the Comets pulled to a 65-42 lead late in the final period. It was 68-48, then Wolf Lake scored the final 6 points for the 68-54 margin at the end of the game.

The reserve squad won their tilt 32-24. They led at the start but then dropped way behind at 16-7 as the third quarter began. The local reserves then scored 11 straight points and went out in front 18-16. Wolf Lake tied it 18-all, then the Comets went ahead 20-18 as the third quarter ended.

The Comets went to a 23-18 lead in the final period, then led 29-22 with 1:33 to go, before posting the final 32-24 victory.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves big deficit at the beginning of the third period puzzled the writer when he walked in, since they appeared to have a definite height advantage. But then they began rolling. Just one of those things, evidently. — With such a long basketless period by the Wolf Lake team, visions of a shutout came to mind. But the vision was dispelled. — Wolf Lake appeared to be well-coached from some of their maneuvering tactics, but just couldn't hit early in the game. When they began to score, the Comets had really cooled off. — Some of the loss of scoring punch the Comets display occasionally can no doubt be attributed to the effort spent in carrying chips on their shoulders. When one team is intent on scoring and the other on proving their ability with elbows or maybe even fists, guess who scores. — When the Comets settled down, they shot back in the lead. Heyman's sniping and Jerry Dowden's pinch-hit stint broke Wolf Lake's back. — It was a lousy night for driving, but there were several of Riverdale's faithful on hand for the games.

Hearing Set For Water Rate Hike

The Public Service Commission of Indiana will conduct a hearing December 9 at Indianapolis on the petition of the Town Board of Saint Joe to raise rates charged subscribers to the town's water system.

The hearing will be held in the rooms of the commission, 401 State House, Indianapolis, at 10 a.m. CDST.

The present water rates in Saint Joe were established when the system was installed. An increase is deemed necessary due to increased costs of operation which leave little financial strength to cover any major repairs which might arise.

PTA Meeting Dwindles

A small group of around 50 persons attended Tuesday's meeting of the Riverdale P.T. A. to gain information about a different type of building technique utilizing concrete. The interesting program included remarks by James J. McCarron, Fort Wayne architect, and the showing of a color film explaining the "lift-slab" method of building construction. The method includes laying of concrete slabs which are then lifted to their proper levels as ceiling-floor units. One of the greatest advantages pointed out was the saving of time and, consequently, of money in using the method.

A parochial school in Fort Wayne, constructed last spring, was built in about three months time. The 12-room school cost approximately $250,000. Mr. McCarron pointed out that the cost of a school building varies with the needs of each community and that a building is not picked out elsewhere and exactly duplicated in another community. Therefore, costs of school buildings are only for rough estimates of construction costs.

Following a question and answer period, pictures of the Fort Wayne school were inspected by those present.

THE GOOD NEWS

Lesson for November 22, 1959

It cannot be said too often: Christianity is not an organization, it is not a creed, it is not a set of good resolutions, it is not a special kind of philosophy, it is not ideas. It produces all these, but it does not begin with any of them. It begins with GOOD NEWS. We have a first-class case in the story before us in Acts 8. At the turning-point in that story, we are told that Philip "opened his mouth and . . . told him the good news of Jesus." It is not said that Philip opened his mouth and gave the stranger good advice, or condemned his sins, or urged him to turn over a new leaf, or offered him a book to read, or urged him to join a church. He just told the good news about Jesus.

Evangelism Is Good-News-ism

The church today has a technical-sounding big word which many Christians do not understand. It is "Evangelism." When we hear the word, we think of sawdust trails, of mass meetings, of Billy Graham and the Salvation Army and special services at the church on the corner. We think of trained choirs and TV and teams. Like typical Americans, we want our "evangelism" as we want everything else, on a grand scale and organized to the last inch. Actually, evangelism (as Billy Graham or any good minister can tell you) is a simple thing. As a famous Christian leader from Ceylon, D. T. Niles, has said, "Evangelism is one beggar telling another beggar where he can find bread."

Some Christian people say they do not believe in evangelism. Push the question with them, and you may find one or the other of two things to be true: either they don't understand what evangelism is, or else they don't really believe in Christ after all—they have no good news to tell. There is a good and a bad way to run a newspaper. A critic may not like the way a particular paper is run, but that doesn't mean that newspaper business is bad business.

Philip told his good news effectively, so much so that the name "evangelist" stuck to him. What made him so good at it? He probably never took a course in evangelism all his life. For one thing, he was a man sensitive and responsive to the leading of the Holy Spirit. We first hear of him when the church at Jerusalem is looking for men to appoint on a committee (Acts 6). Qualifications mentioned were that the men should be "men of good repute, full of the Holy Spirit and of wisdom." (It would seem that being full of the Spirit and of wisdom were not thought of as being the very same thing.) At any rate, by the time the Spirit said to Philip, "Go join this chairot," Philip knew the Spirit's voice. It is not necessary to suppose that the Holy Spirit always speaks, or spoke to Philip then, in a voice you could catch on a tape recorder. The point is that the Spirit's will was made known in Philip's mind, and Philip knew the difference between God's direction and a notion of his own. How did this man become so sensitive to the voice of God? No doubt because he had been obedient before.

He Knew His Bible

Another reason for Philip's success is his knewledge of his Bible. It was a "rash" thing to do, maybe, for this dusty pedestrian to speak to this Very Important Personage in his chariot. But Philip felt he had the right to speak. When he heard that official reading aloud (for that is what the Greek word in verse 28 means) in his dull treasurer's-report voice, that sublime passage from Isaiah 53, Philip could not hold in. Do you UNDERSTAND what you are reading? he cried. The distinguished stranger was too much astonished to be offended. Here he was, a man of wealth, distinction, power; but this poor hiker had something he did not have; he knew what the Bible has to say, he knew what it means. God used this man, who had the one thing needful, to convert a man who had everything but what he needed. God can always use those who know and love his Word.

Hamilton Edges Comets 45-43

Behind by 2 points, the Riverdale Comets had possession of the ball on an out-of-bounds play with 20 seconds of playing time remaining Friday night. But a jump shot and an attempted rebound as the clock ran out missed and Hamilton won 45-43.

The Comets led at the first quarter 15-13 and at the half 26-23. Hamilton had gone into a 21-20 lead at the 4:50 mark in the second quarter, but then dropped behind.

As the third period began, Hamilton tied it 26-26, then the locals went ahead 30-26 with 5:30 remaining. Hamilton went ahead 36-35 before Riverdale gained a 39-36 lead as the quarter ended. A Hamilton. player fouled out at the 1:54 mark of the third period.

Hamilton again wiped out a Comet lead as the final period opened, tying it 39-39. Riverdale led 41-39 at the 4:30 mark after which neither team scored for a minute and 53 seconds. Hamilton then tied it 41-41. It was 43-43 with 1:36 remaining and 45-43 with 0:52 remaining. Riverdale then got the outof-bounds play but nothing materialized.

The reserves won their tilt by a 37-30 score.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves had several shots roll off in the second quarter tho' pulling up to 17-15 at the half after training 11-7 in the first period. The Comet reserves then outscored Hamilton 22-13 in the last two periods. — The varsity game was nip and tuck throughout. The final margin came on one more field goal for Hamilton than for Riverdale. Both scored only 5 points at the free throw line. — The Comets worked hard at play-making, but just couldn't click consistently. A Vinson-to-Bry pass in the 3rd quarter and Clarence's flip over his back was good for 2 points and a big cheer. Bry was in on much of the action and suffered three hard spills in the contest. — Precious seconds ticked away before that last out-of-bounds play as the Comets couldn't get hold of the handles and the ball finally bounced out. Fortunately it was touched last by Hamilton. — The band played for fans' entertainment, this being a "home" game played at Ashley.

Youth Injured, Car Demolised

Raymond B. Prat, 19, of east of Saint Joe miraculously escaped serious injury Thursday evening when his 1960 MG convertible rolled over at least twice after going out of control on county road 64 south and east of Saint Joe. The youth suffered cuts on his left ear, cheek, hands and above his left eye, shock and bruises. He was taken to Souder Hospital by his mother for treatment, then released. The accident occurred at 5:30 p.m.

Traveling east on the blacktop, the youth swerved to the right when an oncoming car came over the crest of a hill in the center of the road. He said he was blinded by the bright lights of the approaching vehicle and immediately after passing the car, saw a vehicle ahead pull from a farm driveway and head east. He attempted to brake the car and the vehicle went into a skid on loose gravel on the pavement. The car left the pavement on the north side, skidded onto the pavement, rolled over at least once before skidding into the ditch on the south side and then rolled over again and back on its wheels. The car was demolished. It was valued at $2700.

50 feet of fence on the Edward Lake farm were knocked down in the accident.

Sheriff Dorsie Likens booked the young man on a charge of driving at an excessive speed. Pratt admitted driving at 70 miles per hour immediately preceding the crash.

"National Retarded Children's Week" is being observed this year from November 16 to 27. The DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children points out that each year more and more children are reached by the expanding program of the association. This brings the need for added facilities and additional income. Construction on an addition to the present building has begun. This makes the operating budget inadequate. A minimum of $7,200 per year is an absolute necessity. Every person who has contributed in the past has done much to maintain the school in this county. Organizational support has likewise been of great help, and all these people are assured of the assocation's appreciation. However, the need is a continuous one, and DeKalb County citizens are urged give their support to the program for retarded children by taking a membership in the association or making a contribution. February will be membership month, but membership may be obtained any time by contacting the association, P.O. Box 233, Garrett, Indiana.

Wool growers who marketed lambs this fall should keep adequate records of their sales so that they will be able to make proper application for payment next spring under the wool inrentive program, DeKalb County ASC chairman Ray Miller has announced. The sales record for lambs sold must include the name of the buyer, his signature and the number of liveweight lambs sold, plus the description "unshorn." Lamb payments are made only on lambs that have never been shorn to encourage the customary practice of selling lambs with the wool on.

Chairman John Peters of the Indiana State Highway Department, speaking at a Kiwanis meeting in Auburn recently, said the route of Interstate 69 through DeKalb County and running west of Auburn is definitely established but construction is still some time away. Interstate 69 will run from the Michigan state line to Pendleton.

News To Take Photos For Youth Feature

They grow up so fast, don't they, folks? Why not let The News help you preserve your memories by making an everlasting picture of your youngsters in our Kiddies Kalendar, a photographic feature to be published soon in The News?

United Studios of Elkhart have been invited to take these special pictures. An expert children's photographer, equipped with the very latest in lighting, the new "speed" lights which eliminate all movement and floodlight glare, will be in Saint Joe Tuesday, December 8. The studio will be set up in the News Office and will be open from 12 noon until 8:00 p.m. These lights, incidentally, enable the photographer to obtain natural expressions on children who are ordinarily frightened by bright lights.

There is no charge to the parents, no strings attached to the invitation. Parents do not have to be subscribers nor even readers of this paper. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Selection of the pose to be printed in the paper is left to the parents, at which time additional prints may be ordered, if desired, from the representative of United Studios.

Make The News' Kiddies Kalendar a big success. Mark the date on your calendar, Tuesday, December 8. The place—the News Office in Saint Joe. The time—noon to 8:00 p.m. This is your opportunity to see your child's picture in print.

For the convenience of parents in bringing children to the studio for photographing, a definite appointment time may be obtained by calling Esther Haberkorn at 2352.

Thanksgiving Message From CARE

There are few more delightful displays of the art of sleight of hand than the one the American housewife performs with leftovers. Whether it's done, for example, with the remainder of the Thanksgiving turkey or the Sunday roast, the result is a new, tasty nourishing meal set before the family.

That's OUR happy story. But for two-thirds of the people of the earth, just getting enough to eat is a trick they can never pull off.

There's hunger, disease, despair.

And that's where another feat of American magic comes in. It's done with the superplenty of America's farms.

After all relief needs are met in our own country, CARE is given milk powder, flour and corn meal by the government, purchases rice, beans, margarine and meat, and for each $1 contributed sends a package of life-giving food to the needy in 15 countries of Europe, Asia, Latin America and the Middle Eeast.

Your donation to the CARE Food Crusade, Chicago 3, Illinois, delivers help to the hungry in your name, bringing a message of hope and friendship from you and your country.

ABOUT FACE!

Lesson for November 29, 1959

Outside of what we are told about Jesus in the four Gospels, what event is the most important of all those described in the New Testament? Most intelligent Christians would probably agree on one particular event. If it had not happened, nearly half of the New Testament books could not have been written. If it had not happened, over a quarter of the pages of the New Testament would be blank. If it had not happened, Christians might well have died by strangulation. For there were many who wanted to strangle it in its cradle, and except for one man they might have succeeded.

Why, Saint Paul happened, to be sure! He himself never would say it "happened" and we do not mean that it was a happen-so, a chance occurrence. He believed to his dying day that God planned it, and we may well believe he was right.

Confronted With Christ

Saints do not become saints over night. But they have to start somewhere, somehow. The amazing thing about Paul is that he did an absolute about-face, after a certain day near the city of Damascus in Syria. He was, to put it in one word, converted. That means, in still plainer English, turned around, faced backward from the way the person was going, started in the opposite direction.

It is quite a mistake to think that unless you are converted just as Saint Paul was converted, you haven't been converted at all. That is as silly as saying that if you haven't married a girl exactly like my wife, you aren't really married. As Saint Paul was a unique character any way you look at him, his conversion would be unique, too. Further, his situation was decidedly a strange one. He was a professional religious man, engaged in wholesale murder. He was a man who belonged to one of the strictest religious sects of that or any other era, and yet engaged in trying to smash up people who were actually better than he was. He was a man who was passionately devoted to serving God, spending his time making life miserable (when he could not actually kill them) for persons who understood God better than he did.

A man like that, you would think, is not likely to have a "conventional" or average religious experience. Budding Saint Pauls since his time may have had somewhat similar conversions; but John Doe usually has the John Doe type of conversion.

Confronted With Christ

For all that, while much in the circumstances of Paul's conversion (to use a name he did not actually bear till some time later) was peculiar, bizarre or awe-inspiring as you might think it, still basically it was a Christian conversion with the basic Christian elements plainly in it. First of all, it was confronting Christ. It was a kind of miracle in Paul's case. The miracle may not be so spectacular in other cases but Christ is always there at the beginning of every really Christian life. It may be a Confucian scholar reading a Bible for the first time; it may be an artist attracted by a picture of the Last Supper; it may be a French agnostic, seeing Christ in his wife's character; or a middle-aged man remembering one day how his mother used to pray. Somehow or other, all conversion is based on this meeting between an individual and Christ.

The First Two Questions

Years later Paul told the story of his conversion to some people who at the moment were bent on killing him. He added something to the story told in Acts (the best manuscripts). He relates two questions, not one, which he asked in that great and awesome hour near Damascus. The first question: "Who art Thou, Lord?" and he second one: "What will you have me to do?" (See Acts 22:) On those two questions hung all his future life. Note three things here: he put his questions now to the highest Authority; he wanted to know all about Jesus; and he put his life at the disposal of his Lord. This is the essence of conversion.

Booster Banquet

The Booster Club is planning a dinner meeting for next Wednesday, December 2, to be served at St. Mark Lutheran Church at 6:30 p.m. Community boosters are asked to make reservations with Frank Sechler or Ted Haberkorn as soon as possible.

NLRB Issues Directive To Local Firm

The Rhinehart Manufacturing Co., Inc., and Calf-Teria, Inc., operating from the same location west of Spencerville, have been ordered to stop refusing to bargain collectively with the Teamsters Union. The order was issued by the National Labor Relations Board.

The two companies are operated by John R. Rhinehart of Fort Wayne. The Rhinehart Manufacturing Co. manufactures livestock and poultry feeder and watering equipment. The Calf-Teria company manufactures calf feeder pails for weaning of calves.

The NLRB also ordered the companies to offer reinstatement to employes Ruth Chandler, Ted Hill and Dwight Koch, who had been discharged by the company.

Under the NLRB directive, the companies were told to "bargain collectively with Teamsters Local 414, Fort Wayne, stop discouraging union membership among workers and cease threatening employes with economic reprisals."

In a dispute several months ago, members of the Teamsters local had established picket lines at the companies' plant.

VOL. LXXIV ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, December 3, 1959 NUMBER 48

Around the Town

With the Editor

I got a short note from Don, Peg and Genia Baker that they will be moving to Newport, Rhode Island, in January. Don will attend a naval service school. They say it has been cool in Virginia, but not cool enough for snow.

I got the pants scared off me (well, not really, I just said that) two weeks ago when I was working late at night at the News Office. It was real quiet, you know how quiet it is when there's a good layer of snow on the ground, when suddenly there was this noise and I jumped. A look out the front window showed Albert Wade shoveling snow from the church sidewalk. He had started right at the corner of the News Office and that was the noise I heard—at 11:00 p.m.

Did you enjoy your cranberries over the holiday? ?

Speaking of cranberries, the most frustrated person this fall is the guy who won $30,000 honestly on a quiz show and then invested it in cranberries.

Ha! We tricked Merwin Place into sending us a poem. He received a subscription bill along with everybody else and had to put a note on it, as follows:

"When the dollar bills come in two's,

It's another subscription to The St. Joe News."

Don and Laura Burley started south a week ago and got to Portland when they happened to remember the dog - he was still in the house (they thought). So they called Lazerne Keller and asked her to let him out. But when she got there, here came the dog trotting around the side of the house.

—I wonder if Laura unplugged the iron.

Joe Smith reports that he has a ladies class ring with "1942" and "B" on it. The loser can claim it at the principal's office.

One of our local citizens remarked last week about the stray dogs running around again. He happens to have dogs which he keeps tied and doesn't appreciate the strays getting free room and board at the expense of the law abiding canines.

Dog owners might profit by remembering the law on keeping dogs under control. It isn't to be used only when there is a rabies scare. The law protects not only human but dogs themselves from the spreading of disease.

—And property owners can deal with strays as they see fit (on their own property, of course)--or am I wrong?

CROP Collection Saturday

Saturday, December 5, has been set as the day for solicitation in Concord Township for the CROP campaign, according to Bill LaRowe, township chairman. Though Monday, December 7, has been set as the county-wide date for solicitation, Saturday was chosen locally because of the availability of more workers.

The canvass this year will be for corn, soybeans and cash. It is hoped that every farmer and farm owner in the county can be contacted for a contribution. Residents who will not be at their farm during the canvass day are asked to have their contribution ready for the canvassers.

Rev. Harold Oeschle of Columbia City, district supervisor of CROP, gave a brief outline of the program at a meeting of workers in Auburn last week. He stated that CROP is the food arm of Church World Service, which is represented by 39 denominations in this country. CROP differs from other relief appeals in that collection and distribution are both handled by the church, thus eliminating the possibility of unwise distribution in foreign countries.

Last year CROP shipped 450 pounds of government surplus food for every dollar it received. Disaster and emergency areas of the world including those suffering from the recent hurricane in Japan are the first to receive CROP aid.

Rev. John Dicken of Auburn, campaign director for DeKalb County, stated that with only six of the county's 15 townships putting on an organized drive last year, $2,242 was contributed. The goal set for this year's drive is $4,000.

Square Dance

The Spencerville Community Club is sponsoring a square dance this coming Saturday evening, December 5, from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. The dance will be held at the community building.

Admission prices will be $1 per family, students 25 cents and adults 50 cents.

The public is invited to attend.

Pastor Beck wonders (as do many others) why people steal and why they steal from churches. The latest theft in a series of thefts at the Saint Joe Church of Christ is the taking of a movie screen which was to be sent to a mission home.

Cliff Ward has some meaty observations about education in the editorial appearing on the next page. See what you think.

African Student To Speak

Mr. Abe Subbah, a student at Goshen College and a native of Nigeria, will be the guest speaker at the Methodist Church in Spencerville on Wednesday evening, December 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Spencerville Church are turning their quarterly general society meeting over to the church at large and bringing outstanding speakers who will have a vital message for all people of the community. It is their hope that while their specific work is accomplished in circle meetings that the general meeting may become the high point of interest for all members and friends.

Mr. Subbah, although a native of the African state of Nigeria, is soundly versed in the American scene. He brings the freshness of a view from outside the intricacies of the American life and yet an intimacy with that life. His views on the African turmoil and life are first hand.

The general public is cordially invited to share this exciting evening.

News Wants Youth Photos Tuesday

Tuesday, December 8, is the big shooting day! No, not deer - or ducks - or rabbit . . . . pictures! On that date The News is having pictures taken of all children who are brought by their parents or guardian to the News Office in Saint Joe between noon and 8:00 p.m. United Studios of Elkhart, experienced children's photographers equipped with the latest in speed lighting, will be in charge of photography.

The News wants a picture of every child to print in its forthcoming feature, Kiddies Kalendar, a series of photographic studies of local children. The more pictures, the better the feature, so the cooperation of mothers, fathers and guardians is urged.

There is no charge or obligation for taking the pictures. Parents need not be subscribers to The News.

Selection of the pose to be used in the paper is left to the parents or guardian, at which time additional prints may be ordered if desired.

So, parents, doll 'em up and bring 'em in!

For convenience of parents, definite appointment times can be arranged by calling Esther Haberkorn at Saint Joe 2352.

Two Rehearsals Left For Choir

Only two rehearsals remain for the community choir before presentation of the local Christmas Choir Festival at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe on Sunday, December 13, at 4:00 p.m.

Tuesday night's rehearsal was held at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville to take advantage of the church's new organ in accompanying the choir. An organ will be used in the program at the gym, in addition to piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Omer Hanser, director of the choir, announced Tuesday that next week's rehearsal will also be held at St. Peter Lutheran Church. The final rehearsal will then be held Saturday, December 12, in the afternoon.

The program will include seven numbers by the community choir. In addition, the Riverdale band will present appropriate selections and a portion of the program will be presented by the younger ones from the community.

Choir members are urged to attend the final two rehearsals, next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Spencerville and Saturday, December 12, at the high school gym.

Cubs Need Adult Leaders

The leaders of the Cub Scout Pack sponsored by the Spencerville Methodist Church met Wednesday with the Rev. Rod Trout to discuss the recruitment of adequate leadership for the Cubing program during this new charter year.

The Cub Pack is going thru a crucial period right now. Many of the men and women who have been faithfully giving their time and energy to the younger boys of our community now need to be replaced. This is the year when many of the boys attain Scouting age and as they move out of Cubing the parents who have ably led them move out also.

Cubing has always been a family program. The parents participate as much as the boys. Some of these parents must shoulder the responsibility for the whole group as far as planning and teaching is concerned. The very backbone of the Cubing program lies in the pack committee and the den mothers.

If the Cubing program is going to continue to be vital for boys between the ages of 8 and 11, more parents must come forward and take an active place in the leadership of its program.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on Wednesday, November 18, at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser for Bible evening. 14 members and one guest, Mrs. Marvin Poper, were present.

The meeting opened with the club collect and pledge to the flag. Mrs. Carl Carpenter presented a very interesting and informative article on the Dead Sea Scrolls. Mrs. Lela Northrup reviewed the thought provoking artice "What's Happening On Church Street, U.S.A.?" taken from Life magazine.

Mrs. Frank Shull, who was in charge of entertainment, led the group in singing four well-known hymns.

Mrs. Robert Musser presided at a short business meeting. A collection was taken to buy gifts for the mentally ill.

Following adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

CONCORD JUNIOR HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club met November 2 at the home of Anne Beebe.

Rose Means opened the meeting and all repeated the club collect. Devotions were given by Ellen Fetters. "For the Beauty of the Earth," the song of the month, was given by Edna Perkins.

Roll call was answered by telling a "driving experience."

The lesson, food buying, was given by Katy Crow and June Baker. Tips on when to buy quantities of different foods, the length of time the homemaker should use these foods and the nutritional value were pointed out as items to keep in mind in serving food economically.

Plans were made to be guests on "Breakfast In Fort Wayne" on November 11.

A make and bake auction followed. The meeting was closed by singing the prayer song.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Anne Beebe, and co-hostess, Garnet Wasson.

CULTURE CLUB

The Saint Joe Culture Club met at the home of Marian Furnish November 18.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Ruth White, after which all present repeated the pledge to the flag and the club collect. Marian Furnish gave the 103rd Psalm for devotions. Ten members and one guest, Darlene Wisler, answered roll call. After the business session, Helen Hoffer presented an interesting program on cosmotology.

The hostess served a dessert plate and blind goods were shown for sale.

Tax Reform

Every so often someone comes out with an opinion about the tax structure in this country stating that it ought to be revamped. About all that has been done, however, is to express these opinions and then wait a while until someone else says something on the subject. No one seems to have been able to come up with any concrete suggestions as to how to revamp the tax structure, either because they aren't quite sure they themselves know or else because they are afraid to express their thoughts on how to change the tax picture. Everybody is for changing taxes mostly because they presume it will mean lower taxes for them. But we all forget that the money still has to come from somewhere and as yet we haven't found a pot of gold from which to dip whenever we run short.

Perhaps, we are going at it from only one direction when we should be attacking the problem from all sides. The desired result of tax reconstruction as far as you and I are concerned is a lighter tax load. It looks as if we should be considering the matter of spending just as closely as we study the matter of where the money comes from.

It was stimulating, to say the least, to note a news article recently about possible definite consideration by our lawmakers of a tax revision program. It was reported that hearings were being held with responsible economic and financial experts having their say about taxes. From what I remember of that news release, one of the experts suggested that the present system of deductions be abolishd, or at least greatly reconstructed. He said there is too much red tape involved and too great an opportunity for favorable legislation for a particular group in the matter of deductions in the present set-up. Having been one of many who each year prepare their own tax returns, filling out the long form with deductions for this and that and oftentimes not being quite sure whether I am being honest about it or whether I am cheating myself by not taking what deductions are allowed (or forgetting to take them), I am in sympathy with any idea which will remove the complicated form we now have to fill out in preparing our tax return. Sure, there are tax consultants who will take care of your tax return for you. But I am old fashioned in many ways, and one of them is in the belief that one of my duties as a citizen of the United States is to pay taxes and it is one of my privileges to know how much I must pay and how the amount was figured and do the figuring myself. Too much of an opportunity for the government to get more "grabby" than ever is present in a system whereby a certain trained group takes care of our tax-paying responsibilities. When paying taxes becomes too complicated for you and I to figure out, something is wrong.

However, forgetting about deductions isn't as simple as it sounds. There is a justification for some people to holler if they cannot have some consideration for certain expenses involved in business. What is a fair way to set a tax table and be generally fair to all concerned? I don't think I know (anyhow, I'm not quite sure!). It must be remembered, though, that no tax program is going to be considered "fair" by everyone; somewhere along the line with any tax revision, there will be grumbles. So it will take a brave man to propose any tax system which will be in any sense "fair" because we are all looking out for our own pocketbooks and we all think that "the other fellow" has reason to pay more than do we.

One thing I like about that idea of eliminating deductions is that it is a step in the opposite direction from separating United States citizens into economic categories and pressure groups, or so it would seem. Too much of our life today is governed by what we belong to, where we get our pay, who our "friends" are. It looks to me as if a tax program which gives every wage earner about the same responsibility as his neighbor would promote individual initiative and generate ambition. We call this the land of opportunity; but under our breath we say (as far as our tax system is concerned now), "- - - and if you take advantage of it, brother, you'll pay for it!" This I don't buy.

What we have been trying to do for the past several years is equalize the fruits of this great free nation. What we have overlooked is that to preserve its uniqueness, we must equalize the responsibilites. We did not achieve greatness by seeing how little we could do for the greatest reward; the United States became great because of the men who gave more of themselves than they received. They didn't concern themselves with "deductions" to lighten their load.

Others say....

GOOD EVENING

Admiral Rickover, USN, in an article on education in the Saturday Evening Post, lives up to his reputation for being blunt, tactless, honest and brilliant. To the Admiral, truth is an all-important thing and he utters it, not worrying over the question of who may be offended by it.

As the Admiral points out there is a difference between training and education which our school systems frequently do not contemplate, because of the popularity which progressive education has enjoyed in this country. An educated man is not necessarily more intelligent than an uneducated man, but he is a more complete man, and as such of more satisfaction to himself and of more value to his country.

The greatest mark of the uneducated man is that he does not know his own limitations, which the educated man does. The former rushes in where the latter for good reasons stays out. As the Admiral points out no one has a greater fear of truth than the uneducated. The uneducated man stubbornly clings to ideas that have been proved wrong, while the truly educated man is willing to change his mind if he has intellectual warrant for doing so.

Naturally I think the Admiral is intelligent, because his ideas are mine. We are all like that. I have always contended that many of the troubles we are now experiencing as a nation can be attributed to the ideas of John Dewey finding expression up and down our land in schools. There is a point in life when children become adults and when they have a right and a duty to make their own decisions about everything, but until that time, it is a ridiculous shirking of parental and school authority to say that they may elect studies to take or not take to achieve educational goals. They haven't arrived at a point where they know what they should study, and left to themselves they will almost always choose the line that offers the least resistance as far as work is concerned.

Mathematics, for instance, is hard, but it's value to the education of a mind lies exactly in that characteristic. It poses difficulties and in the process of overcoming these difficulties, the mind not only acquires confidence but skill in the solution of other problems. Admiral Rickover might not like the analogy, but the coach of a professional football team, like the New York Giants, isn't going to say to his players at the beginning of a season, "You decide individually on what you will do to get in shape physically for a rough season, and if you want to choose easy ways of doing it, that's all right with me." He is dealing with adults, but doesn't permit what is permitted with children in schools.

Despite the common belief, the idea is not "to get through school," but to extract the maxmum possible value to the education that is offered a student. The idea is not to get diplomas or degrees, but to improve the mind. The idea is not to get credits from a course, but values from a course. There is no point to taking French, for instance, if you only want to pass the course, not learn French.

A lot of well-trained people are not educated people, although they can be, if they wish. You can train a dog to do some very amazing tricks, but the best-trained dog in the world isn't nearly as marvelous as a thinking child of a few years.

To the Admiral for his article, a civilian's "well done."

—Clifford B. Ward in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

Comets Lose

Leo Lions roared to a 60-46 win over the Riverdale Comets Tuesday of last week at the Lions' gym. The reserves also lost, 43-22.

The varsity game started rather slowly and the Comets didn't score for a minute and 47 seconds. Leo then led 4-2. The pace quickened and the Lions led 20-11 at the quarter. During the second quarter Leo appeared to become flustered momentarily and Clarence Bry and Gerry Heyman led scoring, one of Heyman's on a steal and solo lay-up. However, Leo still led 33-23 at the half.

The Lions' lead continued at 10 to 12 and 13 points thru the third period. The Comets seemed to tire midway thru the quarter but didn't drop any further behind. Leo made several mistakes in the last half but the locals couldn't capitalize on them.

In the final period the Comets cut the lead to 9 points at 46-37 as Leo began fouling repeatedly. A scoring spurt put Leo back in front 52-37 and they held their lead to the finish.

The reserves were outclassed from the start and didn't help themselves with poor foul shooting. They trailed 15-6, 23-11 and 35-15 at the quarters.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves suffered from cold shooting from the field and at the foul line. This and Leo's crisscross tactics which worked the ball in for a few buckets in the first half put us way behind. — The reserves were consistent, getting 11 points in the first half and 11 in the second. — Though there was nothing to be happy about score-wise in either game, Riverdale was recognized thru the defensive efforts of Jerry Vinson who, according to the Leo principal, did the best job ever on Leo's pepper-pot defensive and offensive ace, Mike Roth. Vinson allowed Roth only one field goal. The latter scored a total of five fielders but four were on defensive switching. Both were effective all evening in breaking up opponent's plays. — Bry scored three nice buckets from around the free throw lane on jump shots in the first half. — Orval Wallace was out of action and will be for a while with a broken bone in his right hand. — Several eyes popped when Leo's cheerleaders ran on the floor, led by a miss with platinum tresses.

NEW CONVERT

Lesson for December 6, 1959

Fifteen thousand, nine hundred eighty-two persons decided for Christ when Billy Graham was down in New Zealand last "spring." (It was fall down there.) What will happen to those 15,000 new converts? What has happened to converts in other Billy Graham meetings? The answer to that question depends on the converts themselves; but it depends also a great deal on what other Christians do about it. Billy himself has said, "After the obstetrician comes the pediatrician." The birth of a baby is important good news; but suppose from that moment everybody forgets the baby and nobody does a single thing for him? In that case the baby might as well never have been born.

Getting Acquainted

Saint Paul was a new convert once. The church of the ages owes much to him, but we also owe a great debt to some people without whose help Paul would hardly have become the great apostle and missionary he was.

He was very eager to get back to Jerusalem where he had built up his career as an anti-Christian. He risked his life, in fact, to get back there. He knew that the most effective place to give a good witness is just where you have made a bad witness in times past. It is much easier to go to a strange place for a complete new start than to make the new start in old surroundings. But Paul seldom took the easiest way, and so we find him back in Jerusalem . . . a lonely man. For not a Christian there would speak to him. He was known as a bloodthirsty and implacable enemy of all Christians. When he began speaking for Christ instead of against him, the Christians were shocked and afraid. All but one man, Barnabas. He took this new convert and introduced him to the church leaders as a fellow-Christian. And when they got acquainted with the man Paul, things began to be different.

That's the first thing a Christian can do with new converts: just get acquainted. Do you have evangelistic services in your church or community And if so, what are the new Christians to you? Mere statistics, just a list of names? Or are they really people? If all the new converts mean to the older Christians is statistics, then that's all they'll ever be, statistics. And in the end, statistics of missing persons.

New converts are often more scared than they like to admit. Can I hold out, they ask themselves over and over. They have not yet discovered that it is not a question of THEIR holding on, but of GOD'S. Now put a man who half-distrusts himself in the midst of people who have no faith in him, just waiting like buzzards for him to fall so they can pick his reputation to the bone, and you start him off against terrific odds. New converts need all the encouragement they can get. It is nothing short of cruel for people who profess to be Christians to act and talk as if they were betting on failure for any new Christian. Furthermore, we may note that good practical Barnabas did not keep his confidence in young Paul to himself. He took him personally to the leading Christians of the city.

A Job

Paul was a tentmaker, not as a hobby but as job for pay. Perhaps he worked at that trade in Jerusalem. But whether he did or not, the job that really interested him was an opportunity to witness for Christ. He preached and he debated around Jerusalem, and we may be sure he would not have been given an opportunity to do this if the Apostles had not approved. In short, to put it into modern terms, they gave him a job in the church. Not that he was paid for it; but the point is, the church encouraged him to speak for Christ, to use his talents as thinker and speaker and debater, on behalf of Jesus. The most weakening thing older Christians can do for a new one is to throttle him down, to choke off his enthusiasm. The best thing older Christians can do for a new convert is to encourage him to win others.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I'd like to say "thanks" to all the families who cooperated in bringing their youngsters in for the Kiddie Kalendar news photo feature. There were 45 families in and out of the News Office Tuesday afternoon. The photographer said a good average response is around 22 to 25 families. So you really went all-out for the News. A good deal of the credit for making the feature known goes to Mrs. Editor who was burning the telephone wires Monday all day and Tuesday morning.

Don't forget about our book offer for new and old subscribers. John Strombeck knows a good thing when he sees it - he was the first one to take advantage of the offer, right off the bat Monday morning.

You might drop in on him some time for a snack — he picked a cook book.

—Now, Em, he didn't mean any harm.

Margaret Drerup sent in a post card with the article on Cub Scouts (from last week's issue) attached to it. She says:

"Shouldn't the word be Cubbing? It seems to me 'Cubing' is strictly for squares."

—Which leaves me without a snappy reply except that I'm glad somebody had nerve enough dimension it.

How those little things slip by. It's a wonder Margaret didn't point out another odd happening from news items such as from the Spencerville items last week—

"Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ransom had their family home for Thanksgiving supper."

—Wasn't it kinda tough?

We were talking about the haste for Christmas recently when Marvella Dilley pointed out that Vera Jackson gave Thanksgiving its proper recognition with a window display before joining the Christmas clamor.

Just one of those moments of overlooking little instances of sanity and respect in this mad rush, unless some observant citizen points them out.

Talk about effective advertising media, Marie Meese and Pauline Bumgartner both have commented in the last couple of weeks on the speed with which they sold articles they had for sale after a little classified ad in the little ol' Saint Joe News.

Got anything you want to sell? Try an ad.

—End of commercial.

Comets Win Pair

The Riverdale Comets came up with two wins last week end, the first over Salem Center at Ashley Friday night, 55-43, the second over Fremont at Fremont Saturday night, 44-43.

The reserves beat Salem by a 32-25 score but lost to Fremont 36-25.

Some of the joy of victory Friday night was smothered by three warnings to Comets from the referees for their conduct during the game. Although winning by an ample margin, 12 points, it appeared that the score should have been even more overwhelming. The ref's allowed action to run a little too freely which led to extra-curricular activity.

Quarter scores were 13-11, 30-21 and 47-35, all with Riverdale leading.

With the officials establishing their authority from the start Saturday night, the fans were treated to a thriller and Riverdale came out on the winning end of a 44-43 score.

The Comets led through the first half with 14-9 the score at the end of the first quarter. It was 25-18 at the half.

Fremont then made their move and tied it at 26-all during the third period. The quarter ended at 35-32 Comets.

It was nip and tuck thru the final period Fremont gaining a 1-point lead twice, then the Comets regaining the lead. Riverdale fouled with seconds to go but Fremont missed and as the Comets gained possession and the clock ticked off the last few seconds, Clarence Bry heaved the ball down the floor out of Fremont's reach.

COMET CNIPTIONS—Against Salem, one of the reserves got flustered and scored a basket at the wrong end of the floor. — Big, fresh apples were sold at the game and there were a lot of doctors being kept away. — Steve Faehnrich scored 16 points against Salem. — Fremont reserves had a tight defense as the game started and the Comets controlled the ball for a couple of minutes. The first point came after 3:49 had elapsed, on a Fremont charity toss. — A pass from Mr. Little to Mr. Big was good for a Comet basket in the second period. Translation: pass from Griggs to Ross and a basket. — Tom McKown was a work horse in the Fremont reserve tilt. — Fremont had a lot of interceptions to their credit. — In the varsity contest, Smith picked up his 3rd foul at the start of the second period. — Vinson suffered a mean poke in the eye as the final period started. It was almost shut for a time but he remained in the game, blinking continuously. He made a crucial theft of the ball near Fremont's basket in the closing minute when the Eagles threatened. — Bry sank a couple of pressure-packed free throws with a minute and a half to go. — Gerry Heyman got the Comets' last 2 points which knocked out a Fremont lead and gave his team the winning margin.

Administrative Unit Not A Building

It is too early to have any indication from the county school committee as to what is anticipated in the future for DeKalb County schools. Too little time has elapsed since the committee's selection to allow for any great progress other than that along organizational lines.

There is something that may be confusing in this school program; it has appeared to be confusing from thoughts expressed by county citizens from time to time. The confusion was also present in my mind to some extent because of a misunderstanding. That confusion arises from the use of the term "administrative unit" in describing the apparent ideal school system sought through the reorganization. We have heard the figure "1000" used in connection with minimum school administrative units (1000 pupils, no less, for maximum efficiency). In the minds of some people, that brought the idea that, as counties established this proposed ideal unit (or something close to it), students would immediately be going someplace else to school. One comment at a county-wide meeting several weeks ago indicatd that a mother expected her children to be transferred to another building when a new unit was established. She didn't realize, as some of the rest of us didn't, that , even with this "ideal" administrative unit, there aren't going to be any big, new 1000-pupil school buildings created out of thin air. The term administrative unit does not have to do with physical facilities necessarily; it relates to the paper work involved in operating a school unit, courses to be offered, teachers to be hired for greatest efficiency, etc. We will still be using our present buildings for some time yet, with certain additions. At least, that is the way it looks. Unless a new building fits in with county needs, there won't be a new building.

From what I have heard expressed informally, it appears that we will need to be cautious in this school reorganizing. First of all, we must be careful that we do not hamper the good that it can bring by thinking in terms of what was sufficient 15, 20 or 25 years ago - or longer. Second, we must be careful that we do not go overboard and go too big in this reorganization. From a few comments by those who should know what they are talking about, I gather that some of the men who are pushing in this program of reorganization are thinking in terms of real "bigness" when it comes to our public school system. While the need is here for improving our schools even to the point of increasing their sizes, I think we must be cautious that we do not get too big and get to the other end of the scale. Too big and too small are equally undesirable.

'Honest Taxpayers'

Speaking of taxes, did you notice the item about the amount of money being sent in to the U.S. Treasury these days by people whose consciences were bothering them over past unreported taxable ncome? I gathered that the amount was more than usual. A suggestion was made that perhaps there was a trend toward greater honesty now arising in our citizens.

I don't like to dampen such encouraging thoughts, but it isn't a case of resurging honesty. Just remember, the government announced a few weeks ago that ALL tax returns would be examined in the future; they have devised a system whereby all tax returns (instead of a percentage of returns) would be scrutinized. So, what can you expect when some doubtful people begin to feel like criminals - as we all do at some time or another under our complicated system of distrust. Anybody would try to square things and right now.

SWEET AS APPLE CIDER

Each season has its poetry—and sweet apple cider belongs to the poetry of fall, together with the harvest moon, wild geese winging south, and the first frost.

Apple cider has been the chosen beverage of the harvest festivals since America's fall traditions began. In the time now marked by Labor Day and Thanksgivng Day the apples are at their best and the weather has just the right coolness for cider pressing. In this season many a family still makes its cider the old-fashioned way and invites the neighbors and their kids for an apple squeezing bee. A good share of the cider bottled in gallon jugs and displayed on road-side stands and in supermarkets is made during these months by small, local cider mills. Their equipment is usually modern, but their buildins may go back to colonial times.

The old-time home-made cider may not always be the best, but according to those who want to keep cider-pressing a living tradition, it is certainly the best remembered. If all goes well, an afternoon's work gives you more than enough cider at the rate of three gallons from each bushel of apples.

As in pioneer times, home-made or local cider is pressed from freshly fallen apples and culls. To give a sweet flavor the apples should be tree-ripened and taken before frost. Green apples give a starchy taste and overripe apples a moldy taste and little juice.

After washing, the apples are fed into a grinder and reduced to a pulp which is known to the trade as "cheese." In horse-and-buggy days most farms used mail-order hand-grinders. Nowadays these are hard to come by, but for small batches a hand meat-grinder will do. In any case, the youngest and most energetic members of the crew can usually be induced to take over this phase of the operation.

The next and crucial step is to place the "cheese" in the press. When a simple hand screw-press is used, the apple pulp may be held in a slatted basket. In a cider mill's hydraulic press the "cheese" is placed in cloths on slatted frames which are stacked one upon the other. In either type the juice passes between the slats and is collected at the base of the press as cider.

Before getting to the cider itself the pressed pulp, called pomace, must be disposed of. Unless removed, this pomace will attract every buzzing yellow-jacket within miles.

If nothing has gone wrong, if no rotten apples slipped by, you now have apple cider pure and sweet. At the local cider mill you can ask for a glass straight from the final collecting cask. Hold it up to the light and you see that it has a cloudy amber color. Suspended fruit solids give it this appearance and also the hearty flavor which distinguishes sweet cider from apple juice.

Old-fashioned sweet cider could be enjoyed only in the fall season. It stayed fresh for only a few weeks and by the time snow fell might already be turning to vinegar. Today filtering, pasteurization and preservatives keep cider sweet and on sale every month of the year.

The cider or apple juice sold under brand names is usually a blend of uniform flavor. Local ciders, however, vary in flavor from place to place and from one month to the next. Patrons of local mills learn to ask when their favorite cider apples are being pressed. One mill, for example, receives its first McIntosh apples about Labor Day, followed by order by Baldwins, Red Delicious, Golden Delicious, Wine Saps, and along about Thanksgiving Day by York Imperials. Each makes a cider of distinctive savor and every one is welcomed as a sweet toast to fall.

Here are four reasons why the Leonard Browns installed ELECTRIC heat in their 50-year-old home!

1 "WE WANTED MORE COMFORT! And we got it," says Mr. Brown. "Now we have an even heat with no more drafts or cold floors. And with electric heat, we have a thermostat in every room. We all feel more comfortable."

2 "WE WANTED MORE LIVING AREA!" According to Mrs. Brown, "Our new electric baseboard heaters are attractive and out of the way. The old stoves took up too much room and were an eyesore."

3 "WE WANTED A CLEANER SYSTEM!" Mrs. Brown finds, "Electric heat does not create any soot or greasy scum."

4 "WE WANTED MORE CONVENIENCE!" Mr. Brown explains, "It was convenient (and economical, too) that we did not have to rebuild our chimney, buy a bulky heating unit, install hot water pipes or hot air ducts, or have yearly inspections."

Do any of these four reasons apply to your home? See your electric heating dealer or call I&M today!

How to Make Your Home Say "Merry Christmas"

Christmas, with its magic of colored lights, is one time when the individual really comes into his own. With the same basic materials, and the same general ideas to express, it is a source of continual wonder to see the vastly different effects which can be created. And, it is not necessary to go to a great deal of expense to create something which is lovely to look at and which says "Merry Christmas" to all who see it.

Keeping a few simple rules in mind and giving your imagination free rein, you can make your Christmas decorating a project in which the whole family can share, giving everyone a feeling of satisfaction in his own individual contribution.

Selecting and Caring for Tree

For many of us, the tree itself will always be the central figure in any decorating scheme. Selecting it, bringing it home, visualizing it in its dressed and lighted glory—all add to the sense of anticipation.

Select a tree that is full and beautifully shaped. As soon as you bring the tree home, stand it in a pail or tub filled with water until you are ready to set it up and trim it. This will prolong the life and appearance of the tree, keep the needles from falling and minimize the danger of fire.

Trimming Your Tree

Lights can do a great deal to improve the shape of a tree. If your tree is long and slender, string the lights around it; if it is short and squat, string them in vertical rows, from top to bottom. (See Fig. 1 and Fig. 2.) Don't guess at the number of lights you need for your tree. Professional decorators use this formula: Multiply the height of the tree by the width of the branches at the base, then multiply by three. A tree seven feet tall, and five feet wide at the base thus would have 105 lights. Using this rule and spacing your lights evenly, you will always have an excellent balanced effect. (See Fig. 3.)

Fig. 3

Don't limit yourself to conventional Christmas lights. Lamps which simulate ice crystals or snow balls are now available and produce a very interesting appearance. Consider also the flashing, twinkling or bubbling lights which give the effect of motion and are particularly appealing to children.

Start at the Top

Trees should always be trimmed from the top down. First the Angel, Star, Spear or other tree-top piece should be put in place. Then the lights should be strung, top to bottom. Reflectors and halos add much to the brilliance of lights.

Now you are ready for the "string type" decorations. With this much done, you can begin to place your most interesting ornaments, selecting spots where they will show to best advantage. When all the ornaments have been placed the tinsel can be arranged, each piece hung individually on the branches. Angel hair or a spray of artificial snow may be added at the very end.

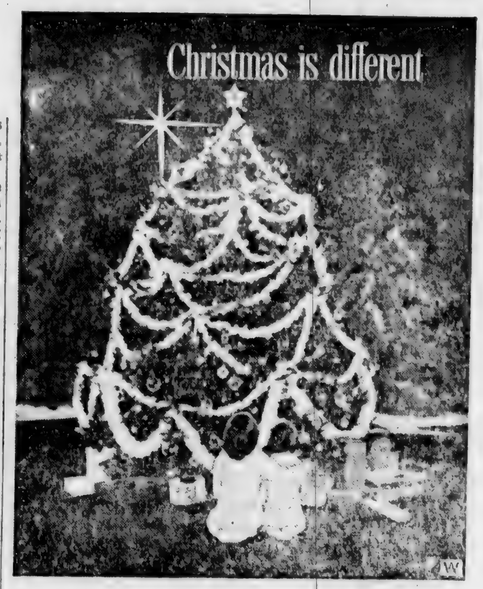
The top-to-bottom procedure should be followed throughout. It is the easiest, the fastest and, above all, the safest way. That word "safest" is one which you should be conscious of throughout the Christmas season. All light strings should be inspected carefully and all sets with worn or exposed wires replaced with new U/L approved sets. Protect against short circuits or blown-out fuses by making sure you have at least one set of lights with a safety fuse plug (such as those manufactured by NOMA LITES). This set should be connected to the wall socket or other source of current; other light strings can be attached to it. Should a fuse blow, it can easily be replaced at the socket, with a twist of the fingers.

Christmas All Over the House

Even the loveliest tree has its effect heightened if the rest of the house is decorated attractively and in good taste. Practically every home offers a wealth of simple materials which can be used for novel, imaginative decorative pieces. An ordinary vase can be filled with greens and white branches with ornaments and placed anywhere. Three graduated embroidery hoops decorated with tinsel can be suspended by ribbons around a half-inch wooden dowel inserted in a plastic styrofoam base. A set of vari-colored lights wound around the dowel glow through angel hair; a few small ornaments strung from colored ribbon complete this lovely miniature "tree." Another effective idea is to form a cone of heavy Christmas gift wrapping paper and place it over a dowel. The paper should be heavy enough to keep its cone shape, and translucent enough for the light to shine through.

The traditional Christmas greens provide many beautiful arrangements. Laurel and Pine branches wound around a stair-rail can be decorated with lights, canes and a few simple ornaments for a glowing effect.

Greens banked on a mantle have their beauty heightened by proper placement of lights. A madonna figure combined with spruce branches and creche lighted from behind makes a foyer table truly lovely. An attractive dining room decoration can be fashioned from greens arranged on a tiered plate or lazy susan with lights and ornaments. A set of lights intertwined with Pine or other greens on top of a bookcase makes a beautiful illuminated display. Window wreaths, laurel swags across your drapes and other greens also become much more interesting and original when lights are cleverly used.



Keep in mind, too, the candoliers, lampposts, angels, snowmen, Santa Claus figures and other "ready-made" decorations which are available. They can be combined with greens, ornaments, ribbons and other materials with very good results. This idea is particularly adaptable in window treatments where both imagination and a safe, convenient light source are most desirable.

Your House a Christmas Card

We have all experienced that warm glow of good feeling and fond memories which can come from just glancing at a house which seems to wish the whole world a "Merry Christmas."

Here too, safety must be the watchword. All outside wiring must be rubber-insulated and heavy-duty—#12 or #14 cord is best. A permanent, protected outdoor type receptacle is the most satisfactory current source. Lacking that, you can use a porch or garage light. Should that not be convenient, an indoor light socket can be used safely in this manner—get a board about six to nine inches wide, cut to fit snugly under any window. Drill a hole in the board, put it in position and close the window so that it meets the board. The outside wire can then be run through the hole and connected to an indoor socket. Brace lock the window with a stick (See Fig. 4)

One of the most attractive, and least expensive, means of outdoor lighting is to run strings of lights along the eaves or roof edge. Ordinary drive rings, available at any hardware store, can simplify the job enormously. U-shaped, the drive rings can be affixed to the underedge of the roof, and the lights threaded through them. The same technique can be used in outlining doors and windows with lights. The drive rings will keep them in position, prevent sagging or uneven effects. (See Fig. 5.)

Important to any outdoor decorative scheme is the front door. Beautiful wreaths or sprays can be purchased but, with a little ingenuity and dexterity, you can "Do It Yourself." Pine, Fir, Spruce or other branches and a string of lights can be twined around either a wire clothes hanger forced into a round shape or into chicken wire cut to form a foundation for a spray. Large outdoor candles, sno-men or carollers complete a pretty, welcoming Christmas doorway.

Your permanent evergreens and shrubbery also lend themselves beautifully to Christmas decorating. To protect an expensive Fir tree or Blue Spruce build a simple "teepee" to carry the light strings. Drive stakes into the ground around the tree, inside the spread of branches, at regular intervals. Lead rigid wire up from the stakes to a padded wire collar placed around the tree stem, several inches below the top. The lights can be strung around the wires and need not touch the branches at all. (See Fig. 6.)

Many people prefer a single color for their outside lighting, but try using one white light at the top of the tree or other prominent place. And, don't forget spotlights which can be placed conveniently on your lawn to illuminate and focus attention on a creche, elfin figures, or other interesting features.

Lions Honor District Gov.

Lions club members and their wives in District 25-B of the State of Indiana will honor district governor, Paul Brumbaugh, and his wife at a banquet to be served Saturday evening, December 12, 1959, in Columbia City.

In recognition of the services performed by their district governors, Indiana Lions each year honor the district governors with members from the various districts and Lions International dignitaries present. Mr. Brumbaugh, as district governor of 25-B, has 63 Lions clubs under his jurisdiction. Those clubs are located in Lagrange, Steuben, Noble, DeKalb, Whitley, Allen, Huntington, Wells and Adams counties. Included in his duties is a visit to each club in the area during 1959-1960.

Mr. Brumbaugh directs Lions clubs which, along with the remaining clubs in the state, now have three major projects. These are the Leader Dog For the Blind, the Cancer Research Clinic at Indianapolis and, the latest project undertaken, the Eye Bank thru which persons may "will" their eyes for corneal transplant operations. Thousands of dollars are contributed to these funds annually from the treasuries of Indiana Lions clubs.

The banquet Saturday night will be served at the American Legion Post in Columbia City. James Anderson of South Whitley is reservations chairman.

Attending from the Saint Joe Lions Club will be Blaine Kimes, Virgil Kimes, Clifford Billow and their wives.

Does THE LUTHERAN CHURCH "Talk About Sin Too Much?"

"Why not talk about pleasant things? Every Sunday morning, you start out with confession," said one John Doe, when he had visited a Lutheran church a few times, "and I don't like it."

Most of us don't, of course — don't like to face the facts: That we are sinners in our deepest selves, sinners in the presence of a Holy God, sinners living on borrowed time — time that runs on as long as God permits but destined one day to be drawn up short by Eternity!

Such facts are pins in the balloon of human ego. They are not pleasant facts.

Nonetheless, they are facts. Sin is serious.

Sin is so serious that God had to come to earth to deal with it — come to earth, and be born in a cattle shed, and bear the reproach of the "righteous," and let Himself be nailed to a slab of wood and hanged up on a pole to die!

That serious is the situation of John Doe, who didn't "like" to hear about sin! — so serious that God saw no way out for John Doe except to go down Himself and get in the middle of the mess that John Doe has made of things and bleed a way out for him.

The joy of the Christian faith is known only to those who face up to its background: Sin is serious — man is hopeless without Christ.

That is why Lutheran faith and worship are joyous. If your life is missing such an inner joy, perhaps you are wondering why. A visit with Lutheran laymen could help you find the answer.

PTA President Blasts Public And Official Apathy Regarding School

A meager crowd of some 38 parents, faculty members and students attended the December meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. Tuesday evening. The program consisted of pointed remarks by the P.T.A. president, Ted Haberkorn, on the subject, "What Is Wrong With Our School."

The president began his talk by noting that before he came to the meeting, he changed from work clothes to a suit, and that probably everyone at the meeting had done something to make themselves more presentable, whether it was washing of face, application of make-up or selection of a tie. "Why did we do this? Because we were conscious of what others would think of our appearance," he noted. In another example, the president pointed out that, if the group were riding down the highway and it was time for lunch with choice of two restaurants, one well-kept and painted with obvious interest in its outward appearance, the other just an average-appearing establishment, the choice of the two would be the well-kept restaurant. The question of what is wrong with out school was then changed to, "What is wrong with us that we allow our school to appear as it does?"

The president noted that the elementary building presents a better outward appearance than do the upper grade buildings. He pointed out that the first view a person gets as he approaches the upper grade buildings is that of the school "back yard." Even so, he remarked, the back yard should not be something to be ashamed of. The president suggested to those present that they take a good look at the upper grade buildings the next time they approached them, and asked, "Why are we mindful of our own appearance at this meeting tonight, but we let our school look the way it does?"

Specific points of neglect at the upper grades were noted. a broken window in the gym, unrepaired for over a month and an eye-sore for one thing a source of loss of heat for another. Other broken windows unreplaced for which there seems to be little public concern were pointed out. The president noted that there are two buildings for the upper grades, 311 students, broken windows littered halls—and but one janitor.

The president also pointed out that the adult population was inclined to let the students "run all over us as far the the school is concerned. They act, and we let them act, as if they owned the place. It is the taxpayer who owns the school and he has the responsibility to speak out when that property is abused." It was pointed but that just before a recent P.T.A. meeting, several young people stood outside the door, as adults entered for the meeting, tossing matches at one another, ignoring the danger to themselves and to the building. No one said a word to stop the match-throwing.

From there the president went to the physical education classes and basketball games, noting that shower facilities are almost completely lacking; the boys change into street clothes though dripping with perspiration, despite the somewhat universal recognition of the necessity for showers for cleanliness and health after strenuous physical exertion. "Are we raising them to depend on 5-day deodorants?" the president asked.

"If they do take a shower, they have to be careful. There is a note on the wall which warns that you might cut your feet because there may be bits of glass on the floor. And if they are lucky enough not to cut their feet, they might get a case of athlete's foot because there is no disinfectant foot bath."

Mr. Haberkorn noted that a graduate of the local high school, before the consolidation, when advised of present shower conditions, remarked, "That's the way it's been for twenty-five years."

"Is this the best we can do?" The president then pointed out the cramped conditions in both elementary and upper grade buildings. He noted the "cubby-hole" the high school principal has in which to carry out administrative duties, administer discipline, store supplies, provide room the his secretary, etc. The principal's office in the grade building is accessible by walking through one of two classrooms, thus disturbing the students.

"What about the rest rooms? Are they clean, bright, airy? Are there sufficient facilities for 311 students—mirrors to pretty up with? Are the rest rooms as good as those you find in a filling station along the highway?"

He then turned to the curriculum noting the dificiencies for those who might want to go further in their education.

Mr. Haberkorn closed by stating that the blame for the pride-lacking upkeep of the schools cannot be placed on the school board or on the janitors or on the teachers or on the students. "The blame is on evry one of us, whether we are school board members, maintenance men, students, teachers or parents, for not living up to our responsibilities as free Americans to keep our school in such a condition that we will not feel ashamed to say 'There is our school.' If those in authority do not act, it is because the people, the character of the community, have not demanded it."

"Those who should be taking care of these things aren't because we don't demand it."

Following the talk, refreshments of donuts and cider were served and those present remained a while for informal group discussions.

600 At Festival

The Riverdale High School gym was a near full-house Sunday afternoon as the first Christmas Choir Festival was presented before an estimated 600 people. The program began at 4:00 p.m.

Participating were the high school band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, a group of kindergarten boys and girls, directed by Mrs. Harry Farrer, elementary boys and girls, directed by Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Merl Guilford, and the adult community choir of some 55 voices, directed by Mrs. Omer Hansen. Rev. Ivan O. Miller gave the invocation.

Comments heard and reported following the program indicate that it will be presented again next Christmas season.

Accompanists were Mrs. Miriam Jones and Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner.

Boosters Get $65

Encouraging response from area residents enabled Booster Club members, under the chairmanship of Donnie Sechler, assisted by Frank Sechler and a quintet of boys, Lonny Keeler, Mike Haberkorn, Larry Halt and Jim and Jerry Kline, to raise over $65 for the Booster Club treasury. The group sold Christmas trees last Saturday.

It was a chilly, rainy day but the Booster boosters carried out the project.

Trees were obtained through the cooperation of Argil Richmond of Saint Joe.

Sophomore Bake Sale

The Riverdale High School sophomore class will hold a double bake sale Saturday, December 19. The sale will be held simultaneously at the Spencerville Shell Station and at the News Office in Saint Joe.

The usual fare of baked goodies will be available. The public is invited to support the sale.

Fire Causes Great Damage

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department was called at 3:50 a.m. Thursday morning for a fire in the Marcel Pugsley property on Widney Avenue. It is reported that the property was sold early this week but no confirmation of this was made at press time.

The new occupants had reportedly just moved in Wednesday with a few furnishings. When the department arrived at the fire smoke was billowing from the upper portions of the house.

Due to the intense smoke, it was difficult to find the origin of the fire, little open blaze being evident. After a short time flames could be seen beneath the siding and small patches of fire were doused with water.

After three hours, the fire put out. No estimate of damage was given, but it was obviously extensive due to the intense smoke and quantities of water necessary.

The fire is believed to have originated either in the furnace or in the wiring.

The alarm was turned in by Mrs. Rollin Miller.

NOTE: Information received after the above was written indicates that the family of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Huff took possession of the Pugsley property on December 15. Residing with the Huffs are their two children and Mr. Huff's brother.

The family lived at Spencerville in a trailer for about 3½ years before moving to Saint Joe. Mr. Huff is employed at the Rhinehart Manufacturing Co.

Mr. Huff reportedly checked the fire Thursday morning at about 3:00 a.m. Shortly thereafter the smell of smoke was detected and flames could be seen down a register. A call then went out for the fire department.

In an effort to help the family at their time of need, a movement is underway to solicit donations from the general public to be given to the Huff family. Mrs. Charlotte Hudson of Spencerville is organizing the movement. She reports in addition to the losses incurred from the fire, the family is burdened with extensive medical expenses for Mrs. Huff.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund for the Huff family may contact Mrs. Hudson or The News Office, or any others who may be helping to assist the family. Other workers may be identified by calling Mrs. Hudson.

There is reported to be some insurance coverage but not enough to cover the family's needs at this time.

Bulletin

Merl Guilford of Saint Joe was taken by death suddenly Thursday afternoon.

Comets Edged

Joy turned to bitter disappointment Friday night for the Riverdale Comets when an apparent one-point victory became a one-point defeat.

The action occurred as Clarence Bry heaved a desperation shot with time running out and the ball went through the hoop. However, due to the excitement generating a great deal of noise, most observers did not hear the horn sounding and thought the shot was in time to be counted. The referees consulted with Virgil Kimes of Spencerville, official timekeeper for the Riverdale "home" game at Woodlan, who informed them that the horn was sounding when the ball was yet in the player's hands.

So, Woodlan emerged a 52-51 victor in a thriller.

The Comets led 23-12 at the end of the first quarter on some red-hot sniping. It was 31-29 at the half with Riverdale still leading. The Comets still led by 2 at 41-39 at the three-quarter mark before the thrilling but saddening climax in the final period.

The reserves also lost by a one-point margin.

104 Days' Labor For Government

Indiana's typical taxpayer will work 104 days for the tax callendar in 1960—one day longer than in 1959.

This is the estimate of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce as it computed total federal and state tax bills in Indiana.

The average Hoosier will not start earning for himself until April 14. The State Chamber explains: "Approximately 28.3 per cent of the total 'income payments to individuals' goes to meet the total federal, state and local tax bills in Indiana. On this basis on the average, income for 104 days of the year is required to meet tax costs."

The chamber's figures show that Hoosiers, on the average, will work 70.6 days to pay federal taxes, 16.8 days to pay state taxes and 16.6 days to pay local taxes.

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out!... For of Him, and through Him, and to Him are all things! To whom be glory forever. Amen.

All life proves a certain sovereignty over creation. But the Almighty Power is a hidden person. Nature attests His wisdom and might but only the Gospel reveals the deep desires of His Heart. Only through Jesus Christ can man know that "God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son that who-so-ever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life." VOL. LXXIV ST. JOE, (DeKalb Co.), IND. Thursday, December 24, 1959 NUMBER 51

Miss Andrea Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carr of Saint Joe has received her State Board Certificate of Registered Nurse.

Andrea graduated from Riverdale High School in 1956 and attended Parkview Methodist

ANDREA CARR

School of Nursing, graduating from there July 26, 1959. She is now employed in the offices of Drs. Glock, Mackel, Brown and Hershberger, orthopedic surgeons, of Fort Wayne.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church for Merl A. Guilford, 55, of Saint Joe. Mr. Guilford died suddenly Thursday afternoon of a heart attack. He had been in failing health for several years.

Born in Jackson Township on May 31, 1904, he was the son of the late William and Ella Zehender Guilford, former Auburn residents. He married Freida Volkert June 27, 1931, and the couple resided in Saint Joe for the past 28 years. Mr. Guilford was employed as a carpenter doing cabinet work and other woodwork for residents in this area as well as repair work in the local school.

Survivors include the widow; two sisters, Mrs. Clifford Hart and Mrs. George Siegel of Auburn; and a brother, Raymond Guilford, of near LaGrange. The couple had no children.

Burial was in Leo Cemetery with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating at the service. Mr. Guilford was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Mrs. Frances Ordway, 44, of south of Auburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lake of near Saint Joe, died Thursday morning of a heart attack apparently induced by an attack of intestinal flu. She had been ill for two days before the fatal attack.

Mrs. Ordway and her husband, Bruce, and their three children moved to DeKalb County October 1, purchasing the William Dosch farm on state road 427 south of Auburn.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Oetting Funeral Home in Harlan with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. Burial was in Harlan Memorial Cemetery.

Mrs. Ordway was born in Milan Township, Allen County, near Harlan March 14, 1915.

Survivors include the husband; three children, Maurice, Lowell Dean and Lucille; the parents; and three brothers, Stanley Lake of Saint Joe, Paul Lake of Angola and Lynn Lake of Butler. Mrs. Ordway was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

A card was received last week from John Crothers and wife noting that the weather down south in the state of Florida has been nice and sunny and in the 70's. Trout have been biting like mad, John says, some catches numbering up to 50. The Crothers send their Christmas greetings to all. Their address is Bradenton Trailer Park H33, Bradenton, Fla.

The Lowry organ club met December 17 at the Waterloo library. A short business session was held. With family night, the children enjoyed a Christmas fish pond. Entertainment was furnished by almost all of the members and their families, taking part in a "jam session." Refreshments were served.

Bob Clauser sends a letter from Lackland Air Force Base in Texas stating that he will be at Amarillo for a 13-week tech school training program, after which he will be home on furlough for 10 to 15 days. "Tell everyone hi," Bob closes with.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCreery of Damascas, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Petty and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Derrow of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Keller and Dick Mask of Hamilton; and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Osburn and son, Allen, and daughter, Sylvia, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Keller and daughter, Shirley, and sons, Tommy and Danny, of Butler were Sunday guests in the Don Keller home.

Jerry Zimmerman, 18, of Saint Joe, now serving in the armed forces, escaped injury Wednesday of last week when the wheels of his car struck an accumulation of frost on state road 1. Headed east out of Saint Joe the car skidded off the pavement and into an embankment before it rolled over. Damage to the 1959 Ford was estimated at $400.

Mike Sumpter of the Grundy Mission Home in West Virginia, is a guest of the Paul Moore family for the holidays.

Clayton E. Baker of south of Saint Joe suffered a cut on his nose, other minor cuts and severe chest bruises Saturday afternoon when his 1952 Ford crashed on a curve on county road 40 about 260 feet west of the Indiana-Ohio state line. The driver was booked on charges of public intoxication and pleaded guilty before justice of the peace Lawrence Brown Monday morning. He was fined $1 and costs of $17.-75. The car was a total loss.

Furl Schmidt of Fairfield Township has been elected president of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association after Carl Perkins of Saint Joe declined re-election to a fourth term.

Walter Goldsmith, 17, of Spencerville and Phyllis Joan Richmond of Saint Joe were shaken up in a two-car collision Friday afternoon that demolished the Goldsmith 1954 Ford and caused $400 damage to the Richmond 1955 Ford. The accident occurred at an intersection north of the Riverdale high school in Saint Joe when Mrs. Richmond entered the intersection without stopping because the stop sign had been knocked over and she did not know she was on a stop street.

Comets Win Tourney

Smarting after a 79-65 licking by Arcola two weeks ago, the Riverdale Comets entered a four-team tourney at Woodlan last week and emerged the champions. The locals who had defeated Fremont by only one point in an earlier game this year put on a scorching last quarter rally and defeated Fremont 56-44 Tuesday evening. Woodlan defeated Hamilton 53-44.

Then on Wednesday evening the Comets went out in front from the start and defeated Woodlan 65-54 for the tourney title. Woodlan had been a one-point victor over Riverdale in an earlier season game.

In the game with Fremont, the Comets went into the last quarter trailing 33-32. As they gained a slight lead at the beginning of the final period, Fremont fouled in attempts to gain possession. The Comets sank the free throws and Fremont's strategy backfired. Gerry Heyman sank 15 charity tosses out of a team total of 20. He had a total of 23 points.

It was free throws again in the Woodlan tilt which made the difference in the score. Of Riverdale's 65 points, 31 came on free throws. Balanced scoring also helped.

Jerry Vinson, Riverdale's defensive ace, broke out in a flurry of scoring to lead scoring with 18 points. He had not scored in double figures previously.

Riverdale's next game is on Friday, January 8, against Hicksville on the Hicksville court.

Church Moves To Temporary Quarters

The Spencerville Methodist congregation will move its sanctuary to the community building basement Friday evening of this week. The move is being made in order to allow for the remodeling of the church proper. The work will begin in the near future.

While the remodeling is being carried on, worship services will be held Sunday mornings at the usual hour in the basement of the community hall. It is hoped that the congregation will be able to return to the church proper by Easter.

Men of the church are preparing to don work clothes and begin moving Friday at 6:30 p.m.

Plan Adult Typing Class

Joe Smith, Riverdale principal, has asked that adults who are interested in taking a course in typing contact him as soon as possible so that it may determined if such a class will have sufficient enrollment to justify its continuation.

The course in typing for adults would run for 13 weeks with the night for the evening sessions to be determined by the enrollees. There would be a nominal fee charged for the course.

Those interested should contact Mr. Smith immediately.

Community Club News

The Spencerville Community Club will meet Wednesday evening, January 6, at 7:30 p. m. at the community hall, according to Glenn Moore, president of the club.

The club sponsored a victory dance at the community hall following the tourney victory over Woodlan and everyone had a good time.

Riverdale 4-H'ers Win Trip

Three Riverdale students, Sharon K. Smith, Lynda Fisher and Dianne Mayer, were among 13 DeKalb County 4-H achievement winners who enjoyed a two-day trip to Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The group traveled by bus.

With Dorothy Shugart and Albert Pell as chaperons, the group join another group from Steuben County for the trip. Places visited included the Chicago Board of Trade, Federal Reserve Bank, tower of the Prudential Building, the Planetarium, the post office and Cinerama the first day. On the second day they enjoyed breakfast at Union Stockyards and toured Midway airport and the Museum of Science and Industry before returning home.

The trip was awarded to outstanding 4-H achievement winners according to a point system.

The Burning Question

What is meant by "the true spirit of Christmas"?

For the past few years, having set myself ahead of time to resist the onslaught of pressure that comes when Christmas rolls around, pressure to buy gift after gift after gift, only to be caught up in the rush by a feeling of non-conformity and uneasiness at not joining in the practice of giving something to everybody (figuratively speaking), I once again this year went through the same process. And now that Christmas is over, there is a feeling of uneasiness yet lingering, not because somebody was forgotten (or was He?), but because there doesn't seem to be much sense in a concentrated season of gift buying which can best be described in two popular words - - - "I'm broke."

Several times this past Christmas season, words something like "I (or we) hope the true spirit of Christmas is with you this year - - - " etc., etc., etc., were read or heard in Christmas greetings. Again I ask, what is meant by "the true spirit of Christmas"? Do people know what they are talking about? Though I am not sure of the answer, I am sure that what we go through each year ISN'T the true spirit of Christmas. When you get down to facts, Christmas is the birthday of Jesus Christ. He is God's gift to mankind. And the Spirit that we associate with the presence of Christ is eternal, not present just for a certain season. This Great Gift is something present each day, it is God's love for you and me. So, I ask myself, why do we get ourselves in a dither trying to think of what to give Mom or Dad or Brother or Sister or Aunt or Uncle or Friend or whomever it might be and concentrate all OUR love into one moment when a beautifully-wrapped gift box is presented to the loved one.

It seems to me that a true spirit of Christmas includes a review of the "gifts" received: food to eat, shoes to wear, clothes to keep us warm and presentable, recreation to keep us happy and healthy; and of the friendships enjoyed throughout the past year, an appreciation of these things as we observe the birthday of Christ through worshipful rather than material thoughts. And the gifts we might give one another would be truly symbols; the jokes about a tie for Christmas for Dad would cease to be funny because a tie for Dad would be a symbol of love. A pair of socks would cease being funny, or whatever else we now resort to in a last-ditch effort to complete our gift-buying. Simple giving leaves room for the feeling of holiness at Christmas. There is little holiness connected with Dad's condition when he says, "I'm broke."

What is most bothersome, though, about this Christmas gift-giving is right at the core. Last week we observed the birthday of Jesus Christ. The Christian accepts this Holy Birth as the greatest gift ever given; it will never be surpassed. The Christian is thankful to God for having become the recipient of this Gift from Heaven, sent to earth as the Saviour of mankind. But how many dollars that were spent this Christmas, how much of this spending that now has a good many Dads "broke," were "spent" as gifts to God through His earthly church? How many Christians gave an extra five or ten or twenty dollars, or more, to God as a reflection of human love recognizing Divine Love?

Each year there comes the same push from all sides, the same fear of disappointing someone, the same overwhelming desire to do right by everyone, only to feel that all that is done (both in giving AND receiving) just isn't right.

Are you with me? - -And the question once again burns the soul:

What is "the true spirit of Christmas"?

Our School - First Part of a Critical Report

At a recent P.T.A. meeting held at the Riverdale High School gym, there were but 38 or 40 persons present for a program which had been announced to students' parents through a notice sent home with the students. The only indication of the program's content was the flat statement on the notice, "What is wrong with our schools." The handful of audience was the response. This seems to be the character of the local community, to refrain from individual participation in anything which might involve decisions to be made centered around a conflict of opinion or criticism of activity. Just getting along with what we have, not arousing the serenity of public officials by offering suggestions or giving sincere and justifiable criticism (except behind their backs) can be called "the character of this community."

Occasionally, however, there are flurries of activity which seem to indicate a regeneration of community pride. Proposed public projects are begun with enthusiasm and then, for some reason, left to dwindle and eventually die. It takes work to make anything a success; and so, the principal reason for the downfall of these periodic outbursts of community activity would appear to be the lack of necessary volunteer (and sacrificial!) work or the unwillingness to put forth the necessary financial outlay required to get someone else to do the work. Both result in little coordinated and planned progress. Both result in a "dead" community.

The lack of "life" in the community cannot help but be reflected in the school. A great deal of activity in the Riverdale area involves the school in one way or another. The students are out selling magazines or annuals or advertisements in the annuals or holding bake sales or washing cars or conducting work days, the athletic department is involved in sports which draw parents and others as spectators, the talents of the students in music are aided by the band which has its own schedule of activities and parents must take their instrumentalists to the various places for the various performances, there are class plays presented periodically, and so on. Although there is much "life" in the school as far as these activities are concerned (the students seem to be busy most of the time), there is little "life" to be seen as reflected by the care and upkeep of the school buildings themselves, the school grounds and the equipment thereon. One need only take a few hours some Saturday (or any other day, for that matter, as convenience dictates) to stroll around the school properties with open eyes to find a great deal to reflect little "life", little pride.

While any criticism of the schools may appear to be pointed in the direction of the school board only, it must be stated that this is not the case. While the board has been lax in maintaining the school in some ways, it has been as much the fault of individual citizens for not "demanding" better maintenance through "the character of the community." That is, if there has not been a coat of paint on the exterior trim for several years it is because the board has not authorized such painting, certainly. But they did not act because there was no feeling that the public would particularly notice whether or not the trim had been painted - or care. In other words, if nobody has said anything or will say anything, we might as well save the money.

Money has been saved, as far as exterior paint is concerned. Though the elementary building at Spencerville is generally, more atractive in appearance than the upper grade buildings, it still is in need of outside paint to enhance its appearance, to make the stranger feel that "somebody cares about this school." The playground at the elementary grade building is, to all appearances, serving the students satisfactorily. New facilities are added occasionally, although with the present enrollment of around 375 students, there probably could be more equipment added. Inside the building the halls are clean and well-kept. Classrooms are orderly and the students seem to be taught to observe certain rules of respect with regard to public property and their own personal belongings.

The story is a bit different in the upper grade buildings. The lack of paint on exterior surfaces is obvious from a distance. A wall which has not been whitewashed for many years (except in 1951 when a young man from the school did so voluntarily to prepare for the opening of the lighted ball diamond) appears as a mass of streaks. The concrete foundation and trim on both buildings is streaked. In the school yard a merry-go-round lies unused on the grass. Last summer vandals chose to remove it from its spindle and deposit it in a ditch across the street from the school. At the same time a section of bleachers from the ball diamond was deposited in a soy bean field across the road from the school. These items of school property were left in the ditch and in the bean field for weeks before being brought back on the school property. Even then, the mery-go-round was not placed on the spindle and still lies, useless, on the school grounds. Meanwhile, the community observed these things (or did it?), the community including the young people who are our students and from whom we expect respect for property. It is difficult to understand how Riverdale patrons can expect such respect for property from the students when "the character of the community" did not move the authorized persons to return school property to its place or see that such action was taken as quickly as possible.

A broken window in the gym is left unrepaired for weeks. What was the cost of the heat lost? Where was the pride that would seem to compel immediate repair of the window before it came to public sight?

Two janitors serve the Riverdale schools, one at the elementary building, one at the upper grade buildings. While one janitor may be sufficient for the lower grades, one is not enough for the upper grades considering that there are two separate buildings to maintain which are used more extensively by students and teachers through extra-curricular activities. Therefore, blame for the things left undone cannot be heaped on the janitor. Better maintenance requires more help and salaries commensurate with services expected.

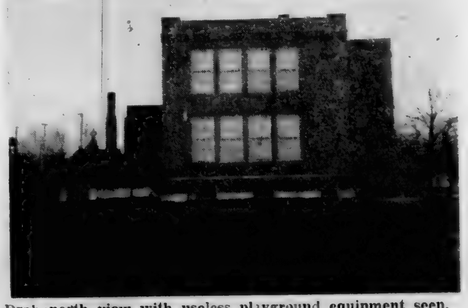
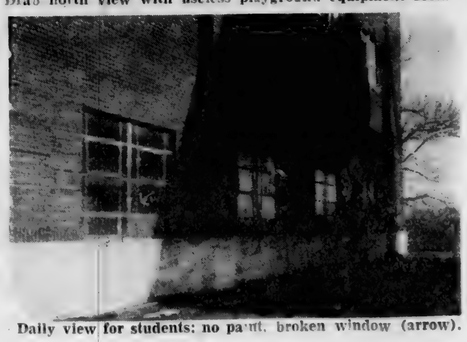
The first impression of the Riverdale Junior High and High School may be governed in the stranger's mind by the view as shown in the above photograph. This is what is seen when entering Saint Joe on State Highway 1 from the south.

Close-up view of the condition of the school building.



Drab north view with useless playground equipment seen.



Daily view for students: no paint, broken window (arrow).

Corn Problems

A bumper corn crop brings many farmers face to face with the problem of how to market it for the high dollar, observes Harold Hose, manager of the Feed Division of Myers Elevator at Saint Joe.

Many will have more corn than they have hogs or cattle to feed in spite of record numbers of both. Most of these farmers will have three alternatives, he says:

1. Substitute corn for purchased supplements.

2. Sell or put excess corn under gorvernment loan.

3. Buy more livestock to use surplus corn.

"Corn would have to get down to 45 cents a bushel, considering the current prices of a good hog supplement, before it would pay to follow the first alternative." "Dutch" said. "Livestock nutritionists tell us it takes 18 bushels of corn alone to get a hog to market, but as little as 8¼ bushels will do it when properly supplemented."

The choice between the second and third alternatives is more difficult, he observes, and depends largely on the farmer's skill as a feeder and how much he has to pay for feeder livestock.

"Some of the prices we've heard for feeder livestock, especially pigs, must sound pretty attractive for the good feeder. But we're sure that either of the last two choices will do better than going without supplements -- you can't beat low prices by throwing away efficiency of production," he pointed out.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Nancy Coburn on December 11. All enjoyed a delicious pot luck dinner.

After the noon hour, the meeting was called to order by the president and all repeated the club collect. Devotions were by Edna Kaufman. Song of the month, Deck the Halls, was then sung. Secretary's report was read and roll call answered by 16 members and one guest.

A Christmas poem was given by Hulda Reasoner. Project leaders were appointed.

The social hour was a gift exchange. Happy birthday was sung for all having birthdays in December, and a birthday auction was held.

The meeting closed with the singing of the club prayer song.

'Dimes' Opens First Birth Defects Center

A birth defects study center, the first of its kind designed to combine clinical treatment with research and teaching, has just been officially opened at Columbus, Ohio. It is supported by funds from the New March of Dimes, which is now engaged in its January campaign for contributions to fight three major crippling diseases including, besides birth defects, arthritis and polio.

Medical experts say that birth defects are the biggest unmet childhood medical problem in the United States today. There are more than 600 different kinds of birth defects, or "congenital malformations," as they are called by doctors. They range all the way from harelip and clubfoot to mental retardation.

Some 250,000 American babies are born each year with one or more significant birth defects; and about half of this number are doomed to a lifetime of serious illness or crippling. About 34,000 infants each year are stillborn because of these afflictions, or die within the first month of life. Medical science as yet has few clues to the causes of these disorders that occur before birth; and there are few known methods of prevention.

Shrouded in Superstition

The study center in Columbus' famed Children's Hospital thus represents the beginning of the New March of Dimes attempt to solve a medical problem that has heretofore been largely neglected by research. It is a problem that has for centuries been shrouded in fear, superstition and shame. By tackling this issue with a three-pronged program of research, patient aid and training of skilled medical professionals, the March of Dimes organization seeks to bring hope to the hundreds of thousands of parents whose lives have been blighted by bewildering grief and heartbreak following the birth of a malformed child.

This hope is bolstered by the past record of the March of Dimes organization in fighting baffling diseases. It was March of Dimes funds that encouraged Dr. Jonas E. Salk to become a virologist and that produced his world-celebrated vaccine against crippling polio.

Some Can Be Helped

Certain major birth defects, such as "water on the brain" (hydrocephalus) and "open spine" (spina bifida), can now sometimes be corrected by new techniques of surgery, medical experts at the March of Dimes organization report.

Through the combination of treatment, teaching and study at the Columbus Birth Defects Study Center and others the March of Dimes hopes to establish and support, it is believed that new knowledge will be obtained and spread so that the devastating effects of these disorders may eventually, for the most part, be prevented or controlled.

Parents are taught to give home care to children with birth defects at the Columbus Children's Hospital Birth Defects Study Center, supported by New March of Dimes funds. Here doctors examine Jackie Vess, 3, born with hydrocephalus, commonly known as "water on the brain," while parents get instruction.

Born with an open spine, two-month-old Madonna Galich is examined by a physician at the Birth Defects Study Center, just officially opened in the Columbus, Ohio, Children's Hospital. Now March of Dimes funds will be used to help this baby toward a normal and useful life.

CARD OF THANKS

Dear Friends,
Although he is gone, he is not away,
For I see his handiwork in a finer way.
During these dark days, I was lonesome and blue,
But they were made brighter because of you.
The friends who came hurriedly at my call,
The funeral director who gave his all
To make the load lighter in every way.
The consoling words Pastor Miller did say.
The beautiful flowers from friends far and near,
Will remain in my memory for many a year.
Gifts of service and food, I will cherish, too,
Along with the cards that came from many of you.
May God bless you richly for all you have done
To honor the one, who, his eternal home has won.

With sincere thanks,

Ephesians 4.13

For many people, Christmas is a beautiful vision of joy and peace—which fades in a short day. God means Christmas to be an invitation to follow up the good news of the Gift of a Savior to the world. Farmer Set for Nuclear Threat

"There's nothing to building a shelter."

So says Don S. Trow, a 63-year-old farmer who lives near Albany, Wis. He knows. He has built one of the few adequate farm fallout shelters in United States, and the only known one in his own county.

Trow says nuclear fallout is like the weather—everyone talks about it, but no one does anything about it.

But Trow did something. First he invested a four cent stamp to write to Box Home Shelter at the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization at Battle Creek, Mich., to get its Home Shelter booklet (MP-15). It contains shelter construction plans of several types.

When Trow got his booklet, he didn't just "think about it." He sent for a contractor and invested $1,500 to have it built. He says he could have built it himself for less than $1,000 had he not been seriously afflicted at the time.

TROW'S SHELTER is an underground reinforced concrete box 13 by 15 feet, with an 11-inch-thick ceiling slab. A 15-foot tunnel connects it to his cellar.

The shelter isn't pretty. It won't be even after ventilation blowers, a battery radio, food, water, bedding and other necessities are added.

But if clouds of radioactive material swirled over the green Wisconsin countryside after a nuclear attack, the shelter would be valuable beyond reckoning of price or effort. It also offers absolute tornado protection as a bonus.

Trow feels that these arguments make good sense. He says, "I just can't understand why people don't build shelters. Don't they read? Don't they attend civil defense meetings? Or is it just that they don't care? Most families spend the $1,000 cost of a shelter, and much more in a couple of years trading cars, and for luxuries."

ACTUALLY, PEOPLE often ask him why he built the shelter, and some express interest in building one themselves. But the matter usually ends there.

Trow tells about a doctor acquaintance who asked how he might build a basement fallout shelter. When told, he decided he could get enough fallout protection by stacking up books in his basement as a shelter.

"Imagine," Trow said, "an intelligent man like a doctor stacking up books for a shelter!"

Technically, books, like any item with some mass, would offer some protection against radiation, according to civil defense authorities. But a 16-inch thickness of books would be needed to provide the same radiation shielding as eight inches of solid concrete blocks or 12 inches of earth, or 30 inches of wood.

This would take thousands of books, and the means of stacking them into the form of walls and ceiling for a shelter. It couldn't be done in the hour or so of grace which rural areas would have before fallout from a target area reached them.

Like life insurance, the survival insurance of a fallout shelter can't be "taken out" after the disaster happens.

SURVIVAL INSURANCE looks like an ordinary concrete slab at the home of Don S. Trow near Albany, Wis. But beneath the slab is a $1,500 reinforced concrete shelter which the 63-year-old farmer ordered built for himself and his wife. Trow got the shelter plans by writing to Box Home Shelter, Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Battle Creek, Mich. (Wisconsin State Journal Photo)

NUCLEAR ATTACK on the United States would result in a flood of refugees moving from target cities to rural areas. This would overtax all living facilities, such as those for cooking. The probable loss of electricity would make the situation even worse. To meet this problem, rural civil defense organizations conduct exercises in improvised outdoor cooking, using oil drums for ovens, tin cans made into cooking utensils, and other materials likely to be available after attack.

HOLE IN A HILLSIDE near Davenport, Iowa, could mean the survival of veterinarian Dr. J. B. White and his family. The "hole" is a reinforced concrete fallout shelter built adjacent to the doctor's home. It is equipped with electricity, running well water, food, and other living facilities. Dr. White based his shelter on plans furnished without charge to anyone writing Box Home Shelter, Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Battle Creek, Mich. (OCDM Photo)

A CLOSE CALL with a tornado in 1953 led the Donald L. Anderson family of Toledo, Iowa, to build their own small shelter adjoining their basement. They estimate that, by doing their own work, they will have only about $50 in the shelter when finished. Here Anderson, his wife Jean, and sons Rick, 13, (lower bunk) and Don G., 12, "try the shelter out for size." In addition to serving as a tornado shelter, it would be valuable as protection against radioactive fallout if the nation were attacked. (OCDM Photo)

WHAT YOU CAN DO TO SURVIVE

Residents of rural areas are very likely to survive a nuclear attack on the United States and remain in good health to aid the nation's recovery if they take a few common sense precautions, Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization authorities advise.

Among the steps which the national civil defense agency suggests are:

- Build a fallout shelter. It doesn't have to be expensive, but it should be in a basement or underground. Plans are available by writing Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.
- Store at least a two-week supply of food and water, and have such essentials as a battery-operated radio and first aid supplies handy.
- Make advance preparations and learn how to take care of livestock in a fallout area. These and other instructions for protecting humans, animals, houses, food, etc., from radioactive material are contained in publications issued without charge by OCDM.

Youth Hurt In Accident

Glenn Dennis Conley, 20, of Fort Wayne, formerly of Spencerville, was critically injured at 2:20 a.m. Saturday when he was thrown from his convertible as it crashed at an intersection a mile north and a mile east of Saint Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Strong noticed headlights at the intersection early Saturday morning and, upon investigation, found the young man thrown from his car. Conley was traveling west on county road 56 and failed to negotiate a curve at the road's intersection with state highway 101. His car crashed into a steel corner post and a telephone pole.

Conley was taken to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. Strong. It was a half hour before the crash was discovered by the couple. The injured man suffered a skull fracture, multiple cuts and lacerations and bruises in addition to loss of blood and exposure.

The 1956 Ford convertible was a total loss.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

Have been waiting for the time to arrive when I could thank you for sending copies of the St. Joe News way out to California. I've been pretty busy and am now just finding time. Thanks a lot. It really takes my thoughts back to my home life to hear or read the news from my home community.

I'm finding the Navy life very enjoyable and I'm also enjoying the weather. Today it is raining but this is only the second time in a month.

The time really flies by while here at boot camp. There isn't one minute a day that I can't find something I should be doing. When ever I want to do something I usually find myself shorting something else that needs to be done.

Right now I'm battalion yeoman and enjoying myself in that line of work, which is like being a business secretary only dealing with military information and reports. I'm planning on striking for the clerical and administrative type of position and have been recommended for on the job training. I don't find basic training very hard as long as I do what I'm told and no more. Also being in the battalion office makes things rather easy on me. But still there are only 24 hours in the day and when I'm finished with my washing and ironing everyday it's time to hit the sack. I enjoy washing though. It sounds rough but is really enjoyable with about 70 other guys around.

Got lots of friends here and many at home also from the looks of my mail box.

Thanks again for the newspaper.

Dear Ted,

I thought I would write a few lines and let you know that we are moving this Friday, 1 Jan. 1960.

As I said before we are moving to Newport, Rhode Island while I go to school for a couple of months. I am going to the NAVAL JUSTICE SCHOOL. I'll let you know our address when we get to Rhode Island.

Well by for now, we still have a lot of packing to do.

So long.

Dear Editor of The News:

Please find enclosed my mother's check for $2.00 to cover subscription until 10-60. She enjoys the News very much along with hearing from all the folks in the area. She is quite well. Lizzie Hart and Mrs. Geo. Hart of Hillsdale spent an afternoon with her and surely did give her a great lift to see friends. Mother spent Xmas day in our home and seemed to stand it fine.

Thanks again for the paper and all the considerations given.

As ever,
Paul L. Hadsell

On Sunday, December 27, a group of men from this area drove to Quincy, Illinois, before beginning a tour the next day of the feed manufacturing plant of the Moorman Mfg. Co.

The group, including Aaron Holman of Saint Joe, enjoyed breakfast in the company cafeteria, then toured the factory and research laboratories in Quincy. Following lunch, they went to the company research farm near Quincy and saw many tests on stock and poultry in progress.

After training in voice and music for almost 10 years, she has appeared with the New Orleans Opera House Association production of Hansel and Gretel, with the New Orlenas Symphony Orchestra as a talent contest winner, and was soprano soloist for the Presbyterian church choir in addition to singing in several other church choirs. Last summer she attended the Hyannis Melody Tent, a summer stock company in Hyannis, Mass. Returning to New York she went with a revue of four persons to sing and do her act for seven weeks at three of the larger hotels in Bermuda. In New York again she appeared at Lucky Pierre's Supper Club and on December 20 she sang with the Dorian Chorale in CBS's St. Nicholas Mass on TV. Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Hill and daughter, Paula, have been vacationing in Tennessee. During their absence, Mr. Charles Mathews, president of the Great Lakes Bible College, Lansing, Mich., preached both morning and evening sermons in Coburn Corners Church of Christ January 3.

Mrs. Paul Carpenter of Fort Wayne died early this week. Mr. Carpenter is a brother of Carl Carpenter of north of Saint Joe.

Our School - Part Two of a Critical Report

One thing observed in visiting the elementary school is that the principal has an office on the first floor which is reached by passing through one of two classrooms. This is disturbing to the students. In addition, the principal's office is, at best, a make-shift arrangement, using what formerly was the school entrance hall.

On the second floor, one of the sixth grade classes meets in a room which is reached by passing through another classroom. Not only is there the inconvenience of traffic through the room, but the sixth grade room itself is small, inadequate for boys and girls who have reached the age of sixth graders. The students are literally packed in the room; desks are small, they can't be any bigger. Crowded conditions are not only a hindrance in carrying out classroom instruction, they decreasc the possibility of classroom discipline. One classroom has a partial partition as a wall. Thus hall noises disturb the class.

At the upper grade building the principal conducts his business from a small room which must contain not only his desk and that of the school secretary but also other school property and equipment. There is little privacy for administering discipline, or holding conferences with teachers or parents, or conducting other business of a confidential nature which might arise. Teachers are in and out of the office, as are students, making the principal's office the hub of school traffic. In such an atmosphere school administration is carried out. Add to this the noise from the gymnasium downstairs when physical education classes or team practice sessions are being held. The din from the gym floats up through the floor into the office, as it does also into the classrooms, as attested to by students. The school safe is not in the office; it stands downstairs (the office is on the second floor) at the entrance to the building, too heavy to carry upstairs, too large to fit in the office.

An inside wall in the newer building can be shown to buckle slightly with the push of a hand against the wall. The older building creaks with age as one uses the stairway. Shades are drawn even on dark days to help keep the cold out. Girls wear slacks as often as they can (there is a restriction, no slacks unless it is 15 degrees or below) to keep warm. Yet, the older building is considered the better of the two buildings.

Because there are two buildings used by the upper grades and because there are classes held in both buildings for all the upper grades, students must pass from one building to the other in all kinds of weather; there is no passageway or covered shelter. Thus, rain, snow or shine, 90 degrees or zero, Riverdale students are going in and out of doors to get from class to class.

The elementary school building at Spencerville.

These conditions bring one fact to light: the community has done little for many years to provide adequate school facilities for its youth; it has done little even with the knowledge of increasing enrollment. Many conditions mentioned in these columns have been coming on, if not present, for many years. Unfortunately, they cannot be erased in a few days, or few months. Some may take years. However, somewhere a start must be made. In a sense, the school can get no lower than it now is.

In 1953 the consolidation of Concord and Spencer townships took place. (Actually both are half-townships. Originally there was one township, but a split came supposedly over a conflict concerning the school.) One year later Newville Township was added to the consolidation. Selling points for undertaking the consolidation were that such a move would make possible a greater source of tax money for new schools, combining for efficiency, such a move would make possible a wider selection of courses of study. After six years in which to work on new school construction and improved curriculum, there is no more than $91,583 in the cumulative building fund. The fund was established in 1956, so it took three years after the first consolidation before a move was made to provide funds for building construction. The levy was set at 50 cents. This raised $19,513 the first year, $20,058 the second year and $20,099 the third year. Then the rate was increased for 1959, but only to 80 cents, bringing in $31,913 for the fourth year of the levy. This is hardly to be considered a significant move to provide a new school, when the cost of a new unit (elementary OR high school) appeared to be no less than around $400,000. At a time when the elementary grades were increasing their numbers each year to indicate a doubled entry into the upper grades in coming years (it started this year), the Riverdale consolidation was providing for its new school building at a snail's pace.

Concerning the curriculum, one of the pet complaints to be aired about the school situation has to do with the lack of manual training facilities. Several years ago there were tools in the "shop," though they may have been few. As the tools disappeared for one reason or another, so did manual training. As a result boys going to Riverdale find themselves studying a course in agriculture at a time when the farm population is steadily decreasing. There has been no elective of manual training for them to choose. This year, limited funds were provided to allow the purchase of some shop tools to reinstitute the shop class. But with the increased enrollment, there is hardly room to provide for such a class; space is at a premium. Because of this what shop can be given must be correlated with the agriculture course and only for boys in the upper four grades.

Academic training is the most important part of our educational institutions; that is what they were created for. Next in line comes an appreciation of cultural knowledge. For the ambitious youth in Riverdale careful programming of high school years must be made to provide for his needs in entering college. Foreign languages, an academic "must," are not offered regularly. Adequately equipped chemistry and physics labs are something to dream of. Art classes depend upon the teaching qualifications of the ever-changing faculty as they are hired. The only appreciable advance along the lines of cultural advancement has been in the music department. However, one good thing in several years is hardly enough in the world of 1960. It seems hardly possible that in a community which reflects prosperity in the number of late-model automobiles, in the pocket money the youth have (and the cars they own), in the vacations the majority are able to enjoy, in the days off which can be taken when wanted for a hunting trip or a fishing trip without any apparent damage to the welfare of the family, in the Florida winters enjoyed by so many from this community, in the farm equipment, in all material possessions—it seems hardly possible that there can be a school which is so out of tune with the times. Progress in America has stopped short of the school as far as Riverdale is concerned. Public school apathy has been at its worst.

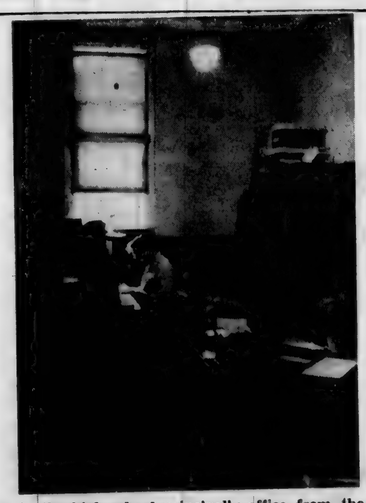
This is the cramped sixth grade room. It is reached by passing through another classroom on the second floor.



Looking in the high school principal's office from the hall.

The door at the far end of the room enters the principal's office (elementary). It is necessary to pass through this or another classroom to reach the office.

Something To Talk About

Pictured above are Elwood Savage, right, and his fishing partner, Baxter Bowling, with Elwood's New Years Day catch, a channel catfish 29 inches long and weighing 11½ pounds. The cat was caught in the Saint Joe River after a battle of an hour or so on a 6-lb. test line. As with all good fish stories, the big one got away, Elwod having another larger cat on the hook which broke his equipment and returned to the deep.

Baxter wasn't present when the fish was caught, not being able to stand the cold because of illness. But the big catch got him out in time to help spread the word of the big cat. Elwood and Baxter are a familiar pair during the winter fishing season.

Businesses Rated

Each January business concerns in all parts of the United States receive from Dun & Bradstreet requests for their annual financial statements. This year, these requests are being sent to approximately three million businesses, to the corner grocery store worth a few thousand dollars as well as to businesses worth millions.

The extent of business activity in DeKalb County is reflected in statistics just released by the credit reporting agency. J. W. Hight, district manager at Chicago covering this area, says that this year there will be more requests for financial statements made of business concerns in DeKalb County than ever before.

The DeKalb County section of the current issue of the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book contains listings of 455 names comprising manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. It does not include some of the service and professional businesses, such as barber and beauty shops, real estate and stock brokers. Thus the figure for businesses in DeKalb County would actually be higher than the 455 quoted above.

The number of listed businesses in the five largest communities in the county are:

Auburn 198; Garrett 85; Butler 72; Waterloo 55; and Saint Joe 19.

IS IT TRUE THAT THE LUTHERAN CHURCH PERMITS SMOKING AND DRINKING?

It is not true. The Lutheran Church does not permit anything. And it does not prohibit anything.

It does not pass laws — it proclaims Christ. It is not a legislature — it is a church. Its task is not to make rules and regulations—its business is to announce a Crucifixion and a Resurrection.

The Gospel is not a list of things we must do or not do — it is a report of the things that God has done.

Mighty things He has done! — Become incarnate in human flesh. Conquered man's ancient enemies: Sin, devil, death. Demonstrated the surety of resurrection. Set the whole of human existence in an eternal perspective. Called the race to fear Him, love Him, trust Him.

And dire is the need for that Gospel! — In a world that seems determined to destroy itself, a race bent upon annihilation, a society trapped and tormented by tension, frustration, anxiety.

By comparison, arguments about a cigarette or a glass of beer seem pretty trivial!

"So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God," wrote St. Paul. And again, "And whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the Name of the Lord Jesus . . ."

That is why the Lutheran Church does not presume to permit or prohibit. Fear and love and trust in the Lord's Christ are far safer guides than any set of rules

The New Year

Not everyone observed the beginning of the New Year on January 1. But people in all parts of the world have special customs to insure that the New Year will get off to a good start. Church services and frantic parties, for example, are typical ways of celebrating in the U.S.

In many European countries, gifts are exchanged on New Year's Day. The custom originated with the Romans, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Back in 747 B.C., reportedly, they presented the king of the Sabines with branches of bay and palm trees consecrated to Strenia, the goddess of strength. The "strenae," or gifts, became more elaborate, in expectation of royal favor, and the emperor came to regard them as deserved tribute.

Augustus Caesar is said to have passed the word along that he had had a vision in which he saw himself receiving gifts from the Senate and the people on January 1.

Claudius finally stopped the influence-peddling by limiting the cost of gifts.

Henry III introduced the custom into England in the 1200's, and Elizabeth I collected enough loot to replenish her wardrobe for a year. The custom went out with Oliver Cromwell.

In Scotland, bad luck is in store for a family if the first person to set foot in the house on New Year's Day is a woman . . . or a gravedigger . . . or a person who walks with his toes turned in . . . or a man with red or blond hair. To minimize the risk, the Scots appoint a tall, dark man as the "first-footer." On New Year's Day he enters each house in silence, places a bundle of fagots on the fire, then wishes the family good luck.

Even the poorest Chinese buy new shoes for the holiday, because it is bad luck to step down on the ground into old shoes on New Year's Day. And the Portugese ignore their debts, because the man who pays a bill on this day will pay out money all year.

Brazilians open the New Year by expressing the hope of all men . . . they designate January 1 as the Day of Universal Brotherhood.

January 1 became generally accepted as New Year's Day in the 1500's when the Gregorian calendar was introduced. But the new year still begins on March 21 in Iran. And the Hindus have a different New Year's Day for each of their many religious groups.

"Cleaning the slate" on New Year's Day once involved a lot of elbow grease. The English used to clean the chimneys on the first of the year for good luck.

The ancient Romans honored Janus, the god of gates and doors and of beginnings and endings, on the first day of the year. Janus, for whom the month of January was named, was pictured with two faces, and looked both ahead and backward.

Indiana State Library

Blankets For Relief Jan. 24

Executives of 10 Protestant church bodies have called on their churches to fully cooperate with the Indiana Council of Churches in a statewide drive for blankets January 24. The Council is sponsor of a campaign to collect 100,000 new or used blankets for immediate shipment to disaster areas and refugee centers.

The 10 denominational heads joined in a statement which reads in part: "We are glad to fully support the campaign to secure 100,000 blankets for shipment to refugee centers overseas. We urge our people throughout the state, family by family, to set aside Sunday, January 24, as a day of sharing when they will bring to their churches new or clean used blankets and 25 cents for each blanket to cover the cost of shipment.

"With blankets an emergency need in 16 countries, this appeal, endorsed by our denominations nationally, truly demonstrates the spirit of Christian sharing. Let us rally together to achieve the slogan of this united effort, 'Share Blankets, Save Brothers."

The statement was signed by Revs. Walter Wick, United Lutheran; John N. Fox, United Presbyterian; Andrew K. Craig, Congregational Christian; Galen T. Lehman, Church of the Brethren; Harry Bredeweg, Evangelical and Reformed; also Bishop Richard C. Raines, Methodist; Bishop John P. Craine, Protestant Episcopal; Bishop Ruben H. Mueller, Evangelical United Brethren; and Dr. Dallas West, Indiana Baptist Convention.

Blankets will be received in each local church on January 24, then will be taken to regional centers for pick-up and air shipment overseas.

Dates Changed

Riverdale school patrons are reminded of a change in dates for the January and February meetings of the Riverdale P.T.A. due to scheduling conflicts.

Because a basketball game is scheduled for next Tuesday evening, January 19, the regular meeting night for the P. T.A., it has been necessary to change the P.T.A. to Tuesday, January 26. A similar conflict in February moves the P.T.A. meeting from February 16 to February 23.

This month's program on the 26th will include an explanation of the remedial reading instruction in the elementary grades by Mrs. Margaret Bacon and a program on sight preservation in the schools by the Indiana Optometric Association from the Indiana University campus at Bloomington.

Our School - Part Three of a Critical Report

The boys' shower. In this atmosphere boys at Riverdale prepare for returning to classes after gym activities. They may or may not shower as they wish. A note warns of glass on the floor.

The faculty of Riverdale has numbered around 25 since the consolidation. Looking in the records, it is found that of that 25 which was present in 1955, there are but seven still in the local school system. In other words, in five years there has been a turn-over of 70 per cent in the Riverdale faculty. Such a change in a few years has its effect on the efficiency of the school. Students are subjected constantly to new personalities and the teacher-pupil relationship must be met anew each year. Time, that a permanent adjustment between pupil and teacher becomes a problem each year, to prove a cause for all the upper grades and affects the capabilities of the teachers according to the subjects they teach. And in the shuffle are lost some of the extras which make education of greater value, those subjects mentioned previously which are offered occasionally to augment the fundamentals.

The stability of the school is affected, too, with respect to maintenance of discipline. A new teacher may or may not have the experience to cope with personality conflicts or insubordination. This uncertainty multiplied by the number of new faces on the faculty each year makes discipline a greater problem than encountered when the students are acquainted with the general make-up of the teaching corps from year to year as it remains relatively constant.

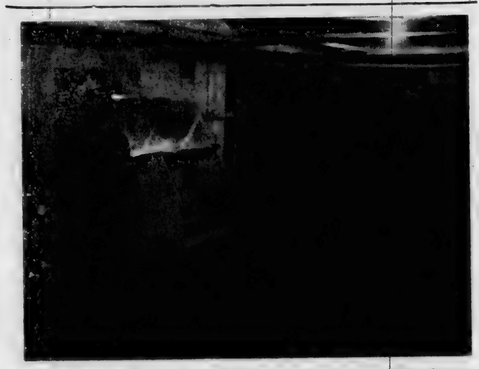
What causes this continuing change in the faculty? There are several reasons which may be lumped into that term used previously, "the character of the community." Disinterest on the part of Riverdale patrons [illegible] part in influencing [illegible] he or she entering here. Anyone influenced in their job by the cooperation they receive from those who are associated with [illegible] that job. If parents are not interested enough in having their own child to occasionally visit the teacher, or to respond to a request from the teacher to discuss a particular problem, a normal reaction is less interest in the community in which the teacher labors. It is only the faculty member who lives in this immediate area who is seen in the stores of the community from time to time. It is probable that half of the Riverdale faculty could walk in most local businesses and be unrecognized by the people in the stores. They just aren't seen.

There is little to draw them. In the first place they don't live in the Riverdale area because the community has little to offer in the way of housing to attract faculty members and to keep them after they come. There must be an intense search for housing for a teacher who has a family; housing just isn't available. The situation is so bad that, just a few years ago, the principal of Riverdale High School and his family resided in a house which had no bath tub.

In addition, a rural school has a schedule for the school buses and the students must [illegible] to get home. There is no opportunity for after-school activity of an academic or disciplinary nature because of the fact. Therefore, though it is not an enforced edict to behind, the faculty are gone from the school as quickly as the students; there are a few exceptions. This only serves to emphasize the importance of greater cooperation with the faculty to counteract the conditions which do not exist in metropolitan areas.

There is the matter of money to be considered. The teacher whose capabilities are tested and proved in any school may find greener pastures elsewhere; someone will recognize his or her capabilities. Therefore, concern for the welfare of the teacher as far as salary is concerned becomes a major factor in the faculty turn-over. There are few in any occupation who would not respond to the opportunity to improve their lot when that opportunity appears. It is not selfishness; it is economic sense. However, money, as represented by personal income, is not always the prime factor. Money, as represented by investment in the school buildings and equipment, plays an important part in a teacher's decision to move or stay. The same person who responds to the opportunity to improve his income also considers the conditions under which he may receive that income. Moving to another city or another part of the country may change a person's mind about changing his job. He inquires about the prospective new home community, its economic status, its schools, its churches, its civic activity and so on. A teacher is influenced, too, by the conditions where he or she works. A well-equipped school is worth more to the conscientious teacher than more money in his pocket, generally speaking.

Considering these factors as they influence the make-up of the school faculty, it is evident that it requires patience and cooperation on the part of everyone to improve school conditions. It must be a general effort, not spotty or one-sided. It is expected that a teacher will consider the nature of his occupation and its importance to society in making his decisions concerning a change. Teaching is a sacrificial occupation and must remain so to bring the greatest benefit to everyone. Teachers must remember that fact. But the school patron must be wary lest he ask a greater sacrifice than is justified. Teachers should be seen in the community in which they work; patrons should be seen in the school which they are responsible for. If teachers are to be a part of the community, there must be something to draw them and keep them, primarily good housing and public recognition of their station in the community by consideration of teacher income and school equipment. In the Riverdale area, there are both lacks of either.



The other end of the shower room: a broken mirror, large space-consuming lockers unsuited for physical education class needs.

Elementary students are served in the cafeteria which is well-equipped, bright and apparently sufficient for existing needs.

Upper grade students are served through a doorday from the "kitchen." Often eat in a classroom. The cafeteria is operated as efficiently as possible under existing conditions.

Comets Pull Upset; Take 'Tune-up' Thriller From Undefeated Albion

"V-I—V-I—V-I-C-T——T-O—T-O—T-O-R-Y--" filled the air Tuesday night at Waterloo as Riverdale fans let everyone know their team had won.

In what was supposed to be Albion's "tune-up" game for a big clash with Churubusco on Friday of this week, the Riverdale Comets turned the tables and scored a thrilling 70-66 upset win over the Albion five. It was a tremendous team victory with the Comets relying on the starting five except for brief relief work by Jerry Dowden. The five starters all scored in double figures. Their accuracy at the free throw line helped to overcome the field goal advantage held by Albion. Albion scored 29 fielders to the Comets 25; but the latter had 20 charity points to only 8 for their opponents.

Albion's record going into Tuesday night's encounter was 12 won , none lost.

After the Riverdale reserves dropped a 56-40 game, the varsity fell behind 13-6 midway thru the first quarter. Riverdale began pressing and overcame the Albion lead in the last minute of the quarter on a Gerry Heyman free throw. Clarence Bry got another 2 points on a rebound as the quarter ended, 19-16 Riverdale.

The second period saw the lead see-saw back and forth, the Comets leading by 2, then a tie, then another lead by 2, then a tie, then an Albion 2-point lead, then a tie, then another Albion lead. The Comets seemed to tire a little toward the end of the quarter and Albion led 36-30 at the half.

The Comets pressed again in the third period and pulled to a 41-40 score. They were hurt by a couple of missed lay-ups after brilliant defensive work. Albion led 45-42, 49-44, before the third period score of 51-49 was posted.

Albion scored 6 straight points to open the final period and it appeared the Comets were through. But Bry got a 3-pointer, Gerry Heyman got 2 quick fielders to make it 60-56. Then Jerry Vinson made what possibly was the game breaking play as Albion came down the floor in a rush and took a shot. Vinson leaped high on the run, batted the ball against the backboards. The Comets retrieved the ball and scored as Ronnie Smith pushed in a rebound. He was fouled and scored a free throw. Thereafter things rolled the Comets' way. Dowden-to-Vinson scored a fielder for a 61-60 lead at the 3:18 mark. Bry got a lay-up, Gerry Heyman got a fielder and 3 free throws, Bry 2 free throws and Smith and Dowden a free throw each to complete the scoring in a hectic final three-minute session.

Friday night it was a case of cold weather and cold shooting as the Comets dropped a 56-53 overtime game to Ashley. Numerous shots just wouldn't go in.

COMET CNIPTIONS— They'll be talking about that win over Albion for a long time. It was perhaps the Comets' best effort in the past two years as far as concentrated "never-say-die" playing is concerned. —It is impossible to pick out an individual star from the game; there were six of them. —Ronnie Smith went high in the air for a 2-point rebound in the first quarter.—The Comet press back-fired once when Albion broke two men loose under the basket. But Coach Brookfield continued the press and the boys went ahead despite an alert Albion defense which time after time exploded down the floor on fast breaks as they gained possession of the ball. They had several 2-on-1 and 3-on-1 plays going throughout the game.—Jerry Heyman turned in an outstanding performance and contributed 11 big points—The ref missed an Albion player's dragging foot and they scored on the next shot.—Teamwork was the word, with Dowden passing off to Vinson for the lead which Albion didn't overcome; the Heyman brothers lured Albion's defense under the basket as they dribbled under, only to pass out to an open mate for a shot.—Vinson again showed his defensive ability, peaked by that blocked shot that the Comets turned into a field goal. He scored 10 points. — Pressure-packed were those free throws in the last 2 or 3 minutes. —The Riverdale band sounded good, the boys had a warm-up ball painted green and white for extra color and the breaks went our way to make it Riverdale's night.

Blankets For Relief Jan. 24

An emergency appeal is being made to DeKalb County churches for blankets and quilts for millions of refugees and disaster victims in all parts of the world. W.R.A.P. (World Refugee Action Program) is the blanket appeal of the Church World Service. The "Share Blankets—Save Brothers" project will be carried out this coming Sunday, January 24, when church members will bring clean blankets and quilts along with 25 cents for each blanket to their worship services. The blankets will be then taken to one of several collection centers to be forwarded by air to the emergency areas. The 25 cents is to cover handling costs. The suggested goal is one blanket per family.

All families are urged to cooperate in bringing a blanket and a quarter to church Sunday to help bring warmth and comfort to the world's refugees.

The Spencerville Community Club is planning a roller skating party for Saturday evening, January 23.

The party will be held in the Community Building at Spencerville from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Admission will be 25 cents per person.

Those atending must furnish their own skates, and the skates must have wood or plastic wheels.

The public is invited to attend.

Committee Inspects Schools; To Report At PTA Tuesday

The Indiana Optometric Association of Bloomington, located on the Indiana University campus, will present the program for the January 26 meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. The meeting will be held next Tuesday evening, January 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Alvin G. Whiteleather of Fort Wayne who will elaborate on the program of sight conservation for Indiana youth.

Current developments in the field of sight conservation, related particularly to students in Indiana schools, will be included in the presentation. A bill was passed by the 1959 state legislature which requires vision screening in schools. Riverdale has already benefitted from vision screening in the past year and a half with the inauguration of the office of county school nurse, thru whose efforts approximately 10 per cent of the grade school enrollment were found to require sight assistance.

Merrill Allen, an official in the state optometric organization, has stated that the figure should be around 22 per cent, the higher percentage derived from extended examinations which disclose sight impairments not ordinarily found in the primary vision tests.

Mrs. Margaret Bacon will describe the remedial reading program at the elementary grade level. The special aid to students helps to prevent dropping behind in all studies due to a need for help in reading. Since any course of study requires reading, it is important that this basic element be mastered in order to bring success in other studies.

Of particular interest will be a report by a recently-appointed Building and Property Committee to serve the P.T.A. The committee was appointed by the P.T.A. officers due to public response to recent publicity concerning the Riverdale school system.

The committee's first function was conducting a tour of inspection of the school buildings at Spencerville and Saint Joe. Co-chairmen of the committee are Mrs. Charles Cole and Mrs. Robert Davis. Those who toured the buildings Saturday morning were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Fields, Mrs. Harry Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, Mrs. Hal Elzea and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn. The group represented near 100 per cent response to committee appointments. The school board was invited to accompany the group but was not represented at the tour. Theron Foltz conducted the group through the grade building and Mr. Joe Smith, principal, led the group through the upper grade buildings.

Members of the committee took notes as they toured the buildings and a composite report will be presented by the committee at Tuesday's meeting.

Riverdale patrons are invited to attend.

Curriculum Committee

The DeKalb County School Re-organization Committee has completed appointments to the Curriculum Committee, headed by Ross Tipton, superintendent of Auburn city schools.

The 28 members of the committee include: Howard Hill and Joe Smith, Riverdale; Willis Reinoehl, Corunna; Hazel Scattergood, Auburn; Rose Poer, Corunna; Laurel Carper, Auburn; Clarence Dirrim, Butler; Charlotte McClellan, Butler; Phyllis Gratz, Auburn; Mrs. Joy Emrick, Auburn; Warren Sunday, Auburn; Virgil Hagerty, Auburn; Clarence Bowers, Waterloo; Ernest Zeller, Butler; Jack Lowe, Butler; Ross Elm, Butler; Tarus Gotch, Butler; Lloyd Miller, Auburn; Roger Hess, Auburn; Charles Overmeyer, Waterloo; Edward Barton, Waterloo; Urban Steckler, Waterloo; E. V. Minnear, Garrett; Cale Hudson, Garrett; Ralph Manrow, Garrett; Harold Dannenberg, Garrett; Fred Fredericks, Ashley; Mrs. Richard Buchbill, R3, Auburn.

This committee will make a complete study of the courses offered by the schools in DeKalb County. They will then try to set up a schedule of studies for the schools to follow. This will be a complete offering of courses including science, math and languages not now available in some of the high schools.

The re-organization board held its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday of last week in Auburn. Reports were given by the committee chairmen.

Dr. Darrell Miller, chairman of the board, pointed out that the committee is progressing almost two months ahead of his projected schedule.

Anniversaries

January 17, 1960, marked a happy day for a DeKalb County couple who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at the Mt. Pleasant E. U. B. Church. A host of friends and relatives came from far and near to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Praul on this happy occasion. Their son, Lloyd, played an important part in the day, making the past and present a memory to be cherished.

As the 3:00 o'clock hour approached, Mrs. Ercil Moore played two piano favorites of the couple, followed by words of congratulations by Walter Reinhart in behalf of the church and friends.

Rev. Casterline, pastor of the church, then presented to Gene and Zora a lighted sacred picture from the church. There followed a few well-chosen words and prayer by a former pastor, Rev. Albert Swenson of Wilshire, Ohio.

Refreshments were served to 275 guests. Those who assisted with the celebration were Mayola Walter who baked the cake; Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fry, Mrs. Maurice Curry and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Walter, assisting in the serving.

Guests were greeted by Lloyd Praul, assisted by Walter Reinhart. Gifts were opened and taken care of by Gertrude Reinhart.

The Praul family extended its appreciation and thanks to all who brought gifts and who sent cards of congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Hart will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday, January 24, at their home near Saint Joe and State Road 101. They would be pleased to have their many friends call at open house from 2 until 5 p.m.

The couple has three children, Berniece Wilder, Karl Hart and Alice Kagey, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart were both born near Saint Joe and have lived here all their lives. They have enjoyed many winters in Port Richey, Florida.

Mr. Hart is a former school teacher, having taught 25½ years. After retiring from teaching he was operator of Hart's Nursery.

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE

Chevy's new torsion springs and Sturdi-Bilt design are changing everybody's ideas about how much work a truck can do. Last year's schedules are out—Chevrolet trucks ride faster over the rough runs to get in more trips a day! Big repair bills are no longer a problem—Chevrolet trucks soak up punishment that means downtime to other makes! And trade-in time's put off for extra thousands of miles—'60 Chevrolet trucks stay new like never before!

New Dollar-Saving Prices
Step-Vans, 4-Wheel Drives, many light-duty models with automatic transmissions—all are lower priced. Prices have also been reduced on all optional V8's.

New Torsion-Spring Suspension
Eliminates I-beam shimmy and wheel fight! With torsion springs up front there's a brand-new, smoother, easier handling feel behind the wheel. New rear suspensions include wide-based coil springs in most light-duty models; tougher variable-rate leaf springs in medium- and heavy-duty models.

Electronically Balanced Wheels
Front wheels and tires are balanced at the factory. Helps make that new ride revolutionary!

New Cabs—Wider, Safer, More Comfortable
Many models are a whole 7 inches lower (without sacrificing road clearance), so it's easier to hop in and out of cabs. Still there's more space inside: more room for hats and hips, more foot room with suspended pedals. Cabs are safer, too; new build makes them 67% more rigid.

Plus Improvements All Through the Line
A new steering linkage system that cuts vibration, means better control. There's new V8 efficiency. Sixes long famous for saving. New key-turn starting. Higher, wider visibility. Talk to your Chevrolet dealer about the world's most advanced trucks.

Comets Pull Another Upset, Win In Overtime; Coach Recognized

"Blast those Comets out of orbit!" read the sign in the Avilla gym Friday night. And it appeared that the Riverdale five were being blasted out of orbit as the final quarter progressed. They trailed Avilla by 10 points, 46-36, with 6:09 remaining in the game.

Then Ronnie Smith began pumping in fielders with deadly accuracy to spark his mates into a final surge and the Comets pulled up to a tie at 57-all as regulation time ran out. Smith scored 5 field goals in the final quarter, then came on with the game winning basket in the overtime. Clarence Bry scored the tying basket as regulation time ran out as he feinted the opposition into the air then jumped up to score a field goal.

Riverdale opened strong, led by Jerry Heyman who had 4 field goals in the first quarter. Avilla was having trouble with their basket, at one time attempting a half dozen or so rebounds with none rolling in. They controlled offensive and defensive rebounding to a great extent. Bry had 2 field goals from underneath the basket, the same type as his game tying effort in the last seconds of the game. The first quarter score was 16-10 Riverdale.

Riverdale continued to hold the lead through half of the second quarter. Riverdale's teamwork was emphasized by a steal by Gerry Heyman who passed to Jerry Vinson for a sparkling lay-up and 2 points. Then Avilla's big center scored 2 quick baskets as he was able to rebound at will and Avilla went ahead at the half, 26-25.

Using fast breaks Avilla raced to a 38-30 lead midway thru the third quarter as Riverdale lost its steam. Vinson was on the bench for the entire quarter due to his fourth foul at the close of the first half. The quarter ended at 44-36 Avilla.

With a few of the officials' calls obviously upsetting the Comets, Avilla pulled out to its 46-36 lead with 6:09 to go. Vinson was back in the game for the last quarter. The basket which had been Avilla's jinx in the first half now became Riverdale's jinx with several shots rolling off. Smith then began his cool sniping and the Comets began rolling again. They were still trailing 52-45 with 3:29 to go, and trailed by 5 points with only 1:17 left in the game. With the score then 57-53 and 0:47 to go, Jerry Heyman sank 2 crucial free throws. Avilla lost possession with 0:40 to go and Riverdale kept possession up to Bry's game-tying basket.

Avilla got the tip as the overtime opened and kept possession for a minute and 32 seconds. Riverdale got the rebound on an Avilla shot and Gerry Heyman was fouled. He missed the charity toss but Brother Jerry scored a fielder. Gerry was fouled again and this time he scored to make it 60-57 Riverdale. Avilla scored a basket to make it 60-59 and one of their players fouled Vinson with only 0:18 remaining in the game. Vinson missed and Avilla rebounded and went down the floor for a shot. Smith fouled and Avilla scored on the second free throw. The score was 60-all. Riverdale called time out; there were 10 seconds to go. As play resumed Vinson's shot rolled off. Smith grabbed a rebound, leaped in the air for his familiar jump shot and scored. Before Avilla could get the ball in play time ran out and the jubilant Comets remained "in orbit."

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves lost their game 42-36, trailing thru most of it by 6 or 7 points.—Jerry and Gerry Heyman seem to trade hot streaks. When one is hot to start the game, the other hits his stride late in the game which makes a good combination. Jerry was hitting from the side in the first quarter against Avilla.—Bry had only 3 fielders but they were big ones. Two came in the first quarter right under the basket. He has the knack of getting right under, then faking and feinting the opposition into the air or off balance before he himself goes up for a shot, sort of a cat-and-mouse affair. Of course, the big one was the one that tied the game, again coming from under the basket.—The one basket seemed to have an invisible lid over it as both teams missed rebounds in both halves.—Avilla exploded for fast breaks time after time and this brought their commanding lead.—Jerry Dowden played the third quarter as Vinson was riding with 4 fouls, and he found the opposition up on their toes. Albion also was a fast-breaking team the previous Tuesday but the Comets cooled them off.—The Comets got 2 points on a shot that rolled off. It was allowed when Avilla hit the net as they rebounded, bringing an interference call.—A few calls apparently upset the Comets, one of the calls taking away Gerry Heyman's fielder but giving him a free throw. It looked as if he was fouled in the act of shooting. — Smith was cool as a cucumber as he began pumping in those fourth quarter fielders. He was stopped temporarily as he was called for offensive charging.

—Though Avilla controlled the rebounding to a great extent, the Comets fortunately got their rebounds at the right time.—This was another victory to chalk up to the credit of teamwork. And, coupled with the win over Albion, the Avilla defeat brought the distinction of being chosen "coach of the week" to Price Brookfield. The honor was given by the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel in the Wednesday edition of that paper. —The patience of the coach in working with some of the boys who are inclined to let their tempers get the best of them has paid off, at least in the last two games. The Comets are a completely different team when they display an attitude such as displayed against Albion and Avilla, except for those moments in the latter game when they let up because of disagreement with the officials. And when they responded to the spark furnished by a cool-headed teammate, they proved that it is possible to overcome the size of their opposition by their own determination.

100 Attend PTA Meeting

Approximately 100 Riverdale patrons were on hand Tuesday evening for the January meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. at the high school gym.

Dr. Elvan Whiteleather of Fort Wayne spoke to the group about the necessity of providing for good vision for the students in the school and related this to their ability to learn in all types of study. He pointed out the need for examinations periodically to allow for physical growth and other changes which might bring an impairment of vision. It was noted that in a school survey elsewhere, it was found that one out of every four pupils required corrective assistance to improve their vision. He commended the school for its remedial reading program and pointed out that its success was governed to a great extent by the ability of the student to see.

Dr. Whiteleather is immediate past president of the Northeastern Indiana Optometric Society, Northern Region Trustee and executive board member of the Indiana Optometric Association, a representative of the Optometry Division Speakers Bureau of Indiana University and student counselor for the Fort Wayne area in the field of optometry.

Mrs. Margaret Bacon showed the methods used in the remedial reading program of the elementary school. The several booklets used were passed among the group for inspection. Mrs. Bacon told of the students' interest in the work in which they read a portion of a story, then read the conclusion, then as questions enter their minds about the story they read it in its entirety, answering the questions at the end and then correcting their own work. The program has been received by the students with enthusiasm, Mrs. Bacon said.

Mrs. Robert Davis gave a report compiled by the Building and Property Committee in which 15 Riverdale patrons presented their observations gathered from a recent tour of the school. The report reflected a general desire to make improvements. The report prompted questions from some of those present concerning discipline, responsibility for various items of school upkeep and fire safety. The president of the school board, Dick Crow, then announced that the board had made application for approval of construction of a new school building. He pointed out that the matter of a fire escape at the grade building was delayed because of conflicting recommendations made by the state inspection department. As soon as the matter is clarified, a fire escape is to be provided. This was a matter of great concern to many parents. Mr. Crow then in effect questioned the status of the Building and Property Committee, whether or not they were members of the P. T.A. It was brought out that there are only around 35 families with the status of paid memebrs of the organization. The president, Ted Haberkorn, pointed out that a dollar membership fee is a technicality, that a patron has the privilege of expressing himself whether or not he has paid the dollar P.T.A. fee. He also expressed the opinion that every Riverdale patron is, in effect, a member of the P. T.A.

Another member of the board, John Mason, asked that some of the good things about the school be remembered rather than only things to criticize. After other expressions of opinion by patrons of the school, the meeting was closed with the suggestion by the president that patrons address the questions in person to those school officials who were present. Many of those present remained after the meeting to discuss the situation in informal groups.

One thought expressed by a mother during the meeting brought a spontaneous round of applause. She said that rather than criticize the teachers all the time about the lack of discipline, "we parents should remember that maybe we are at fault ourselves at home and are not keeping discipline ourselves."

The question of whether or not to sponsor a carnival and supper was resolved by the appointment of a committee which will determine if and when the carnival-supper is to be held. The Senior Class has asked permission to sponsor the event if the P.T.A. does not undertake it.

The next meeting of the P. T.A. will be held on February 23, the fourth Tuesday of the month. The change of date from the third Tuesday is necessary because of a basketball game. Rev. Kaye M. Glaesner of Springfield, Ohio, will be the guest speaker with the challenging address, "They Practice What We Preach."

Want Hospital Study

A crowd of around 100 persons attended the meeting of the county commissioners Monday morning when the subject of the possibility of the appointment of a special board to study the county hospital situation was discussed.

Charles Overmeyer of Waterloo, elementary principal of Auburn and an officer of the DeKalb County Non-Profit Hospital organization, was given permission to speak.

Mr. Overmeyer asked that the commissioners pass a resolution establishing a three-commissioner plus eight lay-person county committee to study the hospital situation. The committee would actually be appointed by the circuit court, but this would be done at the request of the commissioners. The group present at the meeting represented DeKalb County citizens interested in the hospital study.

Mr. Overmeyer stressed that the group was not asking for authorization of a county hospital but merely the establishment of a study commission. The DeKalb County auditor now has on file petitions signed by over 2,500 DeKalb County property owners for such such action.

Also speaking in behalf of the group were Glenn Rieke, John Linton, Dr. E. E. Rogers, Wayne Voss, R. C. McPherson and C. J. Maxton.

Lions Purchase Slide For Park

With many Saint Joe merchants and area residents already committed to furnish items needed in the park, the Saint Joe Lions Club Monday gave a big boost in the providing of park equipment by voting to provide a slide at an approximate cost of $300. The action was taken at a meeting of the board of directors.

A list of items for the park includes picnic tables, outdoor grills, foot bridges, playground equipment, etc., and the Lions action is the latest in public subscription for park facilities.

Felling of trees at the Saint Joe park site is continuing in preparation for anticipated use of the park by the general public during the summer season of 1960.

Last Saturday morning four members of the Booster Club, Roy Bowser, Bill Hurni, Bud Shockley and Frank Sechler, wielded axes on the north bank of the creek which runs through the park. Cooperation has been received from the county in the removal of dead elm along the edge of the park. The felled trees are now being cut up.

Anyone in the community interested in helping with the park work is invited to be on hand Saturday, January 30, when another work day is scheduled. Morning work hours are scheduled for 9:00 a. m. to noon; afternoon hours will be 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Volunteers might bring an axe, brush hook, hatchet, rake or anything that might be used to clear trees and brush

Public Helps Town Board Off To Good Start

The town board of Saint Joe met Monday evening and was surprised and happy with the appearance of some eight or nine visitors with business of one sort or another to discuss.

A lengthy discussion was held about the problem of drainage in connection with the installation of curbs along the main street. Also in for a major portion of the meeting was consideration of park expenditures and purchase of equipment for town needs.

The board voted to make full payment of the balance due on park property. The site was purchased on a 10-year lease with option to buy at any time during the lease period.

Mr. William Nimmo of Indiana-Michigan Electric Co. was present and he was given a request by the board for installation of a third street light on Hart Street.

Discussion was also held on two perpetual problems: the town dump and stray dogs. The board plans action on the two problems.

Though the board met for a four-hour session, from 7:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., the members were pleased with the public interest shown by the appearance of so many visitors. One member voiced the hope that townspeople will continue to attend meetings and express their views about town affairs.

Comets Lose

The Comets traveled to Antwerp, Ohio, Saturday and were knocked from the pinnacle of success they had reached in their two previous games with wins over Albion and Avilla.

Playing on a small floor and without the services of two of the starting five, the Comets lost 54-40.

The Comet reserves won their game, however, by a 33-27 score.

Park Work Progressing

Several new faces appeared at the park site last Saturday to help in the clearing work which is still in progress. And another work day at the park is set for next Saturday, from 9:00 a.m. to noon and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

Frank Sechler, who has been a busy man in the past several weeks promoting park work and related matters reported that Lloyd Dunten, Cy Kline, Paul Moore, Ron Robinson, Eustacio "Gus" Padron, Jim Musser and Bob and Don Sechler were on hand last Saturday to assist the ones who have busy on the park in recent weeks. Frank says, "Any age group can work, because if you can't swing an axe you can pull away the brush as someone else cuts it. Boys can get expert tree identification points from Bill Hurni. Roy Bowser can also be classified as an expert, on axemanship. Both men have been constantly on the job the last two Saturdays."

An invitation stands for men and boys in the community to help out for a couple of hours or so Saturday.

"It's good for you and the park and the community," says Mr. Sechler.

Skaters must have their own wood or plastic wheeled skates.

The club will sponsor a record hop Friday night, February 5, from 10:00 p.m. to midnight, following the Riverdale basketball game. Admission will be 20 cents per person.

The action came following the appearance last week of a group of citizens asking that such action be taken. The resolution was passed Friday.

Judge Harold Stump will now appoint an eight man committee to serve with the commissioners for the study.

No action on a hospital will be taken until a full report is made on whether or not a majority of the county residents want a hospital, the need, the most suitable location and the initial cost and future operating costs.

INDIANA MOVES FORWARD—A study of Indiana's economic growth since 1939 shows the Hoosier state moving forward at a substantially faster pace than the rest of the country. The above charts are from a report, "20 Years of Hoosier Progress," prepared by the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce. The charts compare Indiana's economic record with that of the United States on percentages of gains from 1939 to the latest dates for which data were available. Indiana gained 462 per cent in total personal income as compared with a national gain of 414 per cent; the state's retail sales were up 430 per cent as compared with 407 per cent for the nation, and total wages and salaries in Indiana advanced 434 per cent as against a national gain of 417 per cent.

School Reorganization Effects Termed 'Revolutionary'

(The DeKalb County School Reorganization Committee has made available a series of articles, written by David G. Watson (Indianapolis Star) as a means of informing citizens of this area of the changes to be seen with the re-organization of schools. The information contained therein is presented here for the benefit of News readers.)

SCHOOLS FACE REVOLUTIONARY CHANGE

More than two-thrds of Indiana's nearly 1,000 public school systems are scheduled for oblivion.

They will go within the next decade, and more likely within the next four years, one of the state's key education researchers estimates.

Most authorities agree that it will be the most revolutionary development in school administration in the last 100 years. They also regard it as one of the most desirable.

The Indiana General Assembly agrees. Early in 1959 it passed the law which made the revolution possible. It is called the School Corporation Reorganization Act.

With this tool provided by the legislature, weak school systems may be merged with the strong, the rich with the poor, and the districts may be better divided and arranged for the convenience of pupils, their teachers and those who foot the bills -- the taxpayers.

As envisioned by leaders in education, small high schools should be able to broaden courses of study; teachers concentrate on subjects for which they are trained, and new schools should be easier to pay for.

While the cost of education per pupil should go down in the merged systems, that does not mean the total cost of education also will drop. In fact, it probably will cost more.

But Dr. Clarence A. Pound, chairman of Purdue University's education administration division, said there is no doubt the taxpayers will get more in return for every dollar they spend.

These are objectives outlined by directors of the reorganization movement. They admit a big selling job is yet to be done.

This re-examination of local school administrations will affect every resident of Indiana. To give it a "grass roots" flavor the legislature set it up to be carried out by citizens committees in every county.

The committees have been appointed by circuit court judges and now are responsible to a State Commission on the reorganization of School corporations.

The movement is on and the problems are in bloom. They were not unexpected.

"There is considerable resistance to the proposition of reorganizing school corporations," said David R. Davis, chairman of the state commission. "There are many factors which contribute to this resistance.

"In some communities the attitude boils down to this: 'I went to school here; my parents went to school here; we have done well and there is no reason why our children should not do as well as we have.' "

In some districts, parents oppose a merged school system because they might lose a school band; a basketball team might lose its identity; a rich community might balk at sharing its wealth with a poor neighbor.

Some communities exist only because they have grown up around a school. People in them fear consolidation as the first step in a decline through loss of identity with the school.

These differences are minor only to those not faced with the task of resolving them.

Apart from community resistance expected in some areas, at least token opposition is due from township trustees who sense loss of patronage, and a few bus drivers who sense a decline in jobs.

These forces have been strong enough to stop consolidation movements dead in past sessions of the legislature.

Research done by the education division of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce discloses the resistance to any swift change in an educational system.

When the state Constitution was adopted in 1816, the need was for schools in settled areas and within walking distance for the pupils.

As a result, the area school system was established and the management of schools set up on the basis of attendance districts. Supervision was vested in district trustees.

The system was not mandatory. It was not invoked in many sections of the state and thousands of children were left without a chance for schooling.

There was no change until 1852, following adoption of the second Constitution in 1851. With a constitutional mandate to provide a uniform system of public schools avalable to all, state authorities abolished the district system as an administrative unit and replaced it with the township unit. Cities and towns also were being authorized to set up schools inedependent of the townships.

Township school boards operated the township schools for seven years, but in 1859 the powers of the boards were shifted to civil township trustees.

In the following 100 years the Legislature passed a few laws allowing consolidation and creation of township school boards. But the law passed in 1959 is the first to provide for a systematic, comprehensive reorganization of all school administration.

It means the finish for township trustees and one-man operators of school systems.

CUTBACK TO 300 SCHOOL SYSTEMS SEEN IN 4 YEARS

Indiana has 970 separate school systems with a total enrollment of 881,621 pupils in grades 1 through 12.

Within the next four years the enrollment may climb, but 670 to 720 school systems will disappear.

"I'm foolish for doing this," said Dr. Pound, "but I will make this estimate. I think we will have only 250 to 300 school systems actually in operation within the next four years."

Dr. Pound, an authority on public school administration, said he expects the reduction because of the big reorganization and consolidaton movement authorized by the 1959 General Assembly. He also bases his estimate on consolidation surveys he has made in the past.

County committees throughout the state are now working on master plans for the overhaul of local school administration where needed. They will submit the plans to state officials for approval.

Most approved reorganizations will involve consolidations of schools or merger of school districts.

While the reorganization movement is considered one of the milestones in the last century of Indiana public school education, consolidation is not new in the state. But it is just now gaining acceptance.

"We are beginning to get the idea across," Dr. Pound said. "A new idea in education requires about a generation to simmer down and become accepted. We have done better with consolidation. It has taken only about 12 years.

"One stimulus to acceptance is the obsolescence of school buildings. Before the war we didn't have money to build them. Then the war came and we had the money, but no materials," he said.

Some township school systems have recognized the advantage of joining forces to pool resources for construction. But the movement has been spotty.

The pattern has shaped up in this manner:

There were 1,062 school systems in the peak year, 1955, although there were only 1,033 in 1852.

In 1933 there was only one consolidation and before 1947 the state had only four reorganized, or consolidated districts, Dr. Pound said. Since then there have been 154, and within the last year there have been 29.

All told, there have been reorganization or consolidations in 79 counties, leaving only 13 counties without some sort of merger. In 1948 only two school corporations asked for surveys and recommendations on possible consolidation. In the 1958-59 school year, 30 requests for surveys were made to Purdue alone. Surveys also are made by Indiana University and the state teachers' colleges.

"It seems to me this indicates a recognition of the need on the part of the people," Dr. Pound said. "In recent years there has been a great concern about the quality of education -- and we can well ask the question, how good an education can a small school system provide?"

Dr. Pound said national surveys show that a school system must have 1,500 pupils in grades 1 through 12 to provide an adequate, well-rounded education.

He pointed out that counties without reorganization or consolidations generally are the more wealthy ones, with the highest amount of assessed property valuation backing up each child in school.

However, this does not always follow. Marion County has five metropolitan school systems within its townships.

The state average of assessed valuation behind each pupil is $7,935. It runs as low as $500.

Counties without consolidation or reorganization to date and their valuations include Benton $17,600; Boone $8,800; Huntington $9,500; Jasper $9,200; Jennings $3,600; Johnson $6,000; Lawrence $5,000; Perry $3,700; Pike $6,300; Rush $10,700; Vermillion $6,300; White $10,500; Crawford $3,000.

The 1959 reorganization law is broad in scope. It will allow reorganization of township schools into a metropolitan school district, merger of township and city schools, township with township schools and the merger of schools in one county with those of another. It also permits creation of county-wide systems in which no city or town operates a school.

There are now three county systems in Indiana, including Floyd, Brown and Ohio counties. Brown was organized in 1949 and Floyd and Ohio in 1956.

There are 10 school systems composed of school units merged across county lines. These include Clay-Parke, Carroll-Clinton, Elkhart-Kosciousko, Fulton-Cass, Miami-Grant, Putnam-Owen, Dearborn-Ripley, Starke-Pulaski, Steuben-DeKalb and Franklin-Union.

Many township trustees, sincere in accepting their responsibilities for providing good education, have provided the leadership necessary in reorganizing and merging school systems, Dr. Pound said, despite the resistance displayed by some of their colleagues.

An example, he said, is Wabash County where five trustees proposed a merger based on recommendations contained in a Purdue University survey.

A new school corporation was formed, taking over administration from the offices of the trustees. The trustees, however, are serving together as an interim board of school commissioners until an election replaces them in the spring.

Under the direction of a superintendent the combined resources of each township can now be thrown behind all the schools and long range, orderly plans for uniform development can be made.

ALL SCHOOL CONSOLIDATIONS SUCCEED

Reorganization of school systems in Indiana has been 100 per cent successful so far, according to Dr. Pound. Many proposals to consolidate or reorganize a school unit have been rejected, he said, but once accepted they never have failed to work.

"A lot of these mergers come about simply because the individual units couldn't go it alone," Dr. Pound said. "By combining their resources they were able to provide a good school system. This is my guess and I think it is a fair conclusion."

In an effort to boost the quality of education and at the same time develop efficiency and economy in school operation, all types of systems have been merged. Many townships faced the paradox of overcrowded rooms in their elementary schools and too few pupils in their high schools.

Two years ago the National Commission of School District Reorganization published a report asserting that a school administrative system must have at least 1,500 pupils in grades 1 through 12 to offer an educational program with relative efficiency and economy.

This considers proper distribution of pupils in both elementary classrooms, now overcrowded in most systems, and the high schools, which have too few pupils. It also considers proper assignment of teachers in proportion to pupils and that part of educational costs assigned to teacher salaries.

In this light, economy does not necessarily mean less money for schools, Dr. Pound said, only that the taxpayer gets more for what he spends.

The move to get more for the money has brought unexpected alliances in past mergers, and some notable successes.

A recent Purdue survey has led to a recommendation for merger of Crown Point schools with those in three surrounding townships in Lake County. In view of this, the Lake County superintendent has asked the university for a survey of the rest of the townships and a recommendation on planning for their future.

A county-wide administration unit was recommended for Jennings County, replacing all others, and Dr. Pound estimates that the state eventually will have 20 such county-wide systems as compared to the three it now has.

Posey County is offered as an example of successful reorganization. A $1,250,000 junior and senior high school replaces four inadequate high schools there. Three new elementary schools eliminate use of all remaining one and two-room schools in the county.

These developments followed a 1956 recommendation by Purdue that two new school districts be created in the county. One was to be comprised of four townships and Mount Vernon, and the other of the five remaining townships.

provides facilities for 600 pupils in grades seven through 12, and has room for 150 more. It is located on a 40-acre site, near Poseyville, although only five acres had been recommended for use.

"This shows how enthusiasm can be installed in an area where there was friction," Dr. Pound said. "They had no kindergarten before; now they have one. All the buildings are wired for educational television. They have expanded the depth and breadth of their educational program."

Dr. Pound said this and similar developments in other systems should present strong arguments in favor of support of reorganization planning now underway throughout the state.

"It would have been humanly impossible to do any of this in each township alone," he said.

Another argument advanced in support of consolidation for efficiency is the problem of transferring pupils from one school system to another.

About two-thirds of the state's school systems operated both grade and high schools but the rest do not. Some administrative units operate no schools at all, transferring children to other townships. These are prime targets for consolidation with other systems.

"The biggest objection to the necessary change is the fear of what the outcome might be," Dr. Pound observed. "It is a basic part of human nature, the fear of the unnamed or the unknown."

Phone Service Area Extended

The Public Service Commission of Indiana has authorized the establishment of extended area service and extension of rate purpose classification in the Kendallville and Auburn exchange areas effective upon conversion to dial operation in mid-1961.

Indiana Bell was authorized to establish rural zone service for its Auburn, Spencerville and Kendallville exchange areas with flat rate zone charges for 1, 2 and 4-party service in place of the present mileage charge system. The company will eliminate 8-party rural service and 4-party service within the urban or base rate areas. Urban service will be 1 or 2-party service.

The PSC ordered the utility to reduce the 8-party rural and 4-party urban service within 90 days after conversion to dial operation.

Upon conversion to dial operation there will be no toll charges on calls between Auburn and the Spencerville exchange areas. Patrons will be able to dial direct on toll service approximately 35,000,000 of the nation's 70,000,000 telephones. Direct dial operation will also be available to many Canadian telephone exchanges.

Indiana Bell was also authorized to establish extended area service between the Auburn exchange and the Butler and Saint Joe exchange areas of General Telephone Co. when the latter is able to comply. The order includes authorization for extended area service between the Spencerville exchange area and the Leo, Harlan and Saint Joe exchange area of General Telephone; establishment of extended area service between the Kendallville exchange area and General's Albion exchange area.

The Church Father, Augustine, wrote of man's absolute need of God: "Thou hast created us for thyself, and our heart cannot rest, till it finds its rest in Thee." He had the courage to track down man's desire for fellowship to its ultimate source. Man must be related to what outlasts the passing parade of mere human existence. Around the Town

With the Editor

It seems significant that several sports columnists, and a small town newspaper editor here and there, have commented on the attitude and conduct of adult basketball fans in recent weeks. The gist of the articles is that there is much to be desired from the adults in serving as good examples for the younger generation.

I go along with those opinions. If we "can't take it" at a basketball game, it's no wonder there's a cold war or a hot war or a civil war or what have you going on all the time.

We talked about this quite a while in Sunday School class a couple of weeks ago, particularly about the griping over the referees when we lose and not a word about the referees when we win. If it's winning "the boys did it," if it's losing, "the referees did it." However, there were some of the young people who recognized the fact that Riverdale was getting the breaks in one of its upset wins.

To justify hollering at the referees, we often hear an old familiar saying, "It's the squeaky wheel that gets the grease." True.

But going on a little further, the continually squeaking wheel also often gets removed.

I'll venture to say that the Riverdale team has gained greater stature in the eyes of a good many fans more from their reformed attitude on the basketball court than from the wins they've achieved. A comment from one fan after one of Riverdale's upset wins went something like this—

"Even if they'd have been beaten by 20 points, I'd have been happy with the way they played ball."

I think a lot of others feel the same way. But a few loud voices can ruin the whole picture at the right time.

Rock Reinhart stopped in for a few minutes this week to say he likes the Navy life fine. After a furlough, he will be shipped out to Hawaii, the isle of the shimmering — — — — palms.

Cy Kline came in to help with park work the other day. He had his chain saw and was about to begin cutting.

"It's going that way," said Cy and he began sawing. Unfotunately the wind blew or something happened and the tree began going the other way, pinching Cy's saw fast.

"Gee whiz, Roy, why didn't you tell me it was going the other way," Cy said to Roy Bowser, and they then had to use pry blocks to get the saw loose. But everything turned out all right, the tree went down after the saw got loose and it wasn't too bad after all.

—That's what I hear.

Water Rate Hike Approved

The Public Service Commission has approved an increase in the water rates for customers served by the Saint Joe Waterworks. By the order the flat rate for residential customers increases from $1.85 per month to $2.50 per month. A raise in rates was requested last fall by the town board in order to meet rising costs of operation.

The municipal water works was constructed in 1946. The source of supply for 186 customers is one drilled well 133 feet deep. The well has an electrically driven turbine-type pumping unit on the well head which, after chlorination, pumps water into distribution mains with overflow going into a 40,000 gallon capacity elevated tank. The distribution system contains 18 fire hydrants.

In studying the financial condition of the system, the commission determined that the requested rate increases were not adequate. The schedule of rates ordered for the system, therefore, go beyond the original request by the town.

In addition to establishing new rates, the commission also ordered that the water works meter all commercial customers within 12 months of the January date of the order. At present there is but one metered customer.

The cost thus far in obtaining a new schedule of rates is $296.03, including accounting and engineering services and various fees.

The new rate schedule is as follows:

METERED RATES

First 2500 gal. per month, $1.00 per M.

Next 3500 gal. per month, 80c per M.

Next 4000 gal. per month, 60c per M.

Next 20,000 gal. per month, 50c per M.

All over 30,000 gal. per month, 30c per M.

MINIMUM CHARGES

Monthly minimum 5-8" meter, $2.50 for 2500 gal.

Monthly minimum 1" meter, $7.50.

1 1-2" meter, $15.00.

2" meter, 35.00.

4" meter, 60.00.

FLAT RATES

Residential customers $2.50 monthly.

Commercial customers (except school) until metered $3.50 monthly.

School until metered, $1.00 per pupil and other personnel per year.

FIRE HYDRANT RENTAL — $100.00 annually.

TAP CHARGE—per new customer, $50.00 per tap.

The original bonded indebtedness of the town to cover construction of the waterworks was $65,500.00 Present bonded indebtedness is approximately $51,000.00.

Estimated original cost of the plant is $67,500.00.

Car Demolished

David McCann, 16, of Saint Joe escaped injury Wednesday morning when his car skidded on slushy pavement and crashed into a telephone pole.

The accident occurred at 8:30 a.m. as Dave drove south on the blacktop road west of Saint Joe which runs from a T-intersection south to the school building at Spencerville. About a mile north of the school the car went into a skid, went into a ditch and hit the pole. The car was proceeding at a moderate speed due to the condition of the pavement.

The car was considered a total loss.

The sheriff's department investigated the accident.

Soloists, Quartet Rated 'Superior'

The district contest of the Northeastern Indiana Solo and ensemble competition was held Saturday at Harrison Hill School in Fort Wayne.

Included in the winners' lists were Merle Wagner, glockenspiel, Jerry Hudson, clarinet, and the clarinet quartet, Judy Furnish, Michele Davis, Danny Kessler and Mike Haberkorn of Riverdale.

The two soloists and the clarinet quartet received "superior" rating.

Comets Humble Harlan 69-59

Whatever offensive plans the Harlan Aces may have had as they took the floor against the Riverdale Comets Friday night were soon lost as the locals thoroughly confused their opposition with their defensive maneuvering and, at one time gained a lead of 20 points. The final score was 69-59 as Harlan outscored the Comets 20-10 in the final period when some of the Comet starting five were temporarily removed from the game for a well-deserved rest.

Though there were three big guns in the scoring column, the game was another team win with five boys combining to display one of the most effective all court presses seen for a long time. Riverdale players were continually stealing the ball, and the Comets' dropping off two men on Harlan's big center demoralized the Aces from the start, tho' he did end up with 15 points.

Ronnie Smith, after missing the Antwerp game due to a death in the family, took up where he left off in the previous game, bombing the Aces with 4 field goals in the first quarter all from the right corner. Jerry Vinson hit a fielder at the horn to give Riverdale a 19-17 first quarter lead.

Then in the second quarter the Comets reeled off a bunch of interceptions, two of which resulted in Vinson-to-Smith field goals as the former dribbled in for an apparent shot, drew his defensive man and Smith's to him, then shot a quick pass to Ronnie for an open shot. Vinson got in on scoring with two quick lay-ups toward the end of the second quarter. And there were more Comet interceptions.

The breaks were going for Riverdale in the third period as play was a little rugged. But they continued to befuddle Harlan and were helped by the benching of the Harlan center midway thru the third quarter as he picked up his fourth foul. He returned to action later. Gerry Heyman made a lay-up on a solo shot driving thru an army of Harlan defenders, one of his 5 fielders for the night; he also dropped in 8 free throws.

Then there was another Vinson-to-Smith draw for a basket and Vinson under his basket in a sea of blue-shirted Aces whom he outmaneuvered for a fielder. Then Vinson again on a steal and a tremendous lay-up that left fans open-mouted in amazement and gave Riverdale its 20-point lead at 59-39.

With relief coming from the bench in the last quarter, the Comets' lead was cut. Jerry Dowden entered the game and hit a fielder, then suffered a cut which forced his removal from the game. Harlan's center fouled out at the beginning of a parade which saw the entire Harlan starting five foul out of the game. The last quarter dragged due to fouling and became rugged at times.

The reserves were defeated by Harlan 42-25.

COMET CNIPTIONS — This was another game with 5 stars, Clarence Bry, Jerry Heyman, Gerry Heyman, Jerry Vinson and Ronnie Smith. — There is a word for the teamwork and defensive work done last Friday - "spectacular." — The writer thought the Comets were going to get trimmed, just from an impression gained as the teams warmed up. That big center looked formidable and the Harlan team seemed to be "up" while the Comets were just calmly, almost casually, shooting baskets. How wrong could one be???? — As the game started, the Comets became the "up" team. And their first surprise was when Harlan's center got the ball for the first time and looked around to the basket for a shot - only he didn't have the ball anymore. Somebody stole it. And that was the story all night long. — The win probably helped Clarence Bry forget the first quarter. He drove in for two open lay-ups, and both shots rolled off. — Friday night was probably "THE night" thus far in Jerry Vinson's high school basketball career in teamwork, scoring and defense. — The Comets have "jelled" and the biggest help has been their own mental attitude. — "GO YOU COMETS!"

More On School Reorganization

(Consolidation has proved to be a highly effective way of solving financial, administrative and other practical problems involved in improving public school systems in Indiana. But what is the effect on teachers and pupils? This article, available thru the DeKalb County School Reorganization Committee, explores that angle of consolidation and was written by David G. Watson for the Indianapolis Star.)

Teachers have a big stake in the reorganization and consolidation of schools. But probably no bigger than that of their pupils. A line cannot be drawn between the two because neither exists without the other.

Benefits of the state-wide school system reorganization movement now under way should be great for both, said Robert H. Wyatt, executive secretary of the Indiana State Teachers Association. Wyatt and the association have long carried the banners for reorganization. They lost many battles, but won the war in the last session of the General Assembly when the reorganization law was passed.

"There obviously are going to be tremendous changes, and all for the good," Wyatt said. Greatest benefit will be to small high schools, although elementary schools will share in the gains. Part of the problem now is unbalanced distribution of pupils in grade and high schools, especially in school systems with low total enrollment.

"This amounts to robbery of the pupils," Wyatt said. "They are not getting the education to which they are entitled."

Poor distribution of pupils and teachers in school systems which can't afford a change leads to further troubles, according to Wyatt. Among them:

Too many emergency licenses for teachers in subjects for which they are not fully qualified.

Teachers with too many subjects, and too little time to prepare lessons.

Tendency of good teachers to avoid jobs in these systems.

Rigidly narrow courses of study.

Dr. Clarence A. Pound, Purdue University school researcher, estimates that up to 99 per cent of the emergency permits will be eliminated once the reorganized school systems are in full operation. There were 3,600 such permits issued last year.

This will follow, Pound and Wyatt agree, because there will be a more equal distribution of pupils among the small high schools in proportion to the elementary schools serving them. In turn, this will allow better distribution of teachers throughout the grades. These teachers will be able to devote more time to the subjects in which they are trained. They will be able to enrich their courses and the pupils will reap the benefits.

The 1959 legislature recognized this problem when it wrote into the reorganization law a ban against further construction of high schools which might have an enrollment of less than 120 pupils. Such schools are not rare.

A Teachers Association survey shows there are 290 schools in the state with less than 120 pupils enrolled. They are scattered in 75 counties. In only 17 counties do all high schools have enrollments of 120 pupils or more in grades 9 thru 12. There are 51 high schools with less than 60 enrollment, 124 with 61 to 90 and 115 with 91 to 119.

Schools in these categories will be focal points in the organization of new districts and deployment of staff, said Wyatt. Besides benefitting the pupils with broader and richer courses, staff supervision should be improved, upgrading teaching quality.

Progress of the state-wide reorganization does not necessarily mean that more jobs will be created for teachers, Wyatt said. On the other hand, it does not mean that many will be thrown out of work. In the long run it could mean that teachers will benefit by better salaries, especially in areas which cannot now afford the increases.

"There will be fewer teachers needed for the same number of pupils in the small high schools if there are consolidations," Wyatt said. "However, more would be needed to handle the crowded elementary schools serving the high schools."

The secretary said good high schools are not being operated with classes of 18 to 22 pupils per teacher. As the number decreases, the standards are more difficult to maintain in the school as a whole, Wyatt said, "and there are scads of them with 10 to 12 pupils per class."

Noted Clergyman To Speak Here

Advance notice is being given by the Riverdale P.T.A. of an exceptional program to be presented at the February 23 meeting of the organization.

Rev. Kay M. Glaesner, A.B. and B.D., pastor of St John's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Springfield, Ohio, will be the speaker for the evening. His topic will be, "They Practce What We Preach," a challenging address for all Americans.

In addition to serving as pastor of a 1700-member congregation, Rev. Glaesner sustains a mobilization assignment at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base as Major and is classified as Research and Developing Engineer. He is an authority in the field of antifriction bearings and in recognition of his technical and professional services, the United States Air Force awarded him the distinguished Legion of Merit award, which comparatively few men possess.

Rev. Glaesner has been active in civic projects and is at the present time President of the Board of Directors of the Springfield Child Guidance Clinic and is First Vice-President of the Ohio Mental Health Association. His activity in the field of mental health has received national recognition.

Rev. Glaesner's military experience has provided him opportunities of world travel. In recent years he has visited Europe, North Africa, the Orient and the Near East. In 1959 he was among the first 19 Americans to travel through Russia by motorcoach. He recently has traveled in the satellite nations of Poland and East Germany.

In addition to the scientific and humanitarian efforts, Rev. Glaesner has strengthened his congregation by many efforts through his ministry. More than 200 refugee families have been processed by his church. Recently he was awarded the George Washington Freedom Award by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio for an outstanding sermon in promoting the American Way of Life.

Ted Haberkorn, president of the P.T.A., said this week, "We are fortunate in being to able to present such an outstanding clergyman from our neighboring state. We invite the general public to attend the meeting February 23. I can promise that what we hear will give us all a great deal to think about."

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. and the public is especially invited to attend.

College Meeting

Local high school seniors interested in attending college have been invited by the Indiana University Alumni Club of Fort Wayne to a "Preview of I.U." meeting Thursday, February 18, at 8:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the Oak Room of the Hotel Van Orman.

Miles Gerberding, chairman of the meeting, has announced that parents of students and all I.U. alumni are also invited.

Coming from the Bloomington campus will be Max Skirvin, alumni field secretary, and Samuel E. Braden, Dean of Undergaduate Development.

Children's Choir

Mrs. Carlos Church, primary superintendent of St. Mark Lutheran Sunday school in Saint Joe, is organizing a children's choir for children in grades 1 thru 6. The first rehearsal for a season of eight weeks will be held Thursday evening, February 18, after school from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. The rehearsals will be held at the same time each week. The children will sing at services in the church Palm Sunday.

Pastor Ivan Miller will give instruction on the order of service. Mrs. Church, Mrs. Francis Sible, Mrs. Robert Richmond and Glenda Sible will be the leaders at each practice. Mrs. Frank Shull and Mrs. Forrest Bevington are serving as publicity committee.

The choir should be an important experience for each child. Parents are urged to cooperate for 100 per cent attendance. Any child in grades 1 thru 6 who does not have a regular church home is invited, too.

What is the Lutheran Teaching
ON SIN?

"Thou shalt have no other gods . . ." says Scripture. And the Catechism, "We should fear, love and trust in God above all things."

God gave man existence as a trust. Man embezzles it for his own purposes. That is sin.

Sin is not mere dirt on the outside; it's cancer on the inside. Sin is not mere pox on the skin; it is the disease itself — deep, organic, mortal — self-interest instead of God-interest.

Sin is indifference to God. Sin is fractional surrender to Him. Sin is egotism in His presence. Sin is the twisted mind that tries to throw its own merit or its own rights in His face.

Sin is the idolatry of self.

Before the Eternal Throne, man's crime is not merely blasphemy or robbery or murder. It is treason! Man resists his God, declares "independence" from his Creator, withholds himself from his Lord.

That is why St. Paul had to conclude, ". . . there is none good, no, not one."

That is why Our Lord could not say, "Ye shall work hard to be good," but rather, "Ye must be born again." That radical is the disease—that radical must be the cure. Nothing less than a re-birth.

Women Serve as Local Heart Chairmen

February is Heart Month.

The annual campaign for public donations for funds to carry on heart research is in progress over the nation and in DeKalb County. The drive will reach its climax on Heart Sunday, February 28, when over 1,500,000 volunteers in the United States call on their neighbors to collect for the Heart Fund.

Local chairmen are Mrs. Carlos Church of Saint Joe and Mrs. Merl Furnish of Spencerville.

Heart diseases are the nation's number one public enemy. They account for 54 per cent of all deaths in the United States. In the so-called producing years (below 65), they take more lives than the combined total of the next five leading causes of death.

Since 1948 more than $40,000,000 has been channeled into research to find ways of treating and preventing all forms of heart and blood vessel disease.

Long-term Heart Fund Study Helps Cardiac Farmers Stay on the Job

RESEARCH STUDIES to determine a safe workload for farmers with heart disease, now being carried forward at Purdue and Iowa Universities with Heart Fund support, indicate cardiacs may continue to work but should avoid peaks of strenuous labor. Above, apparatus measures energy needed to drive tractor. The 1960 Heart Fund campaign will reach its climax on Heart Sunday, February 28, with a nationwide residential collection in which more than 1,500,000 Heart Fund volunteers will participate.

The Saint Joe Lions Club entertained their Ladies Monday night at a meeting held at the Riverdale elementary cafeteria in Spencerville. Girls from the high school home ec department served the dinner under the guidance of Mrs. Frances Huddleston.

District Governor and Mrs. Paul Brumbaugh were guests of the local club for the meeting and the district governor gave a short talk following the dinner.

Hal Elzea, one of the members of the club, introduced himself as the program for the evening, then proceeded with a talk and demonstration on the art of assembling flowers for decorative table pieces. He made three floral displays and these were awarded as attendance prizes to Mrs. Forrest Bevington, Mrs. Orville Coburn and Mrs. William Staman.

As the meeting began, Mrs. Virgil Kimes distributed cards and pencils to the men with the announcement that they were to compose a poem during the meeting about their "Valentine" and the winner would receive a prize. At the end of the meeting the winning poem was selected by the applause of those present and the prize, a heart full of candy, was awarded to the visiting governor, Mr. Brumbaugh.

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE!

Compare this list of Chevy advances with the features ordinary trucks are still talking about. You'll see why Chevy trucks get more work done in a day... why they go extra thousands of miles before trade-in time. These Sturdi-Bilt Sixties aren't just new, they're a full scale revolution!

TORSION-SPRING RIDE

Each front wheel, suspended independently of the other, is free to step individually over bumps. And shockproof torsion springs up front soak up the jars and jolts before they reach the body. With three rugged new tailored-to-the-truck rear suspensions to further reduce road shocks, Chevy gives you the smoothest truck ride you've ever felt.

NO SHIMMY, NO WHEEL FIGHT

Drive a '60 Chevy. Just once. Right away you'll notice the absence of I-beam shimmy and wheel fight common on ordinary trucks.

With independent front suspension there's a brand-new, smoother, easier handling feel behind the wheel.

CABS FOR BIG GUYS

Big guys get a bigger break in a Chevy cab. There's plenty of space inside to stretch out and relax; more room for hats and hips, more room for wide shoulders and long legs. There's horizon-wide visibility through a windshield with 26% more glass area; a new see-at-a-glance instrument panel. Cabs are safer, too, up to 67% more rigid.

6'S SWORN TO SAVE

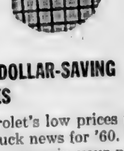
Chevy's 6-cylinder engines are set to squeeze extra miles out of every drop of fuel. They're long famous for low fuel consumption, high performance.

SHORT STROKE V8'S

Power-packed for peak performance, Chevy's husky V8's make child's play out of the toughest hauls. They have a mind tuned to economy, too, that keeps costs down, profits up.

SLICK NEW SUBURBAN CARRYALLS

These handsome new handy haulers "double in brass"—can transport eight passengers or up to 950 lbs. of payload. Rear and center seats are easy to remove and replace when necessary. For work or for pleasure, these double-duty beauties are best for both!



NEW DOLLAR-SAVING PRICES

Chevrolet's low prices make big truck news for '60. They mean money in your pocket on model after model. Step-Vans, 4-Wheel Drives, many light-duty models with automatic transmissions—all are lower priced. Also, prices have been reduced on all optional V8's.

SEE YOUR DEALER

It could be the most important visit you make in '60. When you've seen these new Chevies, you'll agree they're the world's most advanced trucks. Then drive one and find out why.

Park Work Day

One of the results of the current activity in preparing the local park site for summer use is the accumulation of a great deal of wood. Several trees have been felled in the land clearing and anyone needing wood to burn may have it for the cutting. There are several dead elm lying on park ground now. So, anyone with a saw can take home a load of wood.

Bad weather last Saturday temporarily halted further progress at the park. But another work day is scheduled for this coming Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Work can be done evenings if that time is more convenient for volunteers. Information on what to do can be obtained by contacting Roy Bowser, Bill Hurni or Babe Coburn.

Solicitation for playground equipment has been progressing with excellent results. A report on the donations, which now total over $1,200, will be available next week.

NEW SIGNS FOR HOOSIER HIGHWAYS

In 1958 a program was developed to start re-signing some of the primary roads. This was called the "2,000 Mile Program" since it involved approximately 2,000 miles of roads. It called for replacing all signs which were illegible, sub-standard, outmoded, or too small to be read. This program has since been expanded to include all primary and the more important secondary roads. Signs on these roads are being brought up to the standard established throughout the United States.

Many old highway signs were too small to be easily read. Old style route markers were 16 inches x 16 inches (lower left); they are being replaced with signs 2 foot square. In addition, all signs are being placed at a uniform height, in standard locations, and at a uniform distance from the edge of the road.

Several new signs have been developed to replace old ones. The most noticeable of these is the distance sign showing the distance to the next incorporated City, and the next important City on the route (lower center). These signs have a green background with silver letters and numerals. The first letter and all numerals are 6 inches tall with the others 4 inches for greater ease in reading.

Not shown here are new-design overhead signs to be placed over the road at special locations to direct the driver. These will have 18 inch letters and will be from 4 feet to 6 feet in height and from 8 feet to 16 feet in length. All signs are being reflectorized so they can be seen at night.

A budget of $920,000.00 per year has been established for the sign program.

That Jay Gould and his side kicks at WOWO get off some good ones.

The other day he was presenting a dissertation on the treatment and prevention of mastitis. He pointed out that a lot of care is necessary to prevent the disease which can be caused by many organisms and not just one. He closed with: "You can't cure mastitis with just one big shot— —except, maybe, 'Old Granddad'."

Then they played a "has-been" tune requested by a listéner who asked for "Near You." The record played was by Marlene Detrich who looks much better than she sings. In fact, the record was so bad, you wondered what Jay would say at its conclusion. He didn't mince words: "It sounds like something she made to send to her mother."

With the tourney draw as it is, we'll find out pretty quick how the cookie will crumble.

Ed Halt just about broke up the fire meeting the other night with a lulu of a story, but there isn't room here to tell it.

Shell Blast Injures Eye

Steve Monroe, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe of Saint Joe, suffered injury to his left eye and severe lacerations late Friday night when he cut a 20-gauge shotgun shell in half at the wadding, then struck a match to light the powder. The powder exploded, blowing the casing to bits.

The explosion blew into his face at the left eye, breaking his glasses. Several pieces of glass were removed from the eye and he was treated for the cuts, including a severe cut near the left eye and cuts on and above the nose. The lacerations were caused by the pieces of the brass shell casing which shattered in the blast.

The explosion occurred in the garage of the Monroe home. Emergency treatment was given at Souder hospital by an Auburn physician.

Public Invited To Hear How 'They Practice What We Preach'

A [illegible] by Rev. [illegible] T.A.-sponsored appearance of Rev. Kay M. Glaesner of Springfield, Ohio, next Tuesday evening, February 26, at the Riverdale High School gym. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

Appearing on the program will be the Riverdale Band under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry.

"Residents of this area have a rare opportunity to get a first-hand glimpse of the philosophy and attitude of the communist-controlled countries visited by Pastor Glaesner," said Ted Haberkorn, Riverdale P.T.A. president, in extending a public invitation. "In addition, this picture is related to the attitudes of Americans in a thought-provoking anlysis of 'what's wrong' in the world of today. In presenting the subject 'They Practice What We Preach,' Pastor Glaesner gives more than a quick-dissolving tidbit—it is a [illegible] to be chewed on for a long time."

In addition to serving as pastor of a 1700-member congregation, Rev. Glaesner maintains a mobilization assignment at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base as Major and is classified as Research and Developing Engineer. He is an authority in the field of anti-friction bearings and in recognition of his technical and professional services, the United States Air Force awarded him the distinguished Legion of Merit award, which comparatively few men possess.

Rev. Glaesner has been active in civic projects and is at the present time President of the Board of Directors of the Springfield Child Guidance Clinic and is First Vice-President of the Ohio Mental Health Association. His activity in the field of mental health has received national recognition.

Rev. Glaesner's military experience has provided him opportunities of world travel. In recent years he has visited Europe, North Africa, the Orient and the Near East. In 1959 he was among the first 19 Americans to travel through Russia by motorcoach. He recently has traveled in the satellite nations of Poland and East Germany.

In addition to the scientific and humanitarian efforts, Rev. Glaesner has strengthened his congregation by many efforts through his ministry. More than 200 refugee families have been processed by his church. Recently he was awarded the George Washington Freedom Award by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio for an outstanding sermon in promoting the American Way of Life.

More On School Reorganization

(Designers of Indiana's school consolidation program have taken steps to make certain the new merged school systems fulfill their aim—better schooling. This article, the last in a series of five made available thru the DeKalb County School Reorganization Committee, was written by David G. Watson for the Indianapolis Star.)

A 1959 law authorizing the overhaul of every school system in Indiana is a "trustee killer." It gives court-appointed school planning committees the power to take township trustees out of the school management business. The committees have gone to work.

The law does not specifically state that trustees should be eased out, but many authorities admit that it means the sun of the trustee-school boss is settling. School boards will take over. This is not a blanket indictment of trustees, nor does it indicate that the majority is clinging to traditional opposition to school consolidation and system mergers. Some have done outstanding jobs within the limits of their resources, according to Dr. Clarence A. Pound of the Purdue University education staff and David R. David, head of the Indiana School Reorganization Commission. Pound said trustees in many townships are leaders in consolidation and merger movements. In a few areas, Davis predicted, reorganization committees will find little or no reason to switch from the trustees system and the trustee will survive as a school chief.

If many survive, the powerful Indiana State Teachers Association isn't going to like it. Robert H. Wyatt, executive secretary and spokesman for the organization, expects them all to bow out.

"If this law doesn't do it, we'll go back into the legislature with another one that will," he vowed. The association has long been one of the strongest advocates of reorganization and consolidation.

Trustees will play a key role in creating the new school districts, however. The 1959 law provides that one township trustee shall be a member of each county reorganization committee. County superintendents now employed by trustees will be out of work when reorganization is completed. He said the demand for experienced administrators should be even greater. Despite this fact of the reorganization law, the measure is not championed for its effect on the power of the trustee. It is hailed as an equalizer.

State Senators D. Russell Bontrager (R-Elkhart) and Von A. Eichhorn (D-Uniondale), its sponsors in the legislature, and the lobbyists who helped write it, describe it as a move to give all children a more nearly equal chance for a well rounded education. The groundwork for this involves elimination of the undersize school system or district, and the increasing in size of high school classes. In turn this is expected to result in broader courses of study and an upgrading in the quality of teaching.

To give the county committees something to go on, the state commission has adopted a set of minimum standards which must be met in any reorganization.

1. No school system may be reorganized unless it is to offer an educational program for children in the full range of grade 1 thru 12.

2. Within the boundaries of the reorganized system there must be enough children to provide 1,000 resident pupils in average daily attendance.

3. Within the boundaries of the system there must be an adjusted assessed valuation of at least $5,000 for each resident pupil average daily attendance.

There is one exception. If conditions No. 2 and No. 3 cannot be met and a county-wide school system is not practical, a district may be created to include at least 144 square miles.

Davis said these are bare minimum standards, and urges committees to exceed them. Some university studies, he said, show that administrative costs per pupil are at the most favorable level in school systems with 2,000 to 2,500 pupils. Above and below these numbers the cost per pupil is higher. An example of the distribution of these pupils places 500 to 650 in a high school and the remainder in the grade schools.

While pointing out some of the recommendations of officialdom, Davis noted that the layman still keeps his place as boss. No reorganized school system can be put into effect without first standing the test of a vote by the people who will have to live with it. The state commission cannot dictate a county's plans, although it must approve them within the scope of the law. Residents of one county will not have the power to vote on the reorganization plans of another, unless the plan actually involves pupils and schools in both.

On the 9-member state commission itself are five members who have nothing to do with public schools, except that they are well-informed on the problems.

Each of the 9-member reorganization planning committees recently appointed by circuit court judges in each of the 92 counties has five members with no official school connections.

Dr. Pound summed up the program in this manner in a recent article for Indiana-Parent-Teacher magazine:

"There is substantial evidence that the General Assembly expected local citizens to participate in the studies made by their county committees and to fully understand the purposes behind and the importance of the plans for reorganization of school corportations within a county . . .

"The people of Indiana are much farther along in their thinking about school district reorganization than is generally believed. There is a danger that professional and lay leaders will underestimate the people and will be willing to settle for the creation of new school corporations that are inadequate in size to provide an effective and economical program of public education . .

"The ultimate goal . . . is the provision of an educational program that is necessary to meet the needs of the people in this complex and rapidly changing society."

Comets Trounce W'ville; Take Brawl From 'Windmills', 57-54

The Riverdale Comets notched a pair of wins Friday and Tuesday, defeating Wolcottville there by a 69-53 score on Friday night, then finally getting a 57-54 overtime win over Butler at Waterloo Tuesday night.

Comet reserves also defeated Wolcottville, 41-38, but the Butler reserves took their contest with the locals, 55-32.

Both varsity games were similar in that the Comets hit hot scoring streaks. They scored 20 points in the first quarter of both games. Wolcottville was cold and didn't get their first basket until 2 minutes and 57 seconds had passed. In the meantime Riverdale got 10 points. Wolcottville had a free throw, also, then went scoreless for another 4 minues; Riverdale then led 18-3. The spell was broken and the quarter ended 20-8.

In the second quarter the picture changed. Wolcottville began hitting and pullled up to 20-16 at the 5:18 mark. The Comets then managed to get in the scoring column again and they led 28-20 before the quarter ended 28-23.

In the third period the Comets began rolling and led 38-26 at the 5:28 mark. Play-making made this difference as the Comets, who had allowed themselves to get ruffled in the second quarter, settled down in the third period. Vinson-to-Smith and Bry-to-Vinson combinations were good for fielders. Gerry Heyman hit a couple of his long-shot specials in the quarter.

The Comets were coasting in the final period as they obviously outclassed their opponents. Heyman got two more fielders and Clarence Bry a pair before the bench relieved the starters.

The brawl at Waterloo with Butler as the opposition opened with the Heymans, Jerry and Gerry, bombing the nets for three fielders each in the opening quarter. Both teams were hitting, however, and after an early 7-7 tie, Riverdale led 20-15 at the quarter. Vinson had a pair of fielders in the quarter, the first a long shot that started the game.

In the second period Riverdale went to a deliberate style of game and picked up 2 fielders to pull to 24-15. Despite a series of three bad passes, the Comets maintained their lead and then extended it to 33-21 at the half.

Two factors contributed to the rugged Butler game, officials who allowed a lot of body contact on both sides and a time clock that wasn't working properly.

Butler began to overcome the lead in the first three minutes of the third quarter and pulled to 34-27 with a little over 5 minutes remaining in the period. The Comets' scoring punch was lost and Butler trailed by only 34-31 before the locals scored two quickies to lead 38-31. It was 43-35 then when play got rough as the officials continued to allow excessive bodily contact without stopping play. The score was 47-44 when Riverdale blew a lay-up. Bry got a free throw and Jerry Heyman a big basket to make it 50-46 and it began to look as if there would be little more trouble. But 2 free throws and a basket tied it at 50-50. Gerry Heyman scored a free throw and Butler got a charity toss before Riverdale called time out with possession of the ball.

As play resumed with seconds to go, it appeared that the confusion of no clock to show time interferred with a set play and a hasty shot was no good at the end of regulation time.

It was a hectic finish with Butler's scoring outdone by 2 free throws by Smith, a field goal by Bry and 2 more free throws by Vinson. Two Butler players and Jerry Heyman fouled out during the overtime.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The Friday game was somewhat of a let-down as a poor second quarter in shooting wasn't helped by ruffled dispositions. But a good showing in the second half left no doubt that Riverdale was the better team at least in scoring. — The only bad thing about those red-hot quarters is that there is always a cold quarter to follow. — Jerry Heyman fouled out of the Wolcottville game and it was obvious his opponents were riding him. But when brother Gerry went in for him, a fan yelled at the Wolcottville bench, "You get rid of one, we'll give you the other one!" — and the tension was relieved. — It's interesting to note the actions of the coaches at the various games. Coach Brookfield once in a while gives vent to his feelings with a slow outburst of standing up. He's real cool, man! The other end of the floor Friday was a visual education in complete and utter frustration. Does Riverdale know what its got??—Boom, boom, boom, against Butler as the Heymans blasted away in the first quarter. — Something we have seldom seen in a Riverdale varsity game, bad passes into enemy hands, and 3 of them in one quarter! — There was little room for finesse in the Butler game. Any attempt at science was nullified by the poorest job of controlling the game the writer has seen from officials this year. It was terrible. — The opposition was using "riding" tactics again, particularly the fans, and if the Comets hadn't been so smart as to know what the score was, there might have been trouble. In the middle of the game they were already working with one another to keep themselves in control. And it worked. There could have been trouble. — Several Butler players showed their sportsmanship at the end of the game, offering their congratulations despite a tough loss. — Riverdale fans were out en masse. Seats were at a premium with many standees. — Look at that scoring in the Butler game. 8, 10, 12, 13 and 14 points. How balanced can you get?

STEP OUT IN IT

Get the quiet proof of Chevrolet's superior performance on the road—No other car in the low-priced three can match the borne-on-the-wind sensation you get from a ride in the 1960 Chevrolet. But that's not surprising when you consider to what lengths Chevy has gone to provide for your comfort at no extra cost to you. As you drive, count the ways Chevrolet has been thoughtful:

Supple Full Coil suspension—Coil springs at all four wheels melt bumps as no other suspension can. Taking the punch out of rough roads is their only function—they don't have to anchor the rear axle.

Butyl rubber body mounts—Thicker, newly designed body mounts further insulate you from the road.

Body by Fisher—Only Chevy in its field offers the polish and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.

Foam cushioned seats—Chevy offers foam cushioned seats in both front and rear in all series but one.

Safety-Girder frame—X-built and not merely X-braced, the Safety-Girder frame affords greater rigidity to minimize twisting and squeaks.

Hydraulic valve lifters—Oil hushed hydraulic valve lifters reduce engine noise to a whisper.

Cushioned steering shaft—A universal joint and cushioned coupling keep those annoying road tremors from the steering wheel.

Precision balanced wheels and tires—Here again Chevy has shown concern for your comfort by eliminating vibration in this vital area—tire life is longer, too.

Easy steering ratio—Chevy's high ratio Ball Race steering takes the work out of steering for you.

Superior weight distribution—Chevy rides better, handles better and stops better because the car's weight is more equally divided between the front and rear wheels.

Wide choice of power teams—Choose from 24 different power combinations to satisfy the itchiest driving foot—more than any other car.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Naturally, the talk right now is about basketball. And at the Lions Club meeting the subject was pretty popular last Monday night. During the conversation Vergil Gerig said he has missed only three games in the last 13 years — which sounds like a pretty good record.

Usually it takes warm weather to get people going on fixin' and prettyin' up But not this year.

With the park now a going concern, there have been several eager beavers hard at it to get the grounds in shape and have other things ready so that the public can enjoy the park this summer.

One of the items being provided for is the need for picnic tables. Monday night I stopped at the Bowser Store and found Roy Bowser and Babe Coburn wielding paint brushes on a couple of picnic tables. Two were assembled, one with a complete paint job, the other with an undercoat. Two more were being painted before assembly. Six more tables are on the order sheet. So there ought to be plenty of tables to start with.

I hear Merlin Simanton was in on the table building a couple of times in the past week, too.

It's a fine thing, the way a lot of folks are pitching in on the park project.

I was doing a little cleaning out in the old roll-top desk the other day and found a box score of a Cub-Phillies baseball game which I had kept several years ago. The only date on the paper was August 26, but no year.

Do you baseball fans remember any of these names?

PHILIES — Mueller, Murtaugh, Benjamin, Marty, Rizzo, Etten, Litwhiler, May, Bragan, Warren, Johnson, Podijohny, Beck.

CUBS—Hack, Hudson, Olsen, Nicholson, Dahlgren, Dallesandro, Scheffing, Stringer, Errickson.

Kindergarten Graduation March 11

Class sessions of the kindergarten conducted by Mrs. Harry Farrer during the present school year will come to a close on March 11. The early end comes as a result of Mr. Farrer's acceptance of a new pastorate in Kentucky beginning in March. He has been pastor of the Newville Church of Christ for three years.

Kindergarten graduation exercises will be held Friday, March 11, at 7:00 p.m. at the Riverdale High School gym. The public is invited to attend.

The students are: Sandra Butler, Holly Cole, Bobby Farrer, Douglas Fetters, Randy Honaker, Robin Inlow, Christy Inlow, Karen Kline, John Mansfield, Sandy Panning, Loxie Roberts, Kent Rosenbury, Joey Walter, Stella Woodring and Kathy Wolfe.

Others who have attended are: Connie Melchi, Greg Bohl, Carolyn Christlieb, Marna White and Jeff Ritenour.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my friends and neighbors for their kind acts, Pastor Miller for his consoling words and the funeral directors for their thoughtfulness during illness and at the death of my brother.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Carol Honaker "put me on" last week—and rightly so.

She said, "Say, how come I don't get my name in the paper? I had a baby and was sick in the hospital and nothing was in the Saint Joe News."

I offered some feeble excuse which wasn't worth a darn and she forgave me.

Not so long ago I could boast about making my first mistake but now this makes 247 of 'em in the last several weeks.

Why does Pete Akey have that big smile on his face?—it must be that baby boy who arrived Wednesday of last week. That makes it four girls and a boy.

I enjoyed a few minutes of small talk with Milt Marx at that ISBA meeting Tuesday at Decatur. Do you recognize the name? If you listened to basketball games several years ago, you know that Milt was a sportscaster for a Fort Wayne station until nine years ago. Now he is in the clothing business at Huntington and apparently doing a good job as a citizen interested in public education.

Milt got a chance to keep in broadcasting trim last week end. Due to some difficulties, the Huntington station was without an announcer at the last minute. So they called on Mr. Marx to do the sectional. He has more pinch-hit broadcasting to do this coming week end, too.

How time flies. Nine years. My oh my.

Kindergarten Graduation March 11

Class sessions of the kindergarten conducted by Mrs. Harry Farrer during the present school year will come to a close on March 11. The early end comes as a result of Mr. Farrer's acceptance of a new pastorate in Kentucky beginning in March. He has been pastor of the Newville Church of Christ for three years.

Kindergarten graduation exercises will be held Friday, March 11, at 7:00 p.m. at the Riverdale High School gym. The public is invited to attend.

The students are: Sandra Butler, Holly Cole, Bobby Farrer, Douglas Fetters, Randy Honaker, Robin Inlow, Christy Inlow, Karen Kline, John Mansfield, Sandy Panning, Loxie Roberts, Kent Rosenbury, Joey Walter, Stella Woodring and Kathy Wolfe.

Others who have attended are: Connie Melchi, Greg Bohl, Carolyn Christlieb, Marna White and Jeff Ritenour.

Waterloo Faces Central; Comets Lose 48-43

The Waterloo Wildcats face the Fort Wayne Central Tigers Saturday at Fort Wayne.

That in a nutshell tells the story of the Garrett-Busco sectional tourney last week end. Waterloo upset the predictions of many sportscasters by coming through with wins over Butler and Orland before the sectional final in which they defeated Garrett 39-34.

The Riverdale Comets were just shy of the winning column as they were defeated by Garrett Thursday night at Busco, 48-43.

The Comets led thru the first half, but it was then a see-saw battle thereafter until the closing minutes of the game. Jerry Vinson started the game with a long one and closed the quarter with another fielder. In between he had another field goal and Ronnie Smith a pair to help the Comets lead 15-11 at the quarter mark. Both teams were hitting but not taking too many shots.

The Comets continued to lead thru the second period, until the 4:55 mark when Garret tied it at 18-all. Scoring was even until Smith hit a fielder with 2 seconds to go to give Riverdale a 25-22 halftime lead.

Garrett began pressing as the second half began and went ahead 26-25 at the 5:50 mark. Riverdale got back the lead which Garrett then regained and it continued that way thru the third quarter on into the final period. Jerry Heyman hit a pair of baskets in the third perod and Smith hit again with the clock running out to give Riverdale a 33-32 third quarter lead.

Garrett went out in front 34-33 as the final period opened and extended their lead to 36-33 when Riverdale called time out. Jerry Heyman hit a free throw and Smith a fielder as the Comets tied it 36-all. Gerry Heyman got a charity toss to give the Comets a 37-36 lead, then Garrett scored a fielder to lead 38-37. Garrett got possession and went into a semi-stall atack keeping possession until a time-out was called at the 2:28 mark. As play resumed, Gerry Heyman scored on a rebound to tie it 39-39; Garrett had scored on a free throw. Riverdale fouled again and Garrett got two free throws. On a drive-in Riverdale fouled, this time for charging. A technical was assessed when a Comet kicked the ball and Garrett cashed in on three more free throws. Garrett retained possession because of the technical foul and resorted to possession tactics. They led 44-39 with 1:16 to go. Both teams scored four points in the remaining time to make it 48-43 at the end.

COMET CNIPTIONS — There was an ar of upset thru most of the game and Comet fans were ready to celebrate a big win. But that charging foul and technical were backbreakers. There was plenty of time; however Garrett was too adept at maintaining possession. — Smith hit a fielder in the second quarter on a fallaway shot in which he looks as if he will end up flat on his back. . . but he doesn't — The Comets committed a few mistakes in the second half which may have contributed to their loss. — Clarence Bry contributed a good floor game then served as good will ambassador for the Comets as he volunteered congratulations to the Garrett players when the gun sounded and the players left the floor. — Though Auburn was defeated, they showed good spirit apparently inspired by their coach who manages to control his emotions. In the huddles you never saw more attention given to a coach than that given by all the Red-Devils, even tho they were usually hopelessly behind. — Jesse Yates, Busco's big center, had a hard time of it Thursday against Angola. His shots were rolling off in the first half and the Hornets were "riding" him constantly. He began hitting in the second half, however, and Busco then threw a scare into Angola before he fouled out. If there were a sectional award for "best mental attitude in spite of his opponents," it would have to go to Mr. Yates. —Miss Severns and the Riverdale cheer leaders, Linda Lothamer, Diann Mayer and Nila LaRowe, had the Comet cheering section well organized with their green outfits and derby hats.

Scores of the sectional games were as follows:

Busco 68, Auburn 55.

Red Cross Drive

Solicitations for Red Cross donations began March 1. The county goal is $9,629.

Providing a means—an organization—thru which neighbor can help neighbor, the Red Cross has been on the job for more than 75 years serving the nation and community. It's work is possible thru the voluntary service and financial support of individual citizens.

J. Paul Hill, minister of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ and chairman of the Red Cross fund drive in Spencer Township, announces that the drive will be held Saturday, March 5, beginning at 1:00 p.m. Solicitors calling at each home in the township will be members of the God's Workers Class of the Coburntown church.

The goal for the township is $100.00.

Co-chairmen for Saint Joe and Concord Township are Leon Kees and Frank Shull.

Women & Bake Sale Aid Park

Women in the community responded 100 per cent Saturday to match the 100 per cent response recently of Saint oJe businessmen in helping with providing for the public park to be opened this summer.

The women gave their assistance by helping chairman Louise Church with a bake sale Saturday. As a result of the women's efforts, and the public response in buying goods offered for sale, the Booster Club has another $50 or so in its treasury to defray park expenses.

No work was done at the park February 27 because of bad weather. However, on Saturday, February 20, workers made the greatest progress accomplished in any one day. With the help of seven young men, the older woodcutters finished a large amount of clearing. As the men cut the brush, the boys carried it away. "Working like beavers" were Lonny Keeler, Joe Shull, Larry Kinsey, John Stiver, Darrell Devalt, Rick Roberts and Eddie Myers.

Men making their first appearance were Walter Stewart, Merlin Simanton, Frank Shull, Dick Roberts, Clayton Baker, "Fuzzy" Baker and Bruce Baker. Maurice Kline and Ralph Sechler each had "hired" help to represent them.

Work will continue this coming Saturday weather permitting. And a couple of hours' work in an evening helps a lot at the park.

$83.58 Heart Fund

Mrs. Carlos Church, chairman of the Heart Fund solicitation, and her co-workers have expressed their appreciation of the cooperation of the public in donating to the fund drive.

Saint Joe residents contributed a total of $83.58.

Thursday, March 3

Read Matthew 6:19-26.

Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. (Galations 6:9.)

Sometimes we get discouraged in our Christian living. This may be due to the monotony of our work. We may see little beauty in a single color; but put two together, blend them or contrast them, and we are lifted by sheer beauty. We may hear no music in a single note; but when we weave several together harmoniously, we notice the difference.

We become discouraged sometime because we think that our one aim is to get the job done. But there is another side of the labor story which we so often forget. The Christian view is that we are not making things; we are making men.

The most important thing that you and I have to make is not a living, but a life. Let us put patience, kindness, sympathy, courage and good honest toil into our tasks. Thus we shall be planting eternal truths in our hearts, eternal values into the characters God would have us build.

PRAYER: Our Father, when we become discouraged, help us to look at life through the eyes of Christ. Amid His toil and grief, He saw Thee. In seeing Thee, He found the way to the hearts of people and lived for their good. Help us so to live, in His name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY:

Life is more important than a living; building character more vital than making things.

Thomas B. Mather, Missouri.

Regional Meet Of School Boards

11 counties in northern Indiana, comprising Region III of the Indiana School Boards Association, held a discussion of school problems and legislative needs at Decatur Tuesday afternoon and evening. A dinner was served between the two sessions.

In addition to approximately 30 school administrators, several legislators from the Indiana State Legislature were present. These included Byron McCammon, joint Representative for Allen and Whitley counties; Eugene E. Smith, Democrat State Representative for Allen County; George Stocksdale, Huntington, Democrat State Representative for Huntington County; Burl Johnson, Decatur, Democrat Representative for Adams County; Lucius Somers, Hoagland, Republican Joint State Senator for Allen and Noble counties; S. Dale Barrett, Democrat Joint State Senator from Whitley and Huntington counties; and Ellsworth Peterson, Republican State Representative for Noble County.

Milton Marx of Huntington, regional chairman and member of the board of directors of the ISBA, gave the key-note address calling for abolishment of the office of state superintendent of public instruction as an elective office, placing board membership on an elective non-partisan basis and pay them as well as a city councilmen, and giving teacher tenure law close scrutiny.

During the afternoon panel discussion, questions were answered by Marion McGhehey, executive secretary of the ISBA; Aaron T. Lindley, superintendent of Fort Wayne Community Schools; Phil N. Eskew, Superintendent of Huntington Public Schools; and Jack G. Heller, president of the Decatur Board of Education.

The evening session was presided over by William Bloom, president of the Columbia City School Board and State Legislative Chairman of the ISBA. A M. Bennett, superintendent of Columbia City Schools, gave a resume of legislation to be considered by the Indiana General Assembly.

During the evening discussion a few opinions were expressed by legislators present in response to questions. One was that there is very little if any chance of repeal of the school reorganization law at the next General Assembly. The other was that there is no proposed legislation to rearrange Indiana counties, reducing them in number from 92 to 40. All agreed that they welcomed public expression of opinion "backed by reasons."

DeKalb County was represented by school board members and superintendents from Garrett and Butler.

Three newspapers were represented, including The Saint Joe News.

With the Editor

I missed an opportunity on March 1 to have a big blow out. Or did you remember that March 1 marked the 12th year that The Saint Joe Nuisance has been under the fumbling hands of yours truly?

How time flies—as I said last week.

Last week everyone was carrying home burned mail as the aftermath of the fire in the mail truck. At least it was different, those letters with a little brown fringe on the edge. And it makes it sort of a game, wondering how many letters we didn't get.

Pastor Hill says "thanks" for himself and his co-workers who solicited in Spencer Township for the Red Cross and found the public cooperative to the tune of $121.54.

And the Spencerville Heart Fund netted $63.00, thru the efforts of Barbara Timmerman, Jean Moore, Janice Hollabaugh, Linda Emenhiser, Charlotte Hudson, Sharon Smith, Marjorie Howey, Alice Hollabaugh, Karen Fish, Lois Fisher, Marge Brattain, Naomi Alwood. The information on the latter group comes from Marian Furnish.

It won't be long now!

Language Study At PTA Tuesday

The Riverdale P.T.A. will meet Tuesday, March 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school in Saint Joe.

With the interest in programs of study in the schools at a high point, Tuesday's meeting will highlight the showing of twc color-sound films from the Audio-Visual Library of Indiana University. One film gives a background of the language Americans speak under the title, "English Language - Story of Its Development." The second film goes a little further in considering languages under the title, "Why Study Foreign Languages?"

One of the points of study of the various county committees now active in state reorganization of schools is that of the school curriculum. The showing of the two language films Tuesday evening serves to give further enlightenment on the importance of language study in high school curricula.

The public is invited to attend.

Phone Co. Offers Extended Service

Plans for inauguration of "extended area service" in the Saint Joe and Butler exchanges of General Telephone Company of Indiana were presented Wedensday noon at a meeting at Butler. Telephone subscribers from the affected areas were guests of the telephone company at a luncheon, after which the plan was presented and questions answered. George Bartindale, district commercial manager at Angola, was in charge of the meeting.

Present were Robert Miller and Harry Counsman from the Fort Wayne office of General Telephone; Roy Bowser, Walter Morr and Ted Haberkorn of Saint Joe; and Raymond McCann, William Nimmo, Ray Laub, Wendell Cooper, Frank Korsmeyer, Burdette Powers and Mrs. Robert Jones of Butler.

The service, which would go into effect in the latter part of 1961, subject to the approval of affected subscribers and the Indiana Public Service Commission, would provide toll-free service for Saint Joe subscribers to Auburn and Butler and more efficient service to the Spencerville exchange. Saint Joe subscribers now have approximately 550 telephones at their service toll-free in the local exchange. Under the new system there would be more than 4,000 phones available toll-free in the Saint Joe, Spencerville, Auburn and Butler area. The additional service would be covered by an increase in residental rates of 75 cents per month and $1.50 per month for business phones.

Calls placed by Saint Joe telephones would be direct to the exchanges in the extended service area by use of additional digits. This is modeled after the system being integrated nationally which will, at some future date, make it possible to call virtually every exchange in the country simply by dialing a series of numbers.

The extended area service for Saint Joe and Butler was proposed following studies of toll calls made by subscribers in the two areas. It was pointed out that, in other instances of inaugurating extended area service, calls increased by at least four times. With improved facilities, the company estimates that the chance of getting a busy line would be but three in one hundred.

Letters are being sent to residents of the affected area for expressions of opinions regarding the proposed service.

If approved the plan would go into service when the Auburn and Spencerville exchanges, under the Bell System, convert to dial, the latter part of 1961.

Board Faces Problem - Money

The Saint Joe Town Board met Monday evening with all members present, Roy Bowser, Bud Shockley and Ted Haberkorn, and clerk-treasurer Harvey Carr. Four visitors were also present.

Included in business transacted was the approval of the appointment of Hayden Ankney to the fire department and payment of routine bills.

Discussion was held concerning acquisition of equipment to be used for improving the streets and alleys of the town and maintaining the public park. Under consideration is the acquisiton of a tractor with blade and loader and a rotary mower. Other discussion concerned curbs and the problems involved in drainage. A general conclusion was that "there's lots to to with little money."

Aid For Baby

Dawn Edsall, 5½ month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Edsall of Auburn, will be given a chance for life in coming weeks as she receives the benefit of expert medical knowledge through the generosity of a doctor and the Auburn American Legion.

The little girl was born without a bile duct and a gall bladder connecting her liver to her intestines. The deformity was found shortly after birth when she developed skin discoldrations due to body poisons being excreted by the skin. An exploratory operation was performed showing the cause. With the condition life expectancy was a few months to a maximum of two years.

Recently the family learned that a surgeon at the Albert Einstein Research Hospital at Philadelphia, Pa., has successfully performed at least 12 similar operations on babies. The surgical technique by Dr. Julian A. Sterling includes insertion of silver tubes connecting the liver and the intestines.

When Dr. Sterling was advised of the expense of the surgery three months ago and the inability of the family to meet additional heavy expense, he waived his usual $500 fee.

More help is in the offing for the family as the Auburn American Legion Post has made application for funds from the rehabilitation fund of the American Legion. The Auburn post is also sponsoring a local solicitation to help the family.

The family leaves this week for Philadelphia where the baby will be under observation for at least 8 days before surgery. The child will be hospitalized for at least three weeks and will require blood transfusions.

© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Thursday, March 10

Read John 19:25-30

Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. (John 19:28.)

We rightly think that the salvation of man means above all the salvation of his soul.

Christ is also the saviour of the body. He Himself had a body. When He lived in the flesh, He knew what it meant to be tired. He became hungry and thirsty. His words "I thirst" were not of little significance, but a part of His sacrifice for us.

We need not think, then, that the things we need for our bodies are sinful. It is not sinful to enjoy our meals. We may drink when thirsty. When we are tired, it is no sin to sleep.

However, we need not be, we must not be slaves to our bodies. If our spirits are being ruled over by our bodies, it is necessary to fight bravely against that tyranny. We have to subdue the power of our bodies, as Jesus subdued His when He lived in the flesh.

PRAYER: O God, I thank Thee for saving me, that I am Thine. May I remember that my body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. When the hour of my departure out of this world comes, let me with joy be clothed with a spiritual body, without spot or wrinkle. In the blessed Saviour's name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY—Christ redeems my life from destruction and makes my body a temple of the living God.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The gym sure was a busy place last Friday night.

The kindergarten had its program and it was no more than done when, whiz-bang, in came the high school kids to set up shop for a record hop honoring the basketball team.

It was a little dark, though. Four of the gym's eight light bulbs are out of commission.

It's really disappointing when someone you have had faith in and trusted for years somehow forgets it all and stabs you in the back or crosses you up somehow. Makes you feel as if nothing is worth anything anymore.

—Years and years it's been, and always I trusted him — and now look what happens. The six weeks has passed since the groundhog saw his shadow and we've STILL got winter weather. Boy, I'm done with that guy.

Sunday afternoon we were at the Schafenackers' in Fort Wayne and Jean was having a birthday party. During the afternoon Kathy came up and said, "Uncle Ted, will you put my name in your paper?"

I said, well, what can I say about you, what have you done different.

She thought a moment, then exclaiming, "I got an 'A' in spelling—on a test! THAT'S different!"

Then the girls started teasing brother Steve about his girl friend and he shouted back as indignantly as an embarrassed 6-year-old could shout back, "She loves me—but I don't love her!"

The crossword puzzle fans can go wild with this week's paper.

Board To Buy Equipment

In its first major move since assuming duties, the Town Board of Saint Joe has initiated action whereby the town will acquire equipment for street, alley and park maintenance thru a lease-purchase arrangement.

With greater need for such equipment arising with the acquisition of the park, now being improved thru efforts of the Booster Club and its friends, the board has agreed to purchase a tractor equipped with blade and hydraulic scoop. Yet to be purchased is a mower unit for park maintenance.

Total cost of all the above equipment will be approximately $2,900.

Assessor's On The Loose

Hide the jewels! Put the dog in the basement! The assessor's coming!

35 assessors and their deputies began the 10½ week job of completing a canvass of personal property in the county, the job beginning as the date March 1 made its appearance. The assessing will be completed by May 15.

DeKalb County Assessor Clayton Hartman said that the schedule for assessing, adopted last month at Fort Wayne for Northeastern Indiana assessors, is being used as a guide for DeKalb County assessors.

Of particular importance is the fact that information on the family automobile, or automobiles, as the case may be, should be readily available when the assessor calls. Required this year is the serial number or engine number for all licensed motor vehicles. In past years the only information necessary was the year, make and model. Wives should have the information at home for the convenience of the assessor when he calls and the husband may be away from home.

Motor vehicles will be assessed at 70 per cent of the average "red book" price.

The assessment schedule is as follows:

Horses $80, race horses with records $500, stallions and mares $250, drivers and saddlers $120, ponies $40 to $80 and work mules $80.

Registered cows and bulls $150, good cows and bulls $100, common cows and bulls $70, stock cattle $10 per 100 lbs., fat cattle $10 per 100, registered milk cows $150, good milk cows $100, and common milk cows $80.

Registered sheep $20, common sheep $8, wool per lb. 20 cents, milk goats $4.

Stock hogs $6 per 100 lbs., fat hogs $6 per 100, brood sows with pigs $40, registered brood sows $60, registered male hogs $40, common brood sows with pigs $40, common brood sows $20, gilts $20, and common boars $20.

Chickens light $3 per dozen, chickens heavy $4 per dozen, ducks $6 per dozen, geese $1 each, turkeys $2 each, rabbits $4 per dozen, mink, chinchillas and nutria $100 per pair with each additional adult $6 each.

Corn 40 cents a bushel, wheat 80 cents, oats 40 cents, soybeans 80 cents, rye 40 cents clover seed $6, timothy $3, potatoes 70 cents per 100, alfalfa seed $6 per bushel.

Hay, including clover, timothy, alfalfa, soybean and mixed, $8 per ton.

Diamonds $200 per carat.

Farm tractors and farm implements are assessed on the average finance figures in the National Tractor & Farm Implement "blue book."

A Sense of Values

Several weeks ago the governor of one of the largest states in this country made public remarks about the standard of values of some Americans, these remarks prompted by the publicity given for the "coming out party" for a daughter of one of this country's wealthiest families. The publicity given the event had pointed out the cost of the party, something like $100,000 or so. The governor was also prompted to speak as he did because of the resignation of one of the top national defense officials in order to accept a job in private industry for a salary substantially larger than that received as a government official. The critical governor did not like either incident; he thought it was almost shameful that so much money be spent for a party and that a man resign from a patriotic job, so to speak, in order to apparently gain a greater profit for himself.

It is often that expressed opinions leave the speaker wide open. Editors know this. And this editor points out to the governor, or at least to the readers of this paper, how everyone's standard of values varies according to whom it is we are talking about. It is always easy to tell the other fellow what he should or should not do or how he should spend his money, etc. It bothered me to read of a public official, a governor, making public issue of a private matter, the amount of money a family spent or the choice of jobs made by an individual. If we can pick on those two particular instances, can we not be fair and pick on some 160,000,000 others?

While it may be true that $100,000 could be spent for better things than a party for a young lady, it is also true that one of the things which make this country so valuable is that, if a person has the money and wants to spend it that way, he can. The critical governor even went so far as to say that perhaps there ought to be some way to prevent such wasteful spending. This bothers me more - that a GOVERNOR should make such a statement. If the Ford family has a poor sense of values for the money it spent, what can you say for a sense of values which advocates telling an individual how he can spend his own money?

As far as the resignation from a defense job to go into private industry, we may be inclined to censure the man, forgetting that we ARE a peace-loving nation and, as such, think in terms of peaceful occupations. When men begin resigning from private industry in order to get more money in defense, THAT will be the day to become alarmed. In a sense, that day is already here.

As I said, it is easy to tell someone else how they should use themselves or their resources. We have a responsibility to remember, however, that freedom includes the possibility of abuse. If God gave man the freedom to choose or not to choose HIM, we certainly must maintain the same attitude toward one another in the use of material wealth or our own capabilities.

For a time others may suffer from the abuse of one. But in the end it will be the abuser who must bear the greatest suffering.

Those Precious Bits of Paper

With the passing of each day, it is often the case that a good many things are taken for granted and perhaps exist without any particular feeling of appreciation. This thought occurred to me one morning as I entered the News Office and picked up two or three small bits of paper from the floor, dropped through the letter slot in the door while I was out. These were not scrap paper; they were contributions from a few readers.

And it occurred to me as I then opened piece after piece of mail obtained from the post office how valuable those few items were, the ones which were found just inside the door. Here was a pile of paper building up as I opened the mail, which in a short time comes to represent reams of paper headed for the waste paper box. Not that the mail a weekly paper receives is worthless (some of those local items do come in the mail); but the percentage of useable material for this paper is so small compared to the amount of material received.

I imagine that there are ruffled dispositions from time to time as a club report gets lost in the shuffle, or it is published late, or the editor didn't mention this or that happening and he surely knew about it, everyone else did, or he spelled my cousin's name wrong, or whatever it might be. And because of these things it might appear that the editor doesn't particularly care about what he gets or if he gets it. But he does.

Nothing is more pleasing than to prepare copy for setting on the linotype and find in the pile piece after piece of those precious little bits of paper containing contributions from our readers.

BEWARE—THE LATE SNOW

American farmers may be in for a late "snow" this summer if they don't keep their wits sharp and do a little old-fashioned prodding at the right time. The snowdrift may come from election-minded Congressmen who are already showering farmers with verbal pity, yet doing little which will really help.

Farmers will continue to suffer for another year, if Congress does not get off dead center, listen to constructive proposals and then DO SOMETHING THIS YEAR. Many people predict that little legislative help will be forthcoming, since neither political party wants the other to get any credit, and each wants the other to catch the blame.

From an economic standpoint, the farm problem of overproduction can be solved. The political solution is the one that comes hard and keeps farmers in the "middle." Farm Bureau's long-standing program for maintaining freedom on the farm and yet reducing price-depressing surpluses is well-known. (See February issue of "Hoosier Farmer," page 7); so are the positions of other farm organizations. President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson have made their positions clear. Yet, Congressmen continue to propose ridiculous measures which will not work—possibly in the hope that they will be vetoed.

One such bill (H.R. 10360), called the Family Farm Income Act of 1960, was recently introduced in the House by some 16 Congressmen, including Indiana's Earl Hogan of Columbus. This monstrosity of a bill reminds us of an animal with the feet of a chicken, the hind quarters of a hog, front quarters of a lamb, the neck and head of a steer, chicken wings and the udder of a dairy cow. In a nutshell, it proposes the thoroughly discredited Brannan Plan, supported by one farm organization, but it gets farmers into this government-control share through the funnel of a commodity-by-commodity approach, proposed by another farm organization.

Only the so-called omnibus farm bill of two Congresses ago approaches this hodgepodge of unworkability and double-talk. Yet, should this bill be passed, farmers would be neck-deep in government regimentation and control.

Indiana has always been proud of having one of her Congressmen on the important House Agriculture Committee. Representative Hogan is now serving on that committee. Since we know of no Indiana organization—farm, political or any other kind—which has endorsed this particular plan introduced by Hogan, we wonder where he finds support for it?

—The Hoosier Farmer, March 1960.

MIXED UP KIDS

As one considers some of the strange things that have been and are happening in governmental circles, there is an inclination to reach the conclusion that the executive and legislative branches of government at all levels are being operated to a large extent by mixed up kids who are highly confused over their powers under the American system of govern-

On last November 2, a newly enacted law went into effect in Ohio which prohibits any governmental agency in that state from adopting rules or regulations which limit or restrict the right of any person to advertise except as expressly provided by law. This new statute, leveled at the administrative agencies which serve under the executive branch of government, has been hailed as a boon to newspapers and all advertising media. It has been given wide publicity throughout the nation and consideration is under way for the NEED of such a law in other states that have been curtailed by administrative rules which have assumed the proportions of law.

On March 9, 1953 the so-called Hughes anti-secrecy law became effective in Indiana prohibiting the transaction of public business in secrecy and opening all public records, except those declared confidential by law, to inspection by the people. This law was directed at the trend in local and state levels of government toward carrying on public business behind closed doors. It was also lauded as a victory for newspapers and communications media at the time of its enactment and similar laws are now in force in several of the states.

It is frustrating that such laws are credited as being a vitcory for any special group, newspapers for instance. If there is any victory, it is one for the people. But where is there any victory in re-establishing rights which belonged to the people anyway but which were whittled away through "official" edicts issued by individuals who have no understanding of the functions of government with respect to the inalienable rights of people.

Little thought is ever given to the cost of enacting even a single law during a session of the legislature. Depending upon the length of a bill, amendments and action that often require repeated printing, the cost can reach into thousands of dollars. That was true in the enactment of the Hughes anti-secrecy law which was bitterly opposed by the mixed up kids known as public officials. Why should thousands of dollars belonging to the people be spent for the enactment of laws giving rights to the people they already own as citizens?

Of course, the explanation of the lawmakers in enacting a law depriving the people of the right to advertise, for example, is that it is what the people want. As a general rule, the lawmakers are mixed up over what people want and what a few self-appointed zealots of a particular group claim the people should have. Because of the pressure they get from all sides, members of a legislature rarely pause to consider how far government may or should go before it usurps public rights. Once having established basic qualifications for those engaged in a profession, for instance, and having provided for the licensing of those practicing a profession, what further power should government have to intrude on the manner in which a licensee performs his services? Once having established standards for advertising, as Indiana has done, why should government through its lawmakers disqualify and revoke the license of an individual it admits is qualified but who desires to exercise his right to advertise? The theory that a person, qualified by training and government permit to practice a profession, becomes a quack by law or governmental rule, is repugnant to any reasonable thinking.

Perhaps a training school for all individuals in any governmental position, with special emphasis on the true functions of government and rights of the people, might solve the problems that prompted enactment of the Hughes law and that in Ohio. A law for such a school might save taxpayers a pretty penny, preserve rights of the people and produce public officials less confused in their conception of government.

LaGrange Co. Has First Plan

The Indiana School Reorganization Commission has set April 4 for its first public hearing on a reorganization plan as a result of the filing of a program for eliminating small schools by LaGrange County. It is the first program to be filed since the Indiana State Legislature passed the School Reorganization bill in 1959.

The LaGrange plan, filed by the country reorganization committee, calls for one high school in place of the present seven. Schools at Brighton, Lima, Shipshewana, Topeka, Wolcottville and Mongo would be eliminated, replaced by one county high school.

The new high school would be located near LaGrange and the seven present high school structures would become elementary or junior high schools.

The 9-member LaGrange committee was divided 6-to-3 on the plan. One of the members of the dissenters said the majority plan took only the taxation structure into consideration and did not give proper value to the human questions involved.

The plan calls for 10 one-room schools and two others with three and four rooms to be abandoned. The committee members explained that LaGrange has such a high number of one-room schools because 25 per cent of its school population is Amish or Mennonite. This religious sect favors the one-room school located near its community, they said.

The LaGrange County plan ran into inter-county problems, an anticipated barrier in future consolidatons. For LaGrange the problem is the Wolcottville school, located in LaGrange County but serving also children living in a portion of the town located in Noble County.

Thus far, LaGrange County planners have not been able to confer with their neighbors on handling the Wolcottville situation. However, the failure is probably due to the fact that Noble County's reorganization committee has not advanced as rapidly as that of LaGrange, it was explained.

At least five members of the state reorganization commission must preside at the public hearings on the county plans. The plans later will be put to a vote of the local residents who can reject the project if it does not have majority support.

125 At Grad'tion

Approximately 125 pupils, parents and friends attended the graduation exercises of the kindergarten class which has been under the direction of Mrs. Harry Farrer for the past seven months. The exercises were held at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe last Friday night at 7:00 p.m. Assisting on the program was Mrs. Richard Woodring with musical accompaniment being given by Miss Kay Halt.

After the introduction by Mrs. Woodring, Mrs. Farrer led the group of 15 children thru a review of a typical day in school, including games, songs and lessons on letters and numbers. Ted Haberkorn, president of the Riverdale P. T.A., then spoke briefly on "Evaluation of a Kindergarten," including the warning that not only are the children in the class entering into a new phase of life but also the parents who have the responsibility in the future to encourage their children to fullest use of their talents.

The young people, dressed in caps and gowns of white, then received their diplomas entitling them to enter the first grade next fall. The recessional followed the benediction by Pastor Farrer.

Those graduating were Sandra Butler, Holly Cole, Bobby Farrer, Douglas Fetters, Randy Honaker, Robin Inlow, Christy Inlow, Karen Kline, John Mansfield, Sandra Panning, Loxie Roberts, Kent Rosenberry, Joey Walter, Stella Woodring and Kathy Wolfe.

Green Stamps help keep

INDIANA PRICES DOWN!

Like the ads of local merchants that you see in this newspaper, S&H Green Stamps boost business. At the same time they help keep prices down.

Here is why: When a store sells more, it can sell for less, since bigger volume brings lower costs.

Stores that use S&H Green Stamps must sell competitively. Indiana housewives are expert shoppers. They read the ads. They check and compare prices. And they can't be fooled!

Trading stamps are being saved today by two out of three American families—about 35 million in all. And their use is still growing in this and other States.

For the best values, shop at the stores in your community that give S&H Green Stamps.

School Study

The principals of the schools of DeKalb County, elementary and high school levels, will meet with the curriculum committee chairman of the county reorganization board next Monday, March 21. The meeting will start at 7:30 p. m. in the office of the county superintendent of schools in the court house at Auburn.

Principals have been working on statistical charts and forms for the past two weeks and this information will be discussed and compiled at this meeting.

At the regular meeting of the reorganization board held March 9, all of the committee chairmen reported and the results showed that work on the statistical reports is nearly completed. Dr. Miller, chairman of the board, gave each of the board members a guide sheet prepared by Ross Tipton. These are to be used by the members in preparing any future talks on the duties and progress of the board.

The next regular board meeting will be held Wednesday, March 23, in the court house at 2:00 p.m.

Delegates Aligned

County Clerk Walter Manon has released the allocation of delegates to the Democratic and Republican state conventions this summer, showing that each party will send 15 delegates. In 1958 the Republicans sent 20 and Democrats 13.

Alltcation of delegates is based on the vote for secretary of states at the preceding general election. The board allocated a delegate for approximately every 500 voters.

The GOP allocation is as follows:

Butler-Jackson townships, 1 delegate, 417 Republican votes cast for secretary of state in 1958.

Concord-Stafford townships, 1 delegate, 255 votes.

Fairfield-Richland townships, 1 delegate, 420 votes.

Franklin-Troy townships, 1 delegate, 307 votes.

Grant Township, 1 delegate, 488 votes.

Keyser Township, 2 delegates, 984 votes.

Smithfield Township, 1 delegate, 241 votes.

Newville-Spencer townships, 1 delegate, 265 votes.

Union Township, 4 delegates, 1,972 votes.

Wilmington Township, 2 delegates, 753 votes.

The Democratic delegates are as follows:

Butler-Jackson, 1 delegate, 478 votes.

Fairfield-Richland, 1 delegate, 436 votes.

Smithfield-Grant, 2 delegates, 832 votes.

Union, 4 delegates, 1,520 votes.

Franklin-Troy-Stafford, 1 delegate, 278 votes.

Keyser, 4 delegates, 1,557 votes.

Concord-Spencer-Newville, 1 delegate, 454 votes.

Wilmington, 1 delegate, 566 votes.

Dedication

The new parish education and social facilities of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Butler will be dedicated in special services to be held Sunday morning, March 20. The Rev. Frank Stevenson, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church at Muncie and secretary of the Indiana Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America, will be the speaker at the 11:00 a.m. dedication service.

The new facilities will provide four additional classrooms in the lower church, plus a kitchen, social hall, furnace room and rest room areas. The project is the culmination of plans that had their beginnings under the pastorate of Rev. Stevenson some 12 years ago.

A baptismal font and hymnbook racks, purchased with monies from the C. B. Hathaway, M. D., Memorial Fund, will also be dedicated during the morning service and the baptismal font will be put into immediate use as Pastor Hertenstein announces that there will be several infants baptized at the worship service.

A basket luncheon has been planned for the noon hour with everyone bringing their own table service. Open house will be held in the afternoon for those unable to be present during the morning worship service.

Movies At PTA

A handful of parents, teachers and students were present for the Riverdale P.T.A. meeting held Tuesday evening at the high school gym.

The program consisted of two films, one concerning the background of the English language, the other about the importance of foreign language in high school studies and later life. Unfortunately, the latter film was of little value due to the sound track which was apparently worn and unintelligible due to extensive use. However, some hint of probable need for foreign language in future years was discernable thru the showing of the film.

The president of the P.T.A. announced that Dr. Marion McGhehey, executive secretary of the Indiana School Boards Association and active proponent of the school reorganization program now in effect in the state of Indiana, will be the speaker at the April meeting of the P.T.A. on Tuesday, April 19. Comments by Riverdale patrons expressing the desire to know more about the reorganization program prompted the programming of Dr. McGhehey.

It is anticipated that Riverdale patrons will be able to have many questions of great concern to them answered at the April meeting.

The public is urged to keep the date April 19 in mind, an important meeting for all Riverdale patrons.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

ACNE

THE TEN MOST common skin diseases represent approximately 75 per cent of all skin diseases. Acne heads the list as the commonest blemish of the skin.

Because acne is especially common and chronic in adolescence, it causes a great deal of mental suffering during those years when young people are self-conscious as to their appearance.

Acne is described as an inflammatory disease of the sebaceous glands occurring most frequently on the face, back and chest. The sebaceous glands normally secrete an oily substance, known as sebum, which acts to keep the skin pliable. When this sebum moves outward through its openings or ducts at a rate slower than normal, it tends to collect as a plug over which the skin cells grow. The result, then, is a seedlike raised spot familiarly known as a whitehead. In most cases, however, the mouth of the sebaceous gland duct remains open, collects dirt, and becomes a blackhead.

Variations of acne represent individual reactions to the cause and may change or be aggravated by many factors. Possible causes of acne include heredity, glandular activity, endocrine disturbance, infection, anemia, over indulgence in bromides, digestive and intestinal dysfunction, nervousness, fatigue, and more especially, excessive fat intake.

An important treatment is cleaning of the skin with a nongreasy detergent at least once every day. The elimination of greasy foods from the diet is recommended. Treatment also includes in many cases local application of medicines, x-rays or ultraviolet rays and medicines for internal use. In some cases, relief is obtained by improving the patient's health through sufficient sleep, fresh air, moderate exercise.

Read Psalm 32:1-5.

For we are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled. (Psalm 90:7.)

A certain atheistic farmer once proposed to demonstrate that he could violate the laws of God without suffering any serious effect. Accordingly, he cultivated an acre of ground entirely upon the Lord's Day in deliberate violation of the Fourth Commandment. At the end of the season he reaped a good harvest and boasted of what he had done. A pious old neighbor said to him: "Remember, God doesn't always pay in October, but He always pays."

This is the common experience of humanity. God always pays. Human misery, as Psalm 90 suggests, follows in the wake of human sin. Early man interpreted human misery as a result of God's anger at man's sin. Rather, it is because God has established the universe as a moral order, and those who violate the moral law suffer thereby. Horace Bushnell said: "We are punished by our sins and not for them. We are rewarded by our virtues and not for them."

Because God has made the universe a moral order, sin always makes for misery. Repenting of our sins and right doing always make for peace.

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we would come to Thee in true repentance. We would acknowledge our sins and pray for Thy cleansing. We would lay hold of Thy forgiving love. In Christ's name. Amen.

Thought For the Day: "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity."

CARE Package Is 'Personal Gift'

"Do they know?" This is the question that comes often to CARE headquarters in New York, a question from people from all parts of the United States. They want to know if the millions of needy people overseas who receive CARE food and self-help materials are aware that these are gifts from the American people.

Some of these anxious inquiries are stirred by returned travelers who insist they could see no evidence that the message of U.S. friendship was getting across. With all due respect to their observations, CARE officials believe that the opportunities to these travelers to form enlightened opinions have been limited. However, it s a matter of concern since Americans in the past 14 years have entrusted CARE with the delivery of nearly $400,000,000 worth of aid in 50 countries around the globe.

The basic job is to plan properly and control carefully the distribution of nourishing food to as many needy as possible, as well as tools to help them help themselves. Next in importance is the responsibility to make sure that not only recipients but others in the country know that CARE packages express the friendliness and interest of the American people.

To achieve these ends, CARE cartons are imprinted with the U.S. stars and stripes emblem and the statement, in large black capitals: Donated by the People of the United States of America.

In each of 27 countries of Europe, Latin America, Asia and the Middle East, there is a CARE Mission Chief. He is an American, he is trained, skilled and more often than not speaks the language of the people. His first job is to see that CARE aid is distributed fairly, without waste or abuse. A very close second is his task of spreading the message of American good-will.

In the course of his duties, the Mission Chief deals with government and private agencies, but of much greater significance to the point is that he also gets the cooperation of the press. Evidence of this is contained in CARE files filled with clippings from newspapers and magazines in all CARE countries - page one features, photo layouts, editorials, letters to the editor, all in praise of and gratitude for American generosity.

The practice that has made CARE unique in its history is that of delivering the name and address of the American donor with every package. This has fostered a stream of correspondence between Americans and peoples of foreign lands, leading to bonds of friendship between not only individuals but countries.

Thus, the answer to the question, "Do they know?" appears to be, "Yes, they know, for wherever CARE goes, America goes."

Spelling Champs Named; 'Mike' Is J-G Winner

Riverdale spelling champions were selected this week in spelldowns held at the elementary and junior high grade levels. The local winners will compete in the DeKalb County Spelling Contest to be held Thursday and Friday, April 7 and 8, at Auburn.

Riverdale's representative in the Journal-Gazette spelling competition, held in conjunction with the county spelling contest, will be Michael Haberkorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn of Saint Joe and a student in the 8th grade at Riverdale. Mike was selected in competition with students from the 7th and 8th grades. This will be his third consecutive year as Riverdale representative in the J-G contest. His record since entering spelling competition in the third grade includes county runner-up third grade, county champion fourth grade, county champion fifth grade, sixth place J-G contest sixth grade and fourth place J-G contest seventh grade.

Mike's brother, Phil, enters spelling competition this year, having won spelldowns in the Riverdale third grade to reach the championship. And another "family affair" is present in the seventh grade where Sharon Boylan won the championship with sister Karen runner-up.

The complete list of entries from Riverdale is as follows:

Journal-Gazette Contest — Michael Haberkorn.

8th grade—Curtis Ransom; James Furnish, alternate.

Census Forms Being Mailed

Advance Report Forms for the 1960 Census of Population and Housing will be distributed by post office employes this week to all householders in this area, District Supervisor John W. Wynn has announced.

The Advance Report Form is a new census-taking device which is designed to speed up the field canvass and provide more accurate statistics. Distribution of this form before the start of the house-to-house canvass gives the family a chance to assemble information about each member in advance of the census taker's visit. The district supervisor urges all residents to fill out the form and have it ready for the census takers when they start their rounds on April 1.

The Advance Report Form contains seven questions about every person in the household and six questions about the household's dwelling. The household information asked for is name, address, sex, color or race, month and year of birth, whether married or single, and relationship to head of the household. The information required about the dwelling is the number of rooms, cooking facilities, plumbing and whether rented or owned.

At every fourth household, the census taker will leave a Census Household Questionnaire which contains additional questions covering population and housing characteristims which are being asked of a 25 per cent sample of the nation's population. Householders are requested to fill out the household questionnaire and mail it within three days to the local census district office. A pre-addressed postage-free envelope is being provided for this purpose.

The sample population questions include inquiries on countries of birth, mother tongues of foreign born, schooling, employment, income and related items. The additional housing questions relate to rent or value of dwelling, heating equipment, water supply, and other facilities and equipment.

The district supervisor pointed out that information about individuals and their homes furnished to the Census Bureau is kept confidential under Federal law. Only statistical totals and averages are published. No individual person can be identified in published reports and census information cannot be used for regulation, investigation or taxation.

Ind'l Dev'ment Planned

Approximately 35 representatives of cities and towns in northeastern Indiana enthusiastically participated in an industrial development workshop held at the Fort Wayne Chamber of Commerce Tuesday. The workshop was preceded by a luncheon at noon.

Melvin Riley, manager of the Fort Wayne Chamber's Industrial Development Department presided at the meeting.

Invitations were sent for two representatives from Albion, Angola, Auburn, Berne, Bluffton, Butler, Churubusco, Columbia City, Decatur, Garrett, Geneva, Grabill, Huntington, Hartford City, Kendallville, LaGrange, Ligonier, Monroeville, Montpelier, New Haven, North Manchester, Portland, South Whitley, Saint Joe, Wabash, Warren, Warsaw, Waterloo, Wolcottville and Woodburn.

Ted Haberkorn attended as Saint Joe's representative.

The program included table discussions of problems faced in each community in providing for the wants and needs of prospective new industries. A general review was then made of all the problems. Representatives were then asked to list the three main problems in their respective communities and indicate the easiest to overcome. This was reviewed by the entire group after which Mr. Riley suggested that each community start with its "easiest" problem and overcome it as a beginning.

The closing question pertained to the desire for another meeting. Unanimous approval was given with another meeting then set for May.

The object of the meetings is to provide for the industrial development of northeastern Indiana as a whole, rather than the present system of independent endeavors by the communities of varying size.

Boosters Meet Next Tuesday

A general meeting of the Booster Club will be held on Tuesday evening, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the fire hall at Saint Joe.

Principal business to be taken care of at the meeting is the election of new board members. A nominating committee will make its report at the meeting and additional nominations may be made from the floor.

By action of the board of directors recently, club dues were reduced to $6 per year, payable annually or semi-annually. Dues previously had been assessed at $12 per year.

Members and those interested in becoming members of the Booster Club are urged to attend the meeting. Included in the business will be discussion of progress on the public park. Other items of community improvement will also be reviewed.

LaGrange Reorganization

It will be interesting to see what comes of the hearing next month on the first reorganization plan to be formulated by an Indiana county under the school reorganization act.

I think it is indicative of an open-minded attitude that the LaGrange County committee has presented a plan at this comparatively early date. Though there were dissenters (the vote was 6-3 in favor of the plan for LaGrange County), it would appear that the committee as a whole was thinking about the welfare of all concerned rather than the wishes of localized groups. From the reports coming from the county, the only great opposition came because of the preferences of a religious sect, which certainly ought to be respected but which, however, cannot govern the county as a whole. Thus the conclusion can apparently be drawn that there are people in LaGrange County who have put aside their personal desire to have "their own" high schools, thinking mainly of the betterment of education at the upper grade level. This is the intent of the reorganization act, to improve the upper grade program.

The LaGrange plan calls for eliminating six of seven high schools in the county. Perhaps we do not appreciate what that means unless we think in terms of "eliminating" Riverdale High School. By thus reducing the number of LaGrange County high school units and combining them into one unit, there will be made avaliable, if the plan is accepted, the abandoned high school buildings for elementary and junior high classes. This is a significant result which should be considered by all of us. The fear of losing our school completely is a false fear. The consolidation of county schools does not mean that ALL grades are going to be grouped into fewer but larger buildings. We are still going to have local elementary grades and possibly local junior high grades.

What does this mean? To me it looks as if Riverdale should be planning for its elementary and junior high system first, planning for building for these grades and seeking approval of construction plans for elementary and possibly junior high buildings. If the LaGrange plan can be used as a pattern, we are wasting our time in trying to keep the high school system in this community, unless some plan is proposed by our county committee going beyond the confines of DeKalb County. We should be approaching the matter from the standpoint of what we CAN do rather than from the standpoint of what we WOULD LIKE to do. No one wants any more than I to have "our own" high school and "our own" basketball team. After all, I have three boys who, like a lot of others, would have a better chance of being on the "varsity" in a small school than in a large one. But high schools are for the purpose of education and any deficiency resulting from a small high school program cancels out my "our own" wishes.

There is a question which should be answered to guide us in our thinking in connection with this reorganization planning. That question is: why should a student in the city have a better high school program than the student in the rural area? The answer is: he shouldn't, both should have equal opportunities. And it seems strange to me that 22 years ago, in a town of 8,000 people with a high school of 600 students, I had a better opportunity in high school education than my sons have today at Riverdale. Certainly, the town was ten times or so larger than Saint Joe, but Riverdale serves more territory than just Saint Joe. And what excuse can there be for the deficiency when there have been 22 years to work with in "prosperous," "progressive" America, the land of opportunity?

Others say. . . .

THRIFT FORGOTTEN WORD IN VOCABULARY OF U.S.

A labor leader recently explained why there had to be periodic increases in salary —because everyone was living above his income. If a worker was receiving $125 a week, the chances were that he was spending $130 a week. Hence the boost was necessary to care for his excess of expense over income.

Though there are increased savings in banks, much of this money is ear-marked for vacations in sunny weather, not for rations on rainy days. Credit, the promise of social security and a general belief in the future life, along with large deductibles for entertanment, have destroyed the old American habit of frugality and thrift.

The word "frugality" is derived from the Latin word frux, meaning produce of the field; it was finally broadened into the art of saving unnecessary expense. It is also related to "economy" which is taken from two Greek words: "oikos" meaning house, and "nomos" meaning law; and means a judicious use of anything along with the prevention of waste. Neither frugality nor economy mean parsimony or stinginess.

It is often true that the very rich are very parsimonious about being generous with what they have, though they are unlimited in what they will spend on themselves. In the history of the human race, how few examples can be found of a very rich man ever giving up his wealth to keep down taxes, or to support the poor? Louis IX did it; so did Elizabeth of Hungary; but generally wealth is like hairs in the head: no matter how much one has, it hurts to have one pulled out.

The rich are apt to keep their wealth; the non-rich more apt to spend it. The rich turn the money they have into capital investment; after that it becomes a "sacred cow." No one may dare touch the principal—that is the basic principle. The non-rich generally do not like to keep birds in the bushes; they prefer to have the bird in the hand—to eat it.

No one today asks: "Can I afford it?" because one can get it on "easy credit." There is no such thing as easy credit any more than there is an easy prison sentence. Both have to run their course. No commercial ever says "buy" this or that product, but "get" it now —"run down to your neighborhood grocery or druggist or jeweler"—as if the merchants were just waiting to give handouts. Most of the automobiles in the United States are riding on mortgages and loans. And the government has given the best example of all—gone in debt beyond possibility of repayment.

What a little retrenchment and economy would do for the poor of the world! Last year the average American, including the teetotaler and babies and minors, spent an average of $53 for liquor. This represents more than the per capita income of one-fourth of the world.

Here is where thrift comes in. He who does not save and live below his income cannot take part in the charitable work of the world. He who spends all he has, can help nobody. If he has five children, he may have to consider cutting off one of his children's heads, because he can afford only four heads —or some similar procedure a little earlier in life.

The real reason for frugality and thrift is because everything we have is in trusteeship from the Great Householder; because we have nothing we did not receive, and therefore should not glory as if we did not receive and finally because we are occupants of our barns, until the Owner comes. Frugality indicates self-denial for the sake of others, and this develops strength of character and increases charity and kindness.

Though these injunctions seem to be contrary, they are really closely linked together: Get all you can; save all you can; give all you can. Properly understood, they point up that thrift is the daughter of hard work, the sister of temperance and the mother of benevolence.

The greatest lie in the defense of waste is: "You cannot take it with you." Yes, you can. The good that we do lives after us. What we take with us to the judgment seat of God is our self-denials and sacrifices, which made it possible for us to help the poor of the world.

—Bishop Fulton J. Sheen in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

THIS CAN'T BE ALLOWED TO GO ON

Farmers are as interested in protecting the public health as anyone. But with respect to feed additives, pesticides and similar tools of modern agriculture, we have an intolerable situation.

1. We have a law that needs changing — the Delaney Amendment, or "additive" to the Food Additives Act. It specifies that no substance which has ever caused cancer, in so much as a laboratory mouse, can be added to feed. It doesn't matter that the substance requires massive doses over an extended time; it doesn't matter that as little as one part per million of the additive may show up in meat, milk or eggs, or that absolutely none shows up! Congress—not scientists—has said this is dangerous and can't be allowed. The trouble with the law is simple: it leaves no room for scientific judgment.

Never before has the Food and Drug Administration been hamstrung this way. It has allowed tolerances of some 2,000 potent substances which are judged by scientists to be safe in negligible amounts. Why not continue to let scientists decide?

Actually it has been proved that salt, pepper, eggs or glucose solutions can produce cancer in experimental animals as readily as diethyl stilbestrol, which produced the recent poultry scare. Other estrogens, which act much like stilbestrol, occur naturally in alfalfa hay, corn and wheat. Are we to stop feeding them, too?

The result of the cancer scare is that Food and Drug is not approving ANY new feed additive. Manufacturers are now required to prove not only that their product hasn't yet produced cancer but that under no conceivable circumstances could it do so—obviously impossible of proof. Hence progress with new and better feed additives has almost ground to a stop. The pesticide world has been thrown into confusion.

2 We have an able, though understaffed, Food. and Drug Administration which is not completely running its own show. Decisions, if they have any publicity value, are being made by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. In the more spectacular instances, the pronouncements come from him, too—by press conference.

FDA is responsible to a cabinet officer, who is a political appointee, part of a political administration. We can't say whether Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of HEW, is influenced by political motives or not. The point is he could be. And if he weren't, his successor might be. The Secretary of HEW doesn't have many opportunities to make the front page. When something like cranberries or capons comes along, it's a temptation to call a press conference, toss the word "cancer" about, suddenly achieve headlines and emerge as the great defender of the people.

What can be done? Well, first we need a change in the Delaney Amendment. Second, we need a change in the administrative setup. Third, farmers must absolutely follow labels—the responsibility is on them, too.

As to administration, we need to remove from the hands of any one man, particularly when he is a political office holder, (1) the power to panic American consumers with a mere ill-advised statement and (2) the power to lay low with one blow an entire segment of agriculture.

How can we do it? We might make FDA an independent agency like the Federal Trade Commission. We might equip FDA with better advisory bodies than it already has—let these bodies assay the danger, make recommendations, and take over the function of announcing such news to the public. We might bring in the U.S. Public Health Service. Agriculture ought to have a voice somewhere—at least it should be heard. Maybe we need a new broad-based commission.

Certainly we need something better than we've got. The present situation cannot be allowed to go on.

INDIANA'S BIGGEST BUSINESS
10,000 Miles of State Highways

Chairman John Peters of the State Highway Commission has just released a progress report map on work done and roads built on Indiana Highways since July 1, 1957. More than 1,500 miles of new highway have been built in that time, and another 5,000 miles of our roads have been rebuilt and resurfaced. To do this 3-year job of making Hoosier Highways better requires an expenditure of $278,000,000 for new road construction alone, including Interstate Highways, and yet this figure does not include Indiana's 3-year $70,000,000 bridge program. With almost 1,625,000 passenger cars registered in Indiana, and more than 2,400,000 licensed drivers, our ten thousand miles of state highway carry an increasingly heavy traffic load seven days a week. In addition, more than 350,000 trucks, semis and busses use our roads, too.

The job of keeping up existing roads requires maintenance efforts that total in the millions; $32,500,000 in resurface reconstruction, plus $15,000,000 maintenance surface treatment, has been done, or is in the contractual stage, since July 1, 1957, to keep pace with the ever-greater use of roads by Hoosiers.

Says Chairman Peters: "This Commission has fully met the challenge of Indiana Highways; we have given Indiana a program of road construction and maintenance that realistically keeps up with the ever-increasing use of our highways by all types of vehicles. This Commission has seen to it that the people who use our roads get the most in return for their gasoline tax dollars."

In addition, the map also shows building and resurfacing projects scheduled for the first six months of 1960, involving a planned $68,000,000 in new construction and another $22,500,000 in resurfacing and reconstruction. A later map in this series will tell the $70,000,000 Indiana State Highway bridge story.

So under their new and revitalized 3-year program of road building and resurfacing, your present Indiana State Highway Commission either contracted for or is planning to schedule before July 1, this year, contracts totalling more than $295,000,000. This money gives Hoosiers 1,500 miles of new roads and resurfaces more than 5,000 miles of State Highway.

Truly our State Highways are "Indiana's Biggest Business."

A 14 year old Saint Joe youth has been ordered to the Indiana State Boys' School at Plainfield. The commitment came last week as the result of an escapade in which the youth left school at Saint Joe, hitchhiked to Fort Wayne, stole a car from a parking lot, drove to Salem, Ohio, then turned himself in to police. On the trip in the stolen automobile, the boy stopped twice for gas and drove off without paying. A 17-year-old boy accompanied the boy on part of the trip but not to Ohio.

The weather has been odd. The wind Tuesday morning blew in gusts and was "raising the roof" on some buildings. Internal pressure from sudden gusts of wind caused a plate glass window to crack at the hardware in Saint Joe.

Other conditions present due to the weather include messy and muddy streets including the main street.

Walter Whitehurst Post 283 observed the 41st anniversary of the founding of the American Legion Post in Saint Joe with a family pot luck supper at 6:30 Tuesday. There was a good attendance to enjoy the plentiful repast.

Mrs. Hazel Nicholls is in Parkview Memorial Hospital at Fort Wayne for surgery.

Funds are still available for those farmers who wish to sign for practices to perform under the 1960 ACP Program. The original deadline was March 11. About 250 farms are signed for the 1960 program, receiving assistance on liming materials, tiling, open drainage, green manure practices, establishing permanent pastures, waterways, terraces, tree planting, ponds, etc.

CHEVROLET

"Worst roads in the world, but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out!"

Out near Wathena, Kansas, farmer Milt Roundy tends 800 acres with only one helper—his 1960 Chevrolet pickup. The truck almost never runs on Kansas's fine state highways—instead it averages about 2,500 miles a month on unimproved back-country trails or on hauls into the fields, off the road. "In my book, these are the worst roads in the world," Mr. Roundy says, "but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out. It doesn't fishtail or whip around like other trucks — I can steer it with one finger!"

They're speaking right up, these owners of '60 Chevrolets. Everywhere you go, they're giving out glowing reports on a revolutionary new truck ride that leads to a bigger day's work at less expense; praising truck power that knows the most about saving money.

It's Chevy's total newness they're talking about. And you'll be talking, too, once you turn a new Chevrolet loose on your money runs. Your dealer can get you started, right away!

It takes Chevy's new Torsion-Spring Ride to smooth out a road like this!

Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

Hebrews 12:2

The Atonement of Christ, crucified for the sins of the world, is the divine example of the creative use of suffering. Through faith in God's Christ, everyone can learn to bear his own cross and come to the ultimate blessing promised to those who share the sufferings of the world's Savior.

Thursday, March 24

Read Luke 23:39-43.

Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise. (Luke 23:43.)

The thief on the cross said that he was receiving due reward for his life of sin. Nevertheless he asked Jesus' forgiveness. Christ granted salvation to him in those closing moments of life.

By Jesus' own actions we find assurance that whosoever believes in Christ will not perish, but have eternal life.

This assurance is the hope of the world today. By his own righteousness, no man can hope for eternal life. We all live in a sinful world, and by nature we are all sinners. It is only through our belief in Jesus Christ and through His forgiveness of our sins that we can be assured of everlasting life.

We have the same choice to make —to believe or not believe — as had the two thieves crucified with Jesus. The price has been paid for our sins, but each of us must believe and put our trust in Jesus if we are to be saved.

PRAYER — Heavenly Father, help us to realize that through our own thoughts and actions our future is determined. We pray for faith and wisdom such as the humble thief had when on the cross he said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." In Jesus' name. Amen.

Thought for the day—Our repentance and God's forgiveness bring us into fellowship with Him.

RABIES

WHO said when dog bites man that's not news? As a matter of fact, when a dog that is mad bites a man, that's the most important news in the man's life.

Not all persons bitten by a rabid animal develop rabies. But if they do they will die unless prophylactic treatment is begun soon enough. The treatment must be given unless it can be proved that the animal is not rabid.

The proof is obtained by keeping the animal under observation and if the animal is healthy ten days after the bite, the possibility that rabies could have been transmitted is eliminated. It is important to secure such proof, for after a bite, unless the proof is available, the treatment must be given and it is long and expensive and not without danger.

When the animal is definitely rabid, administration of daily doses of vaccine for a period of 14 days is indicated.

Rabies vaccine is expected to produce an active immunity to rabies even after the infecting agent, rabies, has been introduced into the human body through the animal bite.

The fact behind this time relationship is based on the disease's long incubation period and the assumption that intensive active immunization will produce an immunity rapidly enough to catch up with the developing infection. Thus the infection of rabies would be overcome by immunization before the virus has had time to invade and destroy vital centers of the nervous system.

Every year in this country there are 6,000 or more animals reported as rabid and at least 50,000 patients receive rabies vaccine.

Recently, it has been shown that proper methods of control, combined with area-wide vaccination of dogs, can effectively eliminate canine rabies from an area.

However, in a number of states rabid foxes and skunks are a source of infection afflicting dogs, farm animals and man, and now rabies has been found in bats.

While there are only about ten fatalities from rabies a year in the United States, it is one of the most agonizing and frightening forms of death known to man.

"The first raid!"

ELECTRICITY helps create life's most treasured moments

Caught! The pop of the flashbulb, the click of the shutter, and the first midnight raid together is recorded for the family album. Electricity helped create this happy scene. The refrigerator, the lights, the fried chicken . . . all are results of electricity's magic. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

The Saint Joe News

VOL. LXXV | Saint Joe (DeKalb Co.), Ind. | Thursday, March 31, 1960 | NUMBER 13

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

I wasn't sure last week and made a wrong guess. Ed Leigbty isn't at a rest home in Butler as stated last week in The News. He is at the Betts Home in Auburn.

Jimmy Angelone gave one of the best "pep talks" I ever heard Tuesday night at the Booster meeting. It's too bad there weren't more there to hear it. His observations injected some much-needed enthusiasm into us Saint Joe'ers about community improvement.

Herb Amstutz is all set for his contest winning prize, a trip by jet to Florida. He leaves Friday—and since it's a jet he'll be there Friday it would appear. Anyhow, he is a winner in a contest sponsored by a seed firm Herb represents.

Boosters Get Boost

Eddie Halt, Orville Coburn and Leon Kees were elected to the board of directors of the Saint Joe Booster Club at a meeting of the club Tuesday evening. Holdover members of the board are Maurice Kline, Frank Sechler and Ted Haberkorn.

A financial report by the secretary treasurer showed a balance of approximately $200 in the treasury. Expenditures for April 1959 to March 29, 1960, were just under $400.

James Angelone, Saint Joe Town Attorney, spoke to the group about "things you can do" in Saint Joe. He encouraged the club and town officials to do be aggressive in its thoughts and help the community to progress. He said fear of criticism is what causes a community to "stand still."

A report was given on possibilities of obtaining new industry in the area. Bill Hurni offered suggestions on laying out parking areas at the park and pointed out the need for dredging of the creek through the park to protect the site.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors in the Spencerville community for their help and kindness, and the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran Church for the nice dinner they served the relatives from a distance. Also the floral tributes and many acts of kindness. We also thank Pastor Ivan O. Miller for his prayers and many kind words, all of which is deeply appreciated by the family of William Wilson Hart.

Coburn Corners Revival To Begin

A pre-Easter revival is scheduled at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ beginning Monday evening, April 4, and continuing through Friday evening, April 15. Services will be held nightly except Saturday at 8:00 p.m.

Brother H. E. Weaver of Bedford, Ind., nationally-known evangelist for the Restoration Association, having held revivals in about half the states in the U.S.A., will be the evangelist. His messages are dynamic, Holy Spirit inspired and presented in such a way that "a child can understand and not err therein."

The music will be under the direction of Dan Hughes of Minerva, Ohio. He was born in Melody, Wales, and reared among a singing people. He resisted the temptations of a profitable entertainment career and dedicated his rich tenor voice to the Lord. His solo singing is unique, his song leadership stimulating, his personality captivating.

Prior to each service there will be a special youth program at 7:30 for Intermediate and High School youth. Film strips will be used on Young Teens and Dating. There will also be a prayer circle at 7:45.

To make it possible for mothers with small children to attend the services, there will be a nursery each evening.

Paul Hill, minister of the local church, extends a personal invitation to the public to attend. "Come as you are — Christ will do the rest."

Local News

On Thursday, March 24, 28 DeKalb Junior Leaders and Leaders attended a District 4-H Club Junior Leaders Training Conference held at the Kendallville First Methodist Church. The program is sponsored jointly by Purdue Extension and Farm Bureau.

Classes were held in workshop for song leaders, workshop for recreation leaders, why be a junior leader, how do I get the job done, blueprint for youth in the sixties, what's my job, and let's build a 4-H club house.

Those attending included Karen Fish and Bob Crowl of Spencer Township, Pat Coburn and Robert Gick of Concord Township, Imogene Nusbaum of Newville Township and Paul Friend and Roberta Hawver of Jackson Township.

The Saint Joe Lions Club was host to the Riverdale varsity basketball team and cheerleaders at a dinner meeting held Monday night at the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Coach Price Brookfield introduced the young ladies and young men. The program for the evening was presented by Alan Dale, executive vice-president of the Insurance Institute of Indiana. A film of an automobile accdent was shown, then those present filled out an "accident report form" similar to that used by the state of Indiana. The institute is conducting the survey of report accuracy in an effort to establish a more accurate means of gaining information concerning accidents. The tests show that the eye often sees things which did not happen or exist. A report of the Lions Club's accuracy will be sent to the club in a few weeks.

The engagement of Miss Julia Jean Naylor of Auburn and Mr. Burmell E. Walter of north of Saint Joe has been announced by her parents. Mr. Walter is a teacher at Butler and formerly taught at Riverdale.

Dawn Elaine Edsall of Auburn, the 6-month-old baby needing expert medical attention to correct an internal defect, has had an operation and will return home this week end. The operation has been termed a success giving her a normal life expectancy replacing the two years of life expected before surgery. Her recovery is made possible thru a doctor's generosity and donations from the American Legion and the general public.

Judge Harold Stump ruled against Charlotte McMaken last week in her complaint seeking a divorce from Albert McMaken. The defendant husband appeared at the hearing but without counsel. Prosecutor Warren Sunday appeared for the state to resist the cause of action.

Wednesday dinner guests of Mrs. Marie Meese were Mrs. Vernie Monroe, Mrs. Mae Openlander, Mrs. Alice Draggoo and Mrs. Marie Zulick of Auburn.

L. W. Miller, principal of Auburn High School, and Leonard Lowe, principal of Butler High School, will be among the resource persons assisting at the Guidance and Counseling Seminar at Indiana Technical College April 9. 69 resource persons will assist during the six different seminar sessions. Leonard Johnston, guidance director at Butler High School, will also assist at the seminar.

Army Private Franklyn Wade recently arrived in Germany and is now a member of the 24th Infantry Division. Pvt. Wade entered the army in September of 1959. He is a 1955 graduate of the local high school.

A "feed wheat application" will entitle farmers whose wheat acreage allotments are less than 30 acres to use the wheat exclusively on the farm where produced as seed, human food or livestock and poultry feed. Interested farmers should contact the ASC office in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Orley Smith and their son, Richard Smith, of Corunna have re-filed an application for permit to operate a tavern in that town. An application a year ago was denied by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission due to community opposition.

A hearing will be held April 25 by the Interstate Commerce Commission on a proposal to split the state of Indiana between standard and daylight saving time.

Wool growers are reminded of the importance of keeping complete records on sales of wool and unshorn lambs. Producers will be eligible for payments for the 1959 marketing year for wool and unshorn lambs marketed not later than March 31 of this year, according to the ASC office.

Larry Beuret of Auburn was one of two top senior division winners last week at the Northeastern Indiana Regional Science Fair at Fort Wayne. His entry was "Research on Blood Preservative of the Leech."

Every farmer who has crop land under a Conservation Reserve Contract this year must be sure to comply with any acreage allotments on the farm and also to observe his permitted acreage of Soil Bank base crops, Ray Miller of the county ASC office reports.

Census enumerators in DeKalb County include the following: Leon Kees, Spencer Township; Mrs. Dorothy Fetters, Concord Township; and Don Friend, Jackson Township.

Funeral services were held Saturday for William W. Hart, 87, of Spencerville. Mr. Hart died Wednesday of last week at his home. Rev. I. O. Here's one of the prized pictures in the family album! Even in dreamland it looks as if Susie is enjoying the wonders of Hans Christian Andersen. The end of a perfect day, and electricity helped make it so. The lights, the cozy warmth, the good food, the clean clothes were just part of electricity's contribution. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Hospital Sold

Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett has been sold under a purchase agreement to Dr. Carl Elward of Wabash. Dr. Elward plans to reopen the hospital within 6 to 8 weeks if he can obtain a license from the state of Indiana.

Announcement of the sale was made last Thursday at the annual meeting and banquet of the Garrett Chamber of Commerce by Carl McKee, president of the Garrett chamber.

Indications are that the state licensing board has given a favorable reception toward the plans of Dr. Elward and the arrangements were then made public. The Garrett Chamber of Commerce had been working with Dr. Elward in arranging for the reopening of the hospital.

A laboratory technician has been hired and negotiations are under way to obtain an administrator for the hospital.

Plans include formation of a non-profit corporation with members being DeKalb County citizens.

Dr. Elward announced later that if he is not successful in obtaining a state license for the hospital, the building will be converted into a large nursing home or the equipment and supplies sold and the building leased to a responsible party.

Rev. Kaye Casterline, pastor of the Newville EUB of which the deceased was a member, officiated at the services and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Newville.

Important PTA Meeting April 19

The April 19 meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be of particular importance to patrons of the school for two reasons. One is that election of officers will be held. The other, and more important reason, is that Dr. Marion McGhehey, executive secretary of the Indiana School Boards Association and member of the Indiana University faculty, and Mr. Ralph Sechler of Saint Joe, member of the DeKalb County School Reorganization Committee, will present facts concerning the reorganization of schools on a state and local level.

Dr. McGhehey has been an active proponent of school reorganization in the past several years. He has extensive knowledge of the school systems throughout the state and of the purpose and intent of the reorganization act in Indiana.

Mr. Sechler has been serving on the county reorganization committee for the past few months. Some of the information gathered by the committee is now available for public consideration and he will present some of that information which may then be used in combination with the general pattern of reorganization as a basis for Riverdale patrons to analyze the local situation.

Ted Haberkorn, president of the P.T.A., urges all Riverdale patrons, whether or not they have children or children in school, to set Tuesday, April 19, as an important meeting night and attend the meeting.

Work Day April 13

The annual "Work Day" of the Riverdale Senior Class will be held next Wednesday, April 13.

Boys and girls of the Senior Class will be available for all types of odd jobs throughout the day. A car-wash is also included in services offered.

Anyone wishing to hire a Senior or Seniors may call the school office at 2345 to make their request.

MRS. GENE ZERNS

Miss Fletta Griggs of Saint Joe became the bride of Gene Zerns of Auburn in a wedding ceremony performed at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, April 3, at the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey C. Griggs of Saint Joe and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Zerns of Auburn.

James Beck of South Bend officiated at the wedding and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Music was provided by Miss Kathleen Anthony, vocalist, and Miss Cheryll Walker, pianist.

The church was beautifully decorated with white shasta mums and pink gladioli.

The bride was attired in a floor length gown of white chantilly lace and lylon tulle over white taffeta. The molded lace bodice featured long sleeves and a scalloped scoop neckline, outlined with pearls and iridescent sequins.

The bouffant skirt of tulle was highlighted by lace appliques and an overskirt of lace forming a peplum effect. Her fingertip veil of illusion was caught to a Swedish crown of pearl flowerettes.

Miss Rozanna Hyman of Fort Wayne was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Lois Griggs of Saint Joe, sister of the bride, and Mrs. James Crooks of Grand Rapids, Mich., sister of the groom.

The flower girl was Miss Veda Sue Griggs, sister of the bride. James Crooks, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Harry Lee Gorrell, Jr., of Auburn and William Griggs of Saint Joe, brother of the bride.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the church basement. Mrs. Harry Lee Gorrell, Jr., of Auburn was in charge of the guest book. Serving were Mrs. LaVern Ward of Payne, Ohio; aunt of the bride; Mrs. Joseph Griggs of Mt. Summit, Ind., an aunt of the bride; Mrs. Donald Duesler of Waterloo; Mrs. James Muzzillo of Waterloo; Mrs. Ned Brand and Mrs. Robert Holmes of Auburn; and Miss Karon Holman of Parkview Methodist School of Nursing in Fort Wayne.

The bride and groom left for a honeymoon in the eastern states. They will reside temporarily with the groom's parents on their return in a week.

The new Mrs. Zerns is a nurse at Souder Hospital in Auburn while Mr. Zerns is a clerk in the Auburn post office.

Lions Give $100

Around the Town

With the Editor

After Lions Club the other night, I was driving past the Methodist Church at Spencerville and saw the lights burning as they have been many nights in recent weeks. This time I'll stop in and see how the remodeling is coming, I thought. And what a pretty sight it was inside the door.

All the work wasn't done, the men were laying the floor tile and had about half of it done as I entered. But you could see that the interior was going to be beautiful by the time the work is finished.

Pastor Trout told me about the plans to have it ready for Easter; they'll have to work like beavers to do it. The new pews are due Friday, the woodwork at the chancel is yet to be completed and there are the odds and ends of remodeling to finish. But they plan on making it.

Part of the work includes redoing the frames around the stained glass windows. There's a room-length ceiling light fixture which illuminates the room with indirect light. The walls are bright and cheerful and acoustical tile adorns the ceiling. When it's all done, the church is going to be a pretty sight.

The prettiest sight, though, was the 10 or 12 men contributing their time to beautify their church.

Those spelling judges come in for a hard time occasionally.

Friday night in the Journal-Gazette contest, four or five had dropped out when our Mike got the word "successfully." He came to the double "s" and it sounded as if he said "s-f" when he garbled it up a bit. He knew it sounded wrong so he repeated "s-s" quite distinctly and finished the word. The judges hesitated. They played back the tape recorder used for just such situations and it sounded like "s-f" but you couldn't be sure. They played the tape over again and decided to let him continue in the contest.

But if anyone was upset over his "special" consideration, they were calmed when he came to "niece." That old rule about "i" before "e" got him, and the exceptions got him, and he said "n-e-i-c-e." That was it.

I still think those contests are harder on parents than they are on kids. My nails haven't grown out yet.

Speaking of seeing pretty things as I did back aways, I heard the sweetest words in a long time Tuesday night when I went to bed — — — — the radio was on and Jack Quinlan said, "- - -That brings up Ernie Banks!"

Riverdale Has Spelling Champ

Phil Haberkorn, student in the third grade at Riverdale, captured the DeKalb County spelling championship for his grade last Thursday evening at Auburn. He won the title in competition with students from 11 other schools in DeKalb County and was the only Riverdale representative to win a ribbon. Blue, red and white ribbons were awarded to first second and third place winners, respectively.

Other blue ribbon winners Thursday were Cheryl Ford of Waterloo-Grant, fourth grade; Ann Grubb, Auburn, fifth grade; and Lorna Hartman, Zion Lutheran Fairfield Twp., sixth grade.

In Friday night's competition Mike Haberkorn, Riverdale's representative in the Journal-Gazette contest, came in third. The winner was Ginger Haislip of Waterloo. Runner-up was Margery Myers of West Richland.

The seventh grade winner was Dale Holzbauer of Ashley Smithfield Township and the eighth grade winner was Jeannette Aldrich of Waterloo-Grant.

School Reorganization Topic By Dr. McGhehey, Ralph Sechler At Meeting Next Tuesday

Residents of this area have an excellent opportunity to become better informed about the Indiana school reorganization act next Tuesday evening when Dr. Marion McGhehey of Indiana University at Bloomington and Mr. Ralph Sechler of Saint Joe will address the Riverdale P.T.A. The meeting is open to the public and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The program was arranged in response to comments by Riverdale patrons that they would "like to know more about reorganization."

Dr. McGhehey is executive secretary of the Indiana School Boards Association and is well-informed on the workings and purposes of the reorganization act. He is engaged in extensive travels within the state presenting programs to make the public better informed on school reorganization problems. This is in addition to his duties as a faculty member on the I. U. campus.

Mr. Sechler s now a member of the DeKalb County reorganization committee. His presentation will include information gathered by the county committee in its work aimed at formulating a plan for schools in the entire county.

Ted Haberkorn, president of the P.T.A. has extended an invitation to the public to attend the meeting. "In view of the controversial aspects of school reorganization, it seems appropriate that this program be presented at this time. Residents in this area will have an opportunity to become better acquainted with the school reorganization law and how it applies to us. The more information we obtain, the more intelligently we can make our decisions," he said.

Election of officers will be held at the meeting.

The meeting will be held in the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe.

School Visitation

All children of the Riverdale school district who will be six years old on or before October 10, 1960, are invited to visit the first grade at Spencerville on Friday, April 29.

School begins at 9:00 a.m. E.S.T. Children may ride on the school bus that passes nearest their homes. Lunch will be served in the cafeteria free of charge.

Parents are asked to call for their children at 12:15 p. m. or arrange to have a neighbor or friend bring them home.

Parents are asked to send the child's birth certificate and the following information: Name, address, grade, age, date of birth (month, day, year), birthplace of child, parent's name, occupation, telephone number, township, bus driver, number of school bus, or if the child walks or has other transportation.

Pheasants Released

The local conservation club released 36 pheasants recently, according to Estil Taylor, secretary of the club.

The pheasants were obtained from the Bluffton game preserve and released March 30. Six were released at the farms of Wayne Storer, Ford Jackson, Roscoe Walter, Russell Tustison, Francis Sible and L. G. Fetters.

Teacher Tells About 'Congo' At Lions Club

Miss Betty Stephens, teacher at Riverdale High School, addressed the Saint Joe Lions Club Monday evening at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Miss Stephens presented the Lions with information about the Belgian Congo where she taught for four years. She has not returned to the Congo because of political unrest in that country in recent months.

Miss Stephens pointed out that a major difficulty encountered in relations between the black and white races in the Congo is that of suspicion. She opined that white leadership was trying to help the black native by urging them and trying to teach them to be self-sufficient. But the native is suspicious and considers such advice a trick to get him to work. He thinks he is being exploited rather than helped.

Color movies taken by Miss Stephens, were shown to illustrate her talk. During the question period the Riverdale teacher said that the climate in the Congo was ideal, not humid, and averaging around 76 degrees, from hot during the day to rather cool at night.

Tuesday's Meeting Important

The program to be presented next Tuesday at the P.T.A. meeting is timely inasmuch as the first county school reorganization plan in Indiana has been presented to the state for approval under the school reorganization act and the plan has been approved by the state. While our county has not yet formulated a plan, it will in the future.

The success of reorganizing the schools in the state rests a great deal upon the intelligence of the public regarding the workings of the reorganization. There certainly can be some "bad" things noted in the reorganization process, such as the apparent "undiplomatic" handling of the LaGrange County hearing last week; but we must remember that the intent of the law is good and future generations will benefit by sensible and constructive criticisms to make the reorganization more efficient.

Dr. Marion McGhehey is one of the most informed persons in the state of Indiana on the Indiana school reorganization act. He has extensive knowledge of communities and their problems.

One problem that appears most frequently is the matter of "losing home rule" in reorganizing the schools. One thought expressed by a writer in a nearby weekly newspaper last week gave the impression that when county citizens voted on reorganization, they would have a multiple choice type of vote. This is not correct. The law states that a plan approved by the state after being submitted by the county committee is then officially adopted in one of two ways. Citizens of DeKalb County, for instance, would adopt the recommendations of the county reorganization board and the state by obtaining the signatures of at least 55 per cent of the registered voters on a petition in the county. Or, if this were not done in the allotted time, a referendum would be held and a majority of votes cast in favor of the plan would put the plan into effect. In other words, it isn't a matter of choice of plans and you MUST pick one; it is a matter of an individual saying "yes" or "no" when a plan is approved by the county committee and the state, either by signing or not signing a petition or voting specifically "yes" or "no" at a referendum.

Suppose a plan is not petitioned for and it doesn't get the required majority vote at a referendum. The committee can re-submit the plan for public approval not less than a year later, presumably to give the public a chance to think about the plan if there are any controversial items. Then if the plan does not get the majority approval from the affected voters, the committee must start all over again from the beginning. They may revamp the plan before seeking state approval or they may submit the same plan as was originally submitted. But they cannot proceed without state approval when a plan has been rejected twice by voters. So it looks as if any fear of the state "telling" us what we have to do is groundless since county voters can apparently say "no" as many times as they want. There is no limit as to the number of plans and rejections. Thus, it is quite possible, if we want to look at the dark side, that ten years from now we can still be in the same shape county-wise as we now are.

Naturally, new legislation can change the whole picture.

Mr. Ralph Sechler, who has been serving on the county reorganization committee, will augment the program Tuesday with information of a local nature gathered by the county committee. Between the two men who will speak at the meeting, there will be sufficient information available to clear up some of the misunderstandings and misapprehensions which pop into our minds when we read about the schools today. Since there are probably some questions already in the minds of Riverdale patrons, patrons are invited to submit their question(s) in the accompanying blank, sending the queries to the News Office. This will assist the speakers in preparing information which will benefit our particular community.

A big circle around the "19" on the calendar for this month is appropriate. So is the invitation, "Y'all come."

GOOD EVENING

What the Republican Party suffers from, up and down the country today, is a lack of a political creed. And unless a political party takes a positive stand on isses and principles, it hasn't anything to sell, except in a negative way.

I doubt f anyone would be interested in joining a church, if the church took no position on anything, but merely asked you to join and support it, so the minister in charge might have a job which would provide a livelihood for him and his famly.

In a similar way, it is difficult to get citizens of the United States steamed up to join and support a party, just so the party professionals may get material rewards for being in power.

If the Reublican Party has anything which it could sell as a political creed today it is conservatism, which can be defined as a preservation of the best things of our American past, with a willingness to adapt past ideas to new conditions. It matters what a man believes, because what he believes explains and accounts for what he is. It matters also what a political party believes for that also explains and accounts for what it is.

The fact of the matter is that "conservatism" has become a dirty political word, due to intensive and effective propaganda on the part of the liberals. With a few exceptions, such as Herbert Hoover, hardly any Republican will accept the appelation "conservative," not alone try to extend its application to those around him.

Everyone, even the most reactionary and non-conservative people, want to be called "liberals," because it is deemed necessary to be fashionable and conformist. This, of course, favors the Democratic Party, because whatever else it may actually be, it has succeeded in making itself known as the Liberal Party. Yet the opposition to the advancement of Civil Rights in this country is coming from the Democratic South, and if Senator Jack Kennedy succeeds in proving that 40 million Americans or so aren't second class citizens, the first big hurdle he will have to overcome is the southern wing of the Democratic Party, the same one which tries to monopolize for itself the term "liberalism."

There have been many in the Republican Party who have consistently said for a long time that it is better for the Republican Party to go down to defeat regularly, standing for something, than to attempt a doubtful vicitory standing for nothing. The wisdom of that has been demonstrated time and time again.

If the Republican Party is to become something besides a mere appendage to one President's personal popularity, it has to schedule a skull session to come up with a definite political creed, which voters can accept or reject definitely. John Doe, voter, doesn't care whether Mike So-and-So gets a political plumb of a profitable contract. John Doe has to be appealed to a higher level than that.

Vice-President Richard Nixon, unopposed for the Republican Presidential nomination, looks like a shoo-in for the nomination, but not necessarily a shoo-in for the Presidency. He too could make the mistake that Tom Dewey made by trying to be all things to all people. It never works.

What the Republican Party needs here, there and elsewhere is acceptance of the very realistic political philosophy that voters are appealed to through the use of sound ideas, not by anything else.

Today's MEDITATION

from

The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room

© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Thursday, April 14.

Read Matthew 5:43-48.

The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love. (Jeremiah 31:3.)

Many years ago I took a little friend from another country to see that wonder of God's creation, Niagara Falls. He was terrified when he saw the rushing waters. He refused to go near. So we left the Falls and went for a walk.

A few hours later we returned to the same place. He was willing to go a little closer. As he looked at the water, his remark was: "It hasn't all gone over yet."

That remark reminded me of God's constant love and care - so much He has given and sent out, and still enough yet for every one of us. Devine love is constant by day and by night. Our shortcomings are as rocks and our sins as barriers, but the love of God flows around us and over us and goes with us all the way.

PRAYER: For Thy love which never changes, our Father, we thank Thee. Establish us in faith in Christ so that we are no longer turned with the tide of everyday living. Keep us, we pray, always in Thy care and in the knowledge that Thy great love sent Jesus Christ to be our Saviour. Forgive us our sins and redeem us through Him, who suffered that we might have life eternal. For His sake. Amen.

Thought For the Day—God always cares for us; it is to our shame when we reject Him.

Figure the money you save when you've got a medium-duty truck that can cover 30,000 back-country miles a year with a high-tonnage load!

We've never seen anything like the amount of praise truck owners are heaping on Chevy's new torsion spring suspension. Variety Show

Jean Nusbaum, Rep.

The Sophomore Class of Riverdale High School presented a Variety Show on March 17 and 18 in the high school gym. It was the first program of this type to be presented by a class in this community and was very successful.

Although the show was sponsored by the sophomores, students from each class participated in the entertainment which consisted of pantomimes, dance routines, short skits and musical selections by the band and various individuals.

Between acts, the band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, played a few rousing selections which added to the spirit of the program.

The curtain opened and the masters of ceremonies, Steve Brown and Tom McKown, announced the beginning of the first act. As the strains of "Sweet Georgia Brown" flowed through the air, the audience viewed a chorus line of six eighth grade girls: Joan Vinson, Glenda Sible, Mary Smith, Carolyn Voirol, Sandy Lou Miller and Sandy Kay Miller. Following this number a piano solo was given by Pat Coburn of the seventh grade. Next in line were Shirley and Donna Zimmerman with a version of two tramps enjoying a day in the park, accompanied on the piano by Pat Coburn. The seventh grade contributed again with the talents of Dennis Allen and his baffling magician act. A senior, Joy McNabb, closed the first act very effectively by playing the guitar and singing several selections, one of which she composed.

Two eighth grade girls, Peg Keith and Karen Witt, introduced the second act by singing one of today's popular songs, "Teen Angel," with piano accompaniment by Kay Halt, a junior. A cornet trio, Andy Crow, Nancy Brown and Terry Doub, played a song that was recently popular, "That's the Time To Cry."

The sophomores took their turn with Frances Groves stepping out of the Charleston era, decked in the appropriate costume, giving her version of a wide-eyed girl of the twenties kicking up her heels. Next came a rousing comedy routine entitled "Operation Petticoat" that was ably performed by five freshman boys, Ford Hudson, Jerry Kline, Dan Bennett, Terry Doub and Don Moore, clearly displaying their talents.

The third act opened with a dance routine by four sophomore girls, Pat Rowe, Dola Johnson, Etta Stark and Mary Vinson, giving their rendition of "Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair." Cheryll Walker, a junior, followed with a piano solo. A group of sophomores and juniors, including Ruth Washler, Lynda Fisher, Cheryll Collins, Leota Schrader, Sharon Beaty, Judy Coddington and Karen Chapman, joined together in a short melodrama entitled, "For the Land's Sake," their version of a poor family having their mortgage forclosed by the villainous mortgager. A group of eighth grade pupils, Karen Witt, Susie Coburn, Sandy Miller, Curtis Ransom, Dennis Helbert, Esther Holmes and Peg Keith, followed with a short skit entitled, "Shortnin' Bread." A clarinet quartet, with Judith Furnish, Danny Kessler, Michele Davis and Mike Haberkorn, was next in line. Tom and Darlene McKown sang a very stirring duet of "Mansion Over the Hilltop" which closed the program in a serious manner.

Each act was interrupted by Ruth Washler, a sophomore, with her untimely and comical attempts to get into the show.

The sophomore co-sponsors, Mrs. Frances Huddleston and Mr. Richard Hartung, gave a helping hand with Mrs. Huddleston making most of the costumes and Mr. Hartung directing the production.

As the curtain closed after the second night's presentation, I couldn't help thinking that it would probably benefit the school and the community if an annual Variety Show, sponsored by the sophomore class, would become a tradition just as the plays presented annually by the junior and senior classes.

Blast

The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.
I Corinthians 15:26

The blast of a splitting atom has filled men's hearts with new fears. But the blast of God's power which burst the hold of death in Christ, fills men's hearts with hope. The power of the atom comes from created materials of the earth. But everlasting life is the gift of the Creator, through His Son. The Church of the Risen Redeemer celebrates the Easter victory each Sunday.

Easter Background

The first Easter parades weren't the fashion shows Irving Berlin wrote about, but the celebration of a new life. The custom of wearing new clothes on Easter Sunday dates from the early days of Christianity when newly baptized Christians were clothed in garments of white linen.

Researchers with World Book Encyclopedia report that baptism has always been closely associated with Easter. Just as the Resurrection represents the new life of Christ, so baptism represents the initiation of the believer into a new life. In the early church Lent was the annual season of preparation for baptism, and the sacrament was celebrated on Holy Saturday during the Easter Vigil. Eventually all Christians began to dress up for a joyful parade through town, much to the joy of today's clothing manufacturers. In fact, it might have been an early advertising executive who coined the English rhyme, "At Easter let your clothes be new, or else be sure you will it rue."

The rabbit may have become a symbol of Easter because of the moon. World Book Encyclopedia explains that some ancient peoples considered the rabbit a symbol of the moon, and the moon determines the date of Easter.

Church bells, not rabbits, are said to deliver Easter eggs in Belgium and France. One legend says that the bells, which do not ring from Good Friday to Easter, fly ti Rome. They return on Easter and drop the eggs.

1960 HIGHWAY PROGRAM
Roads & Bridges for Spring Construction

The map shows roads and bridges to be constructed, along with those already built since July 1, 1959 to give you a picture of Highway Construction in the fiscal year of 1960.

Total planned expenditures are slightly more than $112,000,000.00 Fiscal 1960 ends June 30 this year. The total is made up of —

Right-of-Way costs	$ 16,500,000.00
Bridge contracts	37,801,000.00
Road contracts	57,706,163.00
TOTAL	$112,007,163.00

This does not include an estimated $4,500,000 in Maintenance contracts planned for Spring and early Summer lettings, and no Maintenance work is shown on our map.

Governor Harold Handley points out: about five-million Hoosiers driving 1,625,000 automobiles and 353,000 trucks and busses spend a portion of almost every day on some section of our 11,000 miles of State Highways. The six-million and more Hoosiers of the year 1975 will have to live with the roads being planned and constructed today. Indiana State Highway Department plans its roads to meet the heavier traffic conditions predicted for twenty years from now.

With the Editor

Mrs. Frank Bowman of Butler mentioned Sunday that Mrs. Buckingham wanted to say thank you to those who have remembered her with cards, visits and flowers. She is residing at the Sheehy Home in Butler .

I stopped in to see her Tuesday afternoon. Most of the conversation was about her little home here in Saint Joe. I think if more of us thought as much about our home as Mrs. "Buck" does hers, there would be considerably fewer troubles in this world. The irony is, we can live in our homes; she can't.

If you want to hear about an unusual and undiscovered (until recently) talent, ask Maurice Kline, the dress shop stuck-zipper repairman.

School Break-In

Burglars broke into the office of the Riverdale principal last week end and took about $5 in cash.

The burglars are believed to have sneaked into the high school building sometime Friday while a group of students were painting the stage and preparing props for a school play.

The students were in the building Friday morning and again in the afternoon. The break-in was discovered Saturday afternoon and reported to Sheriff Dorsie Likens.

Meeting Clears Some School Doubts

Around 80 persons were present Tuesday evening to hear informative talks by Dr. Marion McGhehey, executive secretary of the Indiana School Boards Association, and Ralph Sechler, member of the DeKalb County school reorganization committee, a program presented by the Riverdale P.T.A.

Election of officers was held during the meeting with the following officers named:

Ted Haberkorn, president.

Forrest Bevington, vice president.

Mrs. Robert Davis, secretary.

Mrs. Hearsel Shockley, treasurer.

Dr. McGhehey presented observations of situations in various parts of the state and the problems encountered as the school reorganization law is carried out. He noted that misinformation has been causing an amount of apprehension in the minds of the public, in particular regarding the rights of local voters, the matter of home rule. He noted that, under the law, the people within proposed school districts are the ones who decide "yes" or "no" when a plan has been approved by the state after being submitted by the county committee. If a petition with 55 per cent of the registered voters is not presented, the choice then automatically goes to the voter in a referendum.

The speaker noted in his remarks that conditions exist in many areas which must be allowed for in setting up a school district.

Mr. Sechler then presented information about DeKalb County schools which indicated that the cost per pupil in the various schools is inversely proportional to the number of pupils in the school; that is, the fewer the students in the high school grades, the more the cost per pupil in maintaining the high school.

Other figures presented by Mr. Sechler indicated that the Riverdale area has a fairly good ratio of assessed valuation per pupil as a tax base. Butler is highest in the county in this respect with $9,063 per pupil. Riverdale has $6,912 per pupil.

Information presented was well-received with several questions thrown at the two speakers to conclude the program.

One of the notable facts arising out of the program was the intent of the reorganization law to keep elementary schools in local areas, close to the students. Construction of elementary buildings to provide for present needs is thus possible at the present time even though reorganization is being carried out.

However, because the teaching program changes in the upper grades, high schools are to be formed with from 400 to 700 students. This provides a wider curriculum and reduces the cost per pupil of the high school unit.

'Babe' Coburn Heads Boosters

The board of directors of the Booster Club of Saint Joe met Friday evening to elect officers for 1960-61.

The board continued with plans to purchase land as an industrial site and is proceeding with necessary arrangements. An order for park equipment was presented and approved.

Membership in the club is now available for six dollars per year, payable annually or semi-annually, and may be obtained from Eddie Halt.

Dairy Judging Team 4th

The Riverdale FFA Dairy Judging Team won fourth place honors Wednesday of last week in a contest held at Avilla. 26 4-H and FFA boys participated.

Third place was won by Garrett with 882 points. Riverdale had 615 points.

Ten high individual scores were: Richard Pfefferkorn, Corunna, 245 points; Chalmer Tuttle, Avilla, 237; Ron Smith, Riverdale, 230; George Noirot, Waterloo, 230; Phil Pinkertan, Waterloo, 228; Bob Gick, Riverdale, 228; DeWayne Lockwood, Waterloo, 226; Bob Jarrett, Riverdale, 225; Gaylord Shaffer, Garrett, 218; John Smith, Waterloo, 217 points.

Only One Boat Registration Necessary

Boater owners of Indiana who have registered or will register their boats under the new Indiana Motorboat Registration Law, will not be required to register their boats with the U.S. Coast Guard.

"The U.S. Coast Guard will not issue any numbers to a boat already numbered under the Indiana numbering system as that system was approved by the Coast Guard on January 13, 1960. The Coast Guard applications and stamps available at all first and second class post offices are solely for numbering boats in any state not having an approved system," Mr. John Rawlins, superintendent of the enforcement division has said. Indiana has an approved system.

Recent news stories containing the Coast Guard registration rules have led boat owners to believe that boats must be registered with the Coast Guard and Indiana. This is not necessary as Indiana has complied with the Federal Bonner Acts and its numbering system has been approved by the Coast Guard.

The registration and the numbers that go with the registration, when applied to a boat, allow that registration to be honored in any state that has an approved system and on any federal waters under the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard.

The Indiana law requires registration of all motor boats of 6 horsepower or over.

The fee for the registration is $3.00 for three years.

Registration blanks are available at the hardware in Saint Joe.

FARM BUREAU CO-OP

AUBURN, INDIANA

Mr. Farmer:

As we approach the beginning of a new planting season, we in the petroleum department want to wish you good luck with this year's business. Fully realizing it is necessary for you to maintain a lot of motor driven equipment in the performance of your business, we invite you to participate in the facilities of your organization.

The farmers of the state of Indiana and DeKalb County have made available to themselves this fine Petroleum operation. They have not assumed the position of trying to supply nation wide petroleum needs. Rather they have dedicated their petroleum operation entirely to what the needs of the farmer might be. They strive 365 days a year to develop petroleum products to meet the problems you farmers might be experiencing.

A splendid example of this is the introduction of REGULEX-4. Read it. You will find it very interesting.

The spring oil and grease sale ends April 30 - 10 per cent savings.

So, as you start up the tractors this spring, give us a thought. Order a quantity of REGULEX-4 sufficient to convince yourself that your Farm Bureau Co-op serves you with superior petroleum products.

Very truly yours,

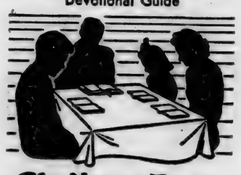
Today's MEDITATION from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide



The Upper Room
© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Thursday, April 21.

Read 1 Corinthians 15:20-28.

And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead (Ephesians 1:-19-20.)

In his play, The Trial of Jesus, John Masefield describes a scene between Pilate's wife and the Roman soldier who reported that the tomb of Jesus was empty. Excitedly she asked him, "Do you think He is dead?"

"No, lady, I don't," he replied.

"Then where is He?" she inquired.

"Loose in the world, lady, where no one can stop His truth."

This is God's declaration to all the forces of evil. Jesus of Nazareth has broken out of earth's prison! Christ has triumphed over sin, death, and the grave! He lives today!

The resurrection message brings hope to the Christian in this dark day. Christ's mighty power within us makes us conquerors over every temptation, sorrow or loss in this present world. Moreover, He gives us immortality!

PRAYER: Fill us, O Father, with Thy mighty power that we may be more than conquerors through Thy love. Help us to recognize Thy constant nearness to encourage and guide us always. Make us triumphant, through the power of our Living Lord, In His name. Amen.

Thought for the day : We find comfort and challenge in the words of the risen Christ, "Lo, I am with you alway."

DRIVE IT!

OUR DEAL!!!!

A pair of Corvairs recently recorded 27.03 and 26.21 miles per gallon in the 2,061.4-mile Mobilgas Economy Run. That's certified proof that Corvair skimps on gas costs. It saves other ways, too. Corvair is the only U. S. compact car that never needs antifreeze or costly radiator repairs. Come in and drive the compact car that outdoes them all.

Things Corvair gives you that America's other compact cars can't:

Practically flat floor . . . real foot room for the man in the middle. Fold-down rear seat gives 17.6 cu. ft. of extra storage space. Four-wheel independent suspension for a smoother, flatter ride. Rear-engine traction . . . that comes with the engine's weight bearing down on the rear wheels.

You probably realize already that the mileage figures Corvairs recorded in the Mobilgas Run are higher than the average driver can expect. But because the cars met every kind of driving condition—rugged mountain grades, long country straightaways, congested city traffic—those mileage figures prove Corvair's inherent ability to save. Operating costs take a nose dive the day you take delivery of a Corvair.

HINTS ON HEALTH

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

IT TAKES TIME

VICTIMS of chronic or prolonged disease need to be emotionally conditioned. Often it is overwhelmingly discouraging to a patient to learn that his illness will necessitate months or even years of altered living.

Physicians find that a patient with a chronic disease is unable usually to look at his total predicament objectively. Tact is required in helping along the patient's adjustment to the present and the future. At times, the patient's emotions demand release, even though it be through tearful expression of doubt and fear. Even so, a person enduring a chronic disease has a right to know exactly what is wrong with him.

The best recovery possible comes through the patient's understanding and full cooperation with his physician, his hospital authorities, and members of his family.

It is estimated that 25 million persons in the United States are afflicted with chronic illnesses. Of these, approximately one and a half million are invalided and another five and a half million suffer disability.

The basic characteristic of chronic disease is its long duration which puts a burden on the patient and also on members of his family.

Among chronic diseases are heart disease and allied conditions, kidney disease, nervous and mental disorders, tuberculosis, cancer, diabetes, asthma, and arthritis.

While chronic diseases affect all ages, more than half of the chronically ill are under 45 years of age.

Meeting Next Wednesday On Bringing New Industry

Ted Haberkorn, chairman of the industrial expansion committee of the Booster Club of Saint Joe, has announced that a meeting vital to the growth of Saint Joe regarding industrial expansion will be held next Wednesday evening, May 4, at 7:00 p.m. at the Town Hall.

The committee has been making arrangements for the purchase of real estate for industrial purposes and is in the process of preparing for the purchase of 5 acres of land with an option to be obtained on another 5 acres.

The purchase of the first tract has a direct bearing on Wednesday's meeting since a representative of a firm interested in locating at Saint Joe will be present to discuss arrangements for acquiring the site and erecting a building suitable for the needs of the firm.

Businessmen, Boosters, anyone desiring to show the community's willingness to cooperate in bringing an industry to Saint Joe are urged to attend the meeting next Wednesday. In addition to the representative of the industrial prospect, William Nimmo, district manager of Indiana-Michigan Electric Company at Butler, and Herman Steigman, of the utility's industrial develment department, will be present.

Boys, Girls Can Earn Bicycles

Boys and girls 16 years of age and under are being given the opportunity to earn a brand new bicycle for themselves in a subscription promotion sponsored by this newspaper.

From now until July 1 boys and girls have the opportunity to sell 12 new 2-year subscriptions to The Saint Joe News and earn for themselves a Rollfast bicycle, fully equipped. Since this is not a contest, there is no limit to the number of young people who can be "winners." As soon as a boy or girl has sold the required number of subscriptions, he or she will receive a bicycle. Those who do not sell enough to earn a bicycle in the allotted time will be paid in cash for subscriptons they do sell.

Sales of the new subscriptions are limited to permanent residents of the Saint Joe-Spencerville trading area. Other details of the contest are available at the News Office as are the official identification cards and subscription blanks. To help the salesmen and salesladies, the News is allowing them to offer the 2-year subscription at a special rate.

Cooperation of mothers and fathers will probably be sought since this is a rural area and the young people may not have the means of making as many contacts as they would like. Parents are asked to cooperate with their "salesmen" to help them earn their own bicycle.

Rules are obtainable at the News Office. Salesmen must register and receive their identification cards and subscription blanks.

Models of the bicycles can be seen at the News Office.

Lions Club To Sell Candy For Cancer

The Saint Joe Lions Club is planning for its participation in a state-wide candy sale to be made thru the Lions of Indiana to raise funds for the purchase of a cobalt bomb machine for cancer research at the Indiana University Medical Center at Indianapolis.

The committee handling the local solicitation includes Pete Storer, Bud Shockley and Pete Timmerman.

Cancer research has been a major project of Indiana Lions for several years with thousands of dollars contributed by Lions clubs to purchase the necessary equipment. Purchase of a cobalt bomb thru public cooperation in purchasing candy from the Lions will give the medical center one of the most effective radiation instruments developed to date for cancer treatment.

May 6 thru 14 has been proclaimed Indiana Lions Candy for Cancer Days by Gov. Harold Handley. The rolls of candy will be distributed in exchange for cash contributions.

The local club has been set up in teams which will have particular areas to cover. Residents are asked to be ready with their donations when the Lions come, and help win the fight against cancer.

And there is the tasty candy to enjoy, too.

Merchants To Sponsor Baseball

Baseball enthusiasts in this area will be happy to hear that businessmen of Spencerville and Saint Joe will sponsor a hardball team in the Senior Federation League of Fort Wayne. Recruiting of the team is being done by Howard "Pete" Timmerman of Spencerville who will serve as manager.

Approximately 18 businessmen in the two communities have given their support to the hardball entry. Contributions from these people will be collected this coming Saturday. Anyone else interested in giving financial support to the team may do so by contacting the manager at Spencerville.

A dozen or so young men from this area have been lined up thus far for the team. They include Henry Markle, Dick Conley, Wilbur Lothamer, Ralph Noragon, Jerry Vinson, Bill Griggs, Donnie Sechler, Dale Dowden, Dick Robinson, Kenny Akey and Dave Walters.

The first meeting of the team will be held Monday, May 2, at 6:00 p.m. at the ball diamond at Saint Joe. A meeting will be held later in the evening at Fort Wayne with other federation teams to be represented along with the local team.

Church League

Lavon Hart, president of the Saint Joe Church Softball League, has announced a meeting to be held next Thursday, May 5, at 8 p.m. The meeting will be held at the home of Lewis Walter, 2 1-2 miles north of Saint Joe.

Churches in the Saint Joe, Spencerville and Newville areas are asked to send representatives to the meeting next week if they plan to participate in church league activity. During the past several years men, both young and old, have enjoyed the softball games played between churches in the community. And a bit of rivalry has added to the attraction of the sport.

Pastors of participating churches, team managers and players are invited to the meeting to formulate league rules and provide for this summer's schedule.

The Spencerville Community Club will hold an important meeting next Monday evening at 8 p.m. at the community hall and urges all to be present.

Were You Counted?

With the first stage of the 1960 Census of Population and Housing virtually completed locally, a "Were You Counted" campaign has begun to insure that no resident of the area has been overlooked.

Persons who believe they have been missed by the census takers are urged to notify the census district office by means of "Were You Counted" forms. A copy of the form appears elsewhere in this paper.

Prompt mailing of the forms with the desired information will speed compilation of preliminary population figures for the area. Anyone "missed" in the census taking to date should complete the form and mail it to the district office at 710 South Clinton Street in Fort Wayne.

Style Show May 6

This year the home economics department of Riverdale High School will present their "Patio Fashion Show" at the high school gym in Saint Joe on Friday evening, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. The program will be directed by Mrs. Frances Huddleston, home ec instructor.

The young ladies have made some very fashionable garments this year which they will model. As a special feature some fashions will be shown by an unusual model.

The fashion show is being presented as a separate program, having originally been planned for a meeting of the P.T.A. Due to the importance of the April P.T.A. meeting, the home ec department allowed its time to be taken for the special speakers.

Riverdale patrons and friends are invited to attend the show and view the work of the home ec department.

The Junior High Class of the Methodist Church, taught by Mrs. Rod Trout, will have "Work Hours" on Thursday, May 5, from 4 p.m. on. This includes any kind of yard work, scrubbing, cleaning, baby sitting, etc. The class hopes to make the project a success as they have pledged to buy the Communion service for their church and at the present time are about one-third short of their goal. Call Mrs. Trout at Spencerville 82 by May 4 if you have work.

The White Cross Guild composed of Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner, Mrs. Bina McKay, Mrs. Naomi Trout, Mrs. Lois Fisher, Mrs. Nellie Allen and Mrs. Frances Chapman, served at Parkview on Monday.

Tim Hollabaugh cut his finger while playing on his trapeze swings last week requiring six stitches at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Glenn J. Brendel and daughter, Susan, spent Saturday and Sunday in Rome City assisting in the care of Mrs. E. Norris who injured her foot a few weeks ago.

Monday evening Mrs. Ernest Hanauer of New York City and Mrs. Lloyd (Skipper) Curie of Toledo visited the M. H. Hollabaughs. Mrs. Hanauer is the former Marcellean Curie and is spending a few weeks, along with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Peggy Curie, with her mother, Mrs. Bertha Curie who has been ill and has been a medical patient at Hicksville Community Hospital several days this week.

Danny Hoover, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hoover of east of Spencerville, has been quite ill for two weeks with an ear infection. His father hurt his hand and foot at work this week causing a bad infection which made it impossible to work several days.

Mrs. Angela Lloyd visited in the John Weidner home Saturday of last week.

On Wednesday evening, May 11, at a general meeting at 7:30 p.m. before the WSCS, Rev. Douglas Trout of Marshall, Michigan, brother of Rev. Rod Trout, will show pictures he took while in the Holy Land two years ago. Everyone is welcome.

Lions Club To Sell Candy For Cancer

More than 300 Lions clubs, including the Saint Joe Lions Club, comprising nearly 15,000 members will give away candy rolls in return for contributions on street corners and door-to-door throughout the state May 6 through 14.

Called "Candy For Cancer," the drive has the endorsement of Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Gov. Harold Handley has proclaimed May 6-14 as "Indiana Lions Candy For Cancer Days" and mayors in many cities throughout the state have also issued proclamations urging citizens to support this work.

Proceeds from the drive will be used to buy a much-needed cobalt "bomb" machine for the treatment of cancer victims at the Indiana University Medical Center at Indianapolis.

For the past 12 years, Indiana Lions have been supplying the center with equipment for the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. This year's goal will give the center one of the most effective radiation instruments known for the treatment of cancer.

County Wins 4-H Award

The state 4-H club office at Purdue University has announced that DeKalb County will receive special recognition for having an outstanding 4-H club program during 1959.

Based upon 4-H enrollment as compared to the potential 4-H members in the county, plus the number of members in standard clubs, DeKlab County will receive a bronze award during the annual 4-H club round-up at Purdue in June.

Membership in the county in 1950 totaled 845, and of these 618 were members of standard clubs. 24.6 per cent of the boys and girls of 4-H age took part in the program last year.

These awards have been made annually for 15 years by Prairie Farmer in cooperation with the Purdue University agricultural extension service. The first time a county wins an award it receives a plaque to hang in the county extension office. Subsequent awards are in the form of engraved bars which are attached to the plaque.

County agent Ernest Lesiuk reporters that this is the 14th year that DeKalb County has qualified for this special merit award.

Band Concert

The Riverdale High School Band will present a concert on Friday evening, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym at Saint Joe.

Robert Lowry, director of the band, announced that the program will include numbers by the band and solos by Andy Crow and Merle Wagner.

The sixth grade band, numbering approximately 16 members, will present several selections.

Admission prices will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Tickets may be obtained now from band members.

In extending an invitation to the public to attend the concert, Mr. Lowry pointed out that "lots of accidents happen at home. Be safe—come to the concert and avoid those home hazards!"

Town Board Considering Ordinances

The town board met in regular session Monday evening at the town hall.

Included in the business was a request by two townspeople for the board's support of a proposed petition to improve a county drain on the south edge of town. The board indicated its approval of such a petition.

A discussion was held concerning the public park. As a result of the discussion, the board appointed a Park Commission with Willard Hurni to serve as chairman. Other members are Orville Coburn, Roy Bowser, Merlin Simanton and Jack Bowser. These men have been serving as a park committee for the Booster Club. The Park Commission will be responsible for maintenance of the park using the funds appropriated by the town for that purpose.

The condition of the town dump was brought up. Plans are in the making for placing the dump under the supervision of a caretaker. It is possible that a schedule of days when townspeople may bring their refuse will be established. Inasmuch as the dump is maintained through town taxes, a fee schedule would necessarily be set up for those who reside outside the corporate limits of the town. Lack of public cooperation in depositing trash at the dump requires continued expenditures to clear the dump periodically.

A dog ordinance is being prepared under which the board will appoint a Dog Commissioner to impound stray dogs for a specified period after which the dog may be destroyed. Dog owners would have the opportunity to call for their pets within the prescribed time, paying a fee for housing and feeding.

The measure is proposed in order to protect private property and reduce the danger of infection by a rabid dog.

Five visitors were present at the meeting of the board.

Record Hop

The Knights of Pythias Lodge of Saint Joe will sponsor a record hop on Friday, May 13, at the Spencerville Community Building.

Admission prices will be 50 cents per couple or 35 cents for singles.

Refreshments of hot dogs, potato chips and pop will be available.

KP members and wives will serve as chaperones.

Scout Meeting

A special meeting has been called by the Scout Committee of the American Legion Post in Saint Joe. The meeting will be held Tuesday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Legior Home in Saint Joe.

The purpose of the meeting is to re-organize the local Scout troop. Boys of Scout age and their fathers are urged to attend the meeting.

The young ladies have made some very fashionable garments this year which they will model. As a special feature some fashions will be shown by an unusual model.

Farmcraft
EARLY MATURITY
SEED CORN

FARMCRAFT 40 — An early maturing hybrid with the ear length and size usually found only in much later maturing strains. This strain has top yielding ability as a full season hybrid across the 400 zones. It is also well liked for later plantings farther south.

Extra ear length packs in higher yields, with no loss of high quality in the grain.

FARMCRAFT 39 — An early maturing hybrid of superior yielding ability. The plants are of moderate height, the stalks are sturdy and particularly stiff standing, bearing single ears on strong shanks. The cylindrical ears develop deep grains of medium soft starch feeding type texture.

The ability of this strain to finish out plump grains in short seasons, and the fast drying cobs fits it as first choice in the short growing season area of the 200 to 400 zones.

The Saint Joe News

VOL. LXXV | Saint Joe (DeKalb Co.), Ind. | Thursday, May 12, 1960 | NUMBER 19

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Foster Gee brought in a copy of The Saint Joe News of July 1, 1887, found at the Gee residence. Here are some of the items from 73 years ago:

Speak a good word for the Normal school.

Miss Anna Merrill is visiting with friends at Waterloo.

A.B. Coburn had another attack of hemorrhage this week.

A good many farmers will celebrate the 4th in the wheat field.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Barney visited friends at Edgerton the fore part of the week.

Buy a Parasol for the Fourth. Case & Olds have a few left which they offer at a bargain.

Mrs. Al Weirick and children have gone to her parents near Waterloo, to spend several weeks.

Mell Bishop is going up to the lakes fishing next week. Leave orders for fish at the lumber yard.

Finday, Ohio, has had an increase of 31 factories and 5000 people during the past year. Gas done it.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ackley of Hicksville, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lounsberry last Friday.

—And that is part of what was going on in 1887. More next week.

Count John Keith in as one of the early birds who will get the worm.

John is just past the halfway mark in getting a bicycle for selling News subscriptions. Another week or so and he ought to have it.

I suppose it was bound to come—this registration of the boat population and the law requiring a "license number." But it doesn't enhance the appearance of a boat to have a string of numerals stuck out in front. Why not put it on the rear like automobiles???

What an eye-opener I got a couple of Saturdays ago when I went down to the dump. Everybody and his brother threw their refuse up on top and what a mess it was. It's too bad taxpayers in town have to pay for the carelessness of those who won't cooperate in the upkeep of the dump. Now you can't get to the edge and throw things over the hill.

There are a few baseball schedules on the table if anyone wants one; a limited quantity, though. The schedules are listed for major and minor leagues.

Come and get 'em.

Can you imagine how much binder twine it would take to put a 10-foot "ceiling" on a gym floor giving the appearance of a bamboo curtain?

That's how much the Rome City students collected (and knotted) for the Junior-Senior prom two Saturdays ago. They must have had miles of it, strung clear across the gym floor, strands an inch or so apart.

They really did a nice job of decorating.

One of the teachers about went knots getting the project completed.

You know the Fort Wayne Fine Arts Festival? Well, on Monday night at the Jazz Concert portion of the festival, the little outfit I play pie-ana for (Bob Snowball and the Snowflakes) will be on the program, one of the half dozen or so combos to be featured. If you don't have anything to do, c'mon down.

Club Elects Glenn Moore; To Have Clean-up

Glenn Moore was elected president of the Spencerville Community Club at a meeting of the organization held Monday evening at the community building.

Other officers elected are:

Vaughn Allen, first vice-president.

Bill Hudson, second vice-president.

Mrs. Robert Hollabaugh, secretary.

Mrs. Albert Hollabaugh, treasurer.

Miss Ida Reed, Mrs. William Hudson and Mrs. Mabel Rinard, board members.

Saturday, May 14, has been set as clean-up day. May 21 is clean-up day for the cemetery.

A contest for membership began May 1 and ends June 4. Two teams have been organized to sell memberships with Mrs. Albert Hollabaugh captain of the blue team and Mr. Vaughn Allen captain of the red team. On the last day of the contest the losers will entertain the winners.

Achievement Night Next Friday

Students are recognized for achievements in currjcular and extra-curricular activities thru the school year.

Principal Joe Smith is chairman of the program.

Free TB X-Ray

TB respects no age.

With that thought, the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association urges residents of the county to take advantage of the free x-ray privileges to be given next week as the mobil unit visits various communities in the county.

Receipts from the sale of Christmas seals makes the free x-ray privilege possible. In addition the entire school system of DeKalb County is tuberculin tested and x-rays given to children with positive reactions, all this paid for by donations to the county TB association.

Facts about the spread of tuberculosis in different age groups include:

TB among children—babies can get a violent form of the disease. Older children can fight off active TB much better. But, once the germs get into the lungs, they live on, and may cause a breakdown with TB years later. Children of all ages can be infected.

TB among adults—after 15 or 20 years of age, the number of people who have active TB goes up dramatically. Many of these persons were infected as children, many first catch it as adults. Adults need good general health to help fight off TB infection.

TB among older persons — TB sickness and death rates are higher in older persons. They need to keep up their guard against this disease. Many middle-aged and older adults have had TB for a long time and have never found it out. They don't know they're sick, even though they may be infecting others.

The schedule of the mobil x-ray unit is as follows:

Monday, May 16, at Waterloo from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m.

Tuesday, May 17, at Butler from 9:00 a.m. to noon and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

Wednesday, May 18, at Garrett from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 to 8:30 p.m.

Thursday, May 19, at Auburn from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 to 8:30 p.m.

Friday, May 20, at Saint Joe from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m.

Those who may have x-rays taken must be 18 years of age or over. No expectant mothers are x-rayed.

Late News

Word was received at press time of the sudden illness of Mrs. Ralph Sechler Wednesday night, reported to be a possible stroke.

Also, John Sechler of Kendallville, father of Robert Sechler of Saint Joe, died Wednesday evening.

Series Of Vital Re-organization Meetings; Riverdale's May 19 To Hear Proposed Plans

The wheels are rolling in DeKalb County for the presentation of six re-organization plans prepared by the county re-organization committee. A series of meetings began Monday of this week so that the various school units in the county may hear the plans and discuss them. The meeting for Riverdale patrons will be held next Thursday, May 19, at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe at 8:00 p.m.

Members of the county committee said citizens at each of the public meetings will select from their district a committee of five persons to help the county committee with the re-organization work. At each of the district meetings the school board president, trustee or a PTA leader will be asked to conduct the informative sessions.

After the district meetings, the five people selected will have the duty of determining public opinion in their area regarding preferences in the six proposals for re-organization. They will report these findings at a meeting May 25 or 26 at which Dr. J. B. Kohlmeyer, director of the State Commission for School Re-organization, will be present.

At the district meetings copies of the six re-organization plans and financial data on the school districts in the county will be provided.

No vote will be taken at the district meetings. The meetings are purely of an informative nature.

The six plans are as follows:

Plan No. 1.—provides for a single school district to include all of DeKalb County except Franklin Township.

Plan No. 2—provides for 5 school districts: (1) consolidation of Fairfield, Richland, Smithfield and Grant townships, including Ashley and Waterloo; (2) Garrett-Keyser and Butler township; (3) Auburn. Union and Jackson townships; (4) Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, including Butler city and Riverdale and (5) Troy to join Franklin in a Steuben County consolidation.

Plan No. 3—provides for 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser and Butler townships, including Garrett; (2) Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson, including Auburn, Ashley and Waterloo and (3) Troy, Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, including Riverdale and Butler city.

Plan No. 4—provides for 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser and Butler, including Garrett; (2) Smithfield, Grant, Wilmington, Stafford and Troy, including Ashley, Waterloo and Butler city; and (3) Newville, Concord, Spencer, Jackson and Union, including Auburn and Riverdale.

Plan No. 5—provides for 2 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser, Butler Township, Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson, including Ashley, Waterloo, Auburn and Garrett; and (2) Troy, Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville, including Riverdale and Butler city.

Plan No. 6—provides for establishment of 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson townships, including Waterloo, Ashley and Auburn; (2) Wilmington, Concord, Stafford, Newville, Spencer and Troy, including Butler city and Riverdale; and (3) Keyser and Butler townships, including Garrett.

The county committee reported that Franklin Township is not considered in any of the proposed plans for DeKalb County. Franklin Township is now consolidated with Otswego Township in Steuben County in the Hamilton community school system.

The meetings held and to be held in the county are as follows:

Monday, May 9 — Jackson Township.

Wednesday, May 11—Fairfield Township.

Thursday, May 12—Garrett-Keyser and Butler Township; Auburn.

Friday, May 13 — Richland, and Waterloo-Grant.

Monday, May 16—Troy.

Thursday, May 19 — Riverdale.

Break-In At Casey's

Casey's Mobil Service was broken into Sunday night or Monday morning. The thief escaped with over $100 in cash.

Receipts from Sunday sales had been left in a leather folder in a back room. The thief broke a glass in the overhead doors at the wash room and reached in to release the lock. A few quarters and half dollars were taken from the cash register in addition to the other money.

Station manager Gene Casebeer reported the burglary to Sheriff Dorsie Likens Monday morning.

The Whole Story

I would rather hear our public officials and others who are in the limelight issue a short - and truthful - statement such as "No comment" when they are questioned about rumored things-to-be or things-gone-by than to have them talk in half-truths and dangling statements. It seems as if this type of dodging is characteristic of the times; much as we believe in the truth, we think we are ahead to keep somebody in the dark, mainly the public. It happens quite frequently nowadays as we read the papers and hear news commentaries. Somewhere in this world, and too often in these United States, a statement .is made that either denies a report or a rumor or sidesteps the issue in such a way that the reader or hearer gets an .impression .which turns out to be wrong. How often do you remember a circumstance where a public personality flatly denies the report that his secretary is resigning or that the star quarterback is going to be sold. Then within a matter of days out comes the story that the secretary HAS resigned or the quarterback HAS been sold. At some point along the line we've become believers in half-truths; at the time the question was first asked, the secretary HADN'T resigned or the quarterback HADN'T been sold.

There is a lot of concern nowadays about the truthfulness of advertising. I don't see any difference between an advertiser's misleading statement and that of a president or a governor or a movie star or who have you. And I don't know that we need a new array of laws to take care of the situation. It seems to me we have enough "law" moral and otherwise to govern the situation; what is needed is the desire to respect the law. If the tooth paste I use doesn't make my teeth white .as the TV commercial says it will, I won't buy the tooth paste anymore. If what is claimed for a household product turns out to be a falsehood, I won't look too favorably on that product the next time I need it. And maybe I will complain to the fellow I bought it from; from there he can carry it to his supplier and so on until the producer gets the message. Nothing changes a person's mind as quickly as the other fellow's opinion when it comes to providing a public service.

..Perhaps this condition prevalent today is one of the prices to pay for the trend to bigness. After all, there are so many people today, and they can get around much easier; so what if we do "cheat" a little in some way. We'll probably never see them .again, .and there's another prospect coming in the door. The one who gets hurt most in that case is the little businessman, such as in our town and the other small towns in the country. A big special in the big city is usually sucker-bait and we will bite on it to get something for nothing. How much more useful .would be those dollars at home. But those misleading come-ons are too appealing.

And now in the past week we have been upset over the Russians shooting down one of our planes. At first I imagine we all were indignant because our news reports told us that the plane was unarmed, etc., etc., etc., all giving the impression that those terrible Russians had done an unspeakable and inexcusable thing. Now that some time has passed, we find out that the plane was flying over territory which maybe it shouldn't have been flying over, that it was technically on a spying mission. So we must back down a little bit and give Mr. Kruschev an opportunity to make hay while the sun shines. And I think we are a bit disappointed that we were not given more complete information from the start to prevent a misleading conception of the situation.

As a thought, did you ever stop to think what WE would do if a Russian plane flew over our territory? I wonder.

If there isn't anything else to fear, we ought to fear losing the respect of those with whom we work and those we serve. Honor and truth are a couple of products the human race has by-passed along the way and the inevitable result is suffering.

"For what profiteth it a man to gain the world and lose his soul."

May 19 Meeting A 'Must'

The DeKalb County school re-organization committee has announced a series of meetings, the first of which was held Monday of this week, at which the public will have an opportunity to discuss and evaluate six proposed plans for this county under the re-organization act.

It is of the utmost importance that every patron of county schools make every effort to attend these meetings. This is the beginning of the series of formal steps taken in re-organizing the school system in our area. Attendance at meetings presenting information for the public has been spotty, although the school re-organization act has appeared to be very controversial. It is a public disservice to avoid attending public meetings such as these and then talk and act in any manner which hinders the advancement of public education. Any questions or criticisms of the proposed plans should be brought before the public eye that they may be discussed. Most of the fuss raised over the re-organization act so far has been due to a great deal of misinformation. While it is true that there are "bugs" in the law, it is also true that there is much to be accomplished in its enactment.

Thursday, May 19, is the date for the meeting at Riverdale. It's your job and mine to be present.

Band Concert Friday Night

The Riverdale High School Band will present a concert on Friday evening, May 13, at 7:-30 p.m. in the high school gym at Saint Joe.

Robert Lowry, director of the band, announced that the program will include numbers by the band and solos by Andy Crow and Merle Wagner.

The sixth grade band, numbering approximately 16 members, will present several selections.

Admission prices will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Tickets may be obtained now from band members.

In extending an invitation to the public to attend the concert, Mr. Lowry pointed out that "lots of accidents happen at home. Be safe—come to the concert and avoid those home hazards!"

from
The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room
© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Thursday, May 12.

Read Matthew 6:27-34.

Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. (Matthew 6:34).

While learning to drive an automobile, I often looked far ahead and sometimes saw traffic problems. I then began to worry about how I would manage to drive through when I got to that place.

My husband, who was my teacher, always said, "Don't worry about the traffic ahead; watch what you are doing here. Those problems you see ahead will usually clear up before you get there."

How true that fact is in the life of a Christian! Jesus always counseled against worrying about what may lie ahead. The psalmist tells us to cast our burdens on the Lord.

We become concerned with things that may happen tomorrow instead of doing all we can today. Too often we forget that God is present with us today and will be with us each tomorrow. Everything will work out all right if we have faith and exercise patience.

PRAYER: O Father, teach us to be calm, trustful Christians, not anxious over something that may happen in the future. Help us to be busy in doing Thy will today. Sustain our faith that we may use every moment as a shining one for Thee by doing good in the Master's name. Amen.

Thought for the day: Those in whom Christ lives never walk alone.

Lions Sell Candy

The Saint Joe Lions Club began its sale of candy this week in the state Lions program to raise money for a cobalt bomb machine to treat cancer. The members of the club have been assigned territories to be covered in the solicitation.

Lions of Indiana have contributed thousands of dollars to the Indiana Medical Center at Indianapolis in the fight to conquer cancer. Money received this year will be used to purchase the cobalt machine, one of the most effective weapons in treating cancer.

The rolls of flavored candy are being given to all homemakers who are asked in turn to make a donation to the Lions cancer fund. Those who wish may purchase a box of 20 rolls of the tasty candy.

Farmcraft
EARLY MATURITY
SEED CORN

FARMCRAFT 40 — An early maturing hybrid with the ear length and size usually found only in much later maturing strains. This strain has top yielding ability as a full season hybrid across the 400 zones. It is also well liked for later plantings farther south.

Extra ear length packs in higher yields, with no loss of high quality in the grain.

FARMCRAFT 39 — An early maturing hybrid of superior yielding ability. The plants are of moderate height, the stalks are sturdy and particularly stiff standing, bearing single ears on strong shanks. The cylindrical ears develop deep grains of medium soft starch feeding type texture.

The ability of this strain to finish out plump grains in short seasons, and the fast drying cobs fits it as first choice in the short growing season area of the 200 to 400 zones.

'Earn A Bike'

Boys and girls have an opportunity to earn a bicycle for themselves by selling subscriptions to this paper. The age limit is 16 years.

All that is required is the sale of 12 new 2-year subscriptions at a reduced rate. Or the salesman may sell year and a half or one year subscriptions in an increased number to make the equivalent 2-year subscriptions. A bicycle will be given as soon as the required sales are reached.

This is not a contest. There is no limit to the number of bicycles to be awarded. The number depends upon the number of young men and women with the ambition to earn their own bicycle.

Those wishing to work for a brand new bicycle should register at the News Office and get an Official Identification Card and Official Subscription blanks. Rules are available also at registration time.

The selling campaign ends July 1, 1960.

Mail Box Improvem't

May 16 to 21 has been designated Mail Box Improvement Week by the U.S. Postal Department. The department wishes to encourage patrons to provide mail receptacles, erected and maintained for easy and safe accessibility, presenting a neat appearance, and affording protection to the mail.

Boxes that are not properly erected, or not maintained in good serviceable condition retard the delivery of mail and expose it to the weather.

Mail boxes meeting the requirements not only help the regular carrier but the substitute. They improve the appearance of every rural home.

The following are the five requirements for mail boxes:

1. Keep the drive to the box solid and level.
2. Keep the box and post solid and level.
3. Group boxes wherever possible.
4. Paint box and post either white or aluminum.
5. Put name on the side of the box where it can be seen by the carrier, letters 1 inch high.

ELECTRICITY helps create life's most treasured moments

Here's one of the prized pictures in the family album! Even in dreamland it looks as if Susie is enjoying the wonders of Hans Christian Andersen. The end of a perfect day, and electricity helped make it so. The lights, the cozy warmth, the good food, the clean clothes were just part of electricity's contribution. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

VOL. LXXV | Saint Joe (DeKalb Co.), Ind. | Thursday, May 19, 1960 | NUMBER 20

Around the Town

With the Editor

Here are some more of those 1887 items from Foster Gee's issue of The News:

Rev. Fryberger has been in attendance at the Syndolical Sunday school convention at Antioch, this week.

Copp & Furgerson are getting in the stone this week for the foundation for the addition to the school house.

Fifteen of our best looking girls attended the social at Shurt's last Saturday evening. They went by rail via the B.-&O.

J. A. Milliman of Freemont, Mich., visited among friends here last week. He was on his way home from a western trip.

Miss Addie Widney closed her first term of school last Saturday. We understand she has taught a successful school.

J. H. Conrad spouted the depot at this place last week. Cooney generally gets there when it is any thing in his line.

Quite a change in the mail route takes place to-day. Newville and Spencerville will have daily mails from this place. The Fort Wayne hack will only come to St. Joe and then return again to Fort Wayne.

Some one who came by Wm. Simanton's the other day reports that he saw something stretched out, hanging between two trees that looked like a jumbo elephant, but upon closer observation he found it to be Bill, himself, taking a swing in a new hammock he had just put up. He must have had a hammock made to order to have got one stout enough to hold up his avoirdupois.

The St. Joe Normal is now an assured fact, and from present indications there will me a large attendence. Professors Price and Hootman are men of practical experience, with the best of morals, active, stirring, with their hearts in the work, and we feel confident that they will teach a successful school. Our citizens are to be congratulated upon securing two such able instructors to conduct a normal at this place.

Awards To Be Given Friday

The annual Achievement Night program of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held Friday evening, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym at Saint Joe.

Each year students are recognized for outstanding efforts in curricular and extra-curricular activities. Awards are presented by the various departments of the school.

Included on the program will be selections by the high school band under the direction of Robert Lowry.

The public is invited to attend.

Now to add to the interesting reading contributed by our readers, Sully Allison brought in a copy of the "Tombsone Epitaph" which she picked up a few weeks ago while out in the Golden West. This issue of April 21, 1960, has a column of news items from way back in 1890. Here is one of them:

"The following communication was sent to this office this morning and will explain itself;

" 'Tombstone, April 9, 1890

"Editor Prospector: Dear Sir.—Allow me ,in behalf of the Boys of the Tombstone Public School; to correct the mistake, which was made in your paper on the 8th day of April 1890. In which you accuse the boys of the Tombstone Public School of breaking five (5) of the window panes on or about Thursday evening at the school house on eighth street. I therefore think it my duty to speak a few words in their behalf. As was stated in your paper (5) five window panes were broken, and it was blamed on the boys, but I say and I can prove that the window-panes were broken by some of the girls of this city.

(Signed) ONE OF THE BOYS' "

If you want to have a look at today's "Tombstone Epitaph," stop in.

That Fine Arts Festival Jazz Concert got rained out. But we try again next Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. Franke Park.

Series Of Vital Re-organization Meetings; Riverdale's May 19 To Hear Proposed Plans

The series of school district meetings will conclude Thursday of this week with Riverdale patrons to attend a meeting at the high school gym at 8:00 p.m. This is a very important meeting in the reorganization program of DeKalb County schools.

Members of the county committee said citizens at each of the public meetings will select from their district a committee of five persons to help the county committee with the re-organization work. At each of the district meetings the school board president, trustee or a PTA leader will be asked to conduct the informative sessions.

After the district meetings, the five people selected will have the duty of determining public opinion in their area regarding preferences in the six proposals for re-organization. They will report these findings at a meeting May 25 or 26 at which Dr. J. B. Kohlmeyer, director of the State Commission for School Re-organization, will be present.

At the district meetings copies of the six re-organization plans and financial data on the school districts in the county will be provided.

No vote will be taken at the district meetings. The meetings are purely of an informative nature.

The six plans are as follows:

Plan No. 1.—provides for a single school district to include all of DeKalb County except Franklin Township.

Plan No. 2—provides for 5 school districts: (1) consolidation of Fairfield, Richland, Smithfield and Grant townships, including Ashley and Waterloo; (2) Garrett-Keyser and Butler township; (3) Auburn. Union and Jackson townships; (4) Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, including Butler city and Riverdale and (5) Troy to join Franklin in a Steuben County consolidation.

Plan No. 3—provides for 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser and Butler townships, including Garrett; (2) Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson, including Auburn, Ashley and Waterloo and (3) Troy, Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships, including Riverdale and Butler city.

Plan No. 4—provides for 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser and Butler, including Garrett; (2) Smithfield, Grant, Wilmington, Stafford and Troy, including Ashley, Waterloo and Butler city; and (3) Newville, Concord, Spencer, Jackson and Union, including Auburn and Riverdale.

Plan No. 5—provides for 2 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Keyser, Butler Township, Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson, including Ashley, Waterloo, Auburn and Garrett; and (2) Troy, Wilmington, Stafford, Concord, Spencer and Newville, including Riverdale and Butler city.

Plan No. 6—provides for establishment of 3 districts: (1) Fairfield, Richland, Smithfield, Grant, Union and Jackson townships, including Waterloo, Ashley and Auburn; (2) Wilmington, Concord, Stafford, Newville, Spencer and Troy, including Butler city and Riverdale; and (3) Keyser and Butler townships, including Garrett.

The county committee reported that Franklin Township is not considered in any of the proposed plans for DeKalb County. Franklin Township is now consolidated with Otswego Township in Steuben County in the Hamilton community school system.

The meetings held and to be held in the county are as follows:

Monday, May 9 — Jackson Township.

Wednesday, May 11—Fairfield Township.

Thursday, May 12—Garrett-Keyser and Butler Township; Auburn.

Friday, May 13 — Richland, and Waterloo-Grant.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

LOW BACK PAIN

Pain in the lower part of the back is a common complaint. It results in hours of time lost in industry. It forms a basis for compensation cases. It occupies a lot of the doctor's time because of its complexity as to cause.

In few conditions that affect the human body is there so much difference of opinion, confusion, and room for misrepresentation and malingering.

The main difficulty is that many possibilities enter the picture in establishing the cause of back pain.

Minor degrees of displacement, instability or weakness can present severe symptoms. There is the possibility that infammatory conditions are involved with the joints, such as in rheumatoid arthritis. Injury is a frequent cause of low back pain and may be in the nature of a sprain of ligaments that support certain joints.

Back aches and pains have prevailed under names such as lumbago, sciatica, sacroiliac sprain or strain, and herniation of the nucleus pulposus, familiarly known as slipped disc.

Sprains may be associated with the nucleus pulposus, the elastic semi-fluid mass in the center of an intervertebral disc, and rupture may cause herniation or prolapse into the spinal canal. This is a cause of chronic sciatica.

Injuries assumed due to excessive strain on the ligaments, are sometimes traceable to the degenerative processes of age that in time may render the ligaments insufficiently capable of withstanding the customary stresses.

Careful examination, and effective treatment, returns many back-ache patients to a normal course of living.

SEED CORN

FARMCRAFT 40 — An early maturing hybrid with the ear length and size usually found only in much later maturing strains. This strain has top yielding ability as a full season hybrid across the 400 zones. It is also well liked for later plantings farther south.

Extra ear length packs in higher yields, with no loss of high quality in the grain.

FARMCRAFT 39 — An early maturing hybrid of superior yielding ability. The plants are of moderate height, the stalks are sturdy and particularly stiff standing, bearing single ears on strong shanks. The cylindrical ears develop deep grains of medium soft starch feeding type texture.

The ability of this strain to finish out plump grains in short seasons, and the fast drying cobs fits it as first choice in the short growing season area of the 200 to 400 zones.

EARLY MATURITY

SEED CORN

EXTRA EARLY MATURITY NO. 29 — For short growing seasons. Developed for the farmer who needs earlier maturity than the usual offerings for the 200 zone. Produces medium height, stiff standing plants that finish off big ears.

Mellow grain texture, slender cobs and open husks contribute to fast drying at maturity.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Everyone really enjoyed the band concert a couple of weeks ago, even the band members themselves. They seemed to particularly enjoy doing "The Bremen Town Musicians" with the narrative by Dan Bennett and various sound effects.

The junior band, 15 or 16 in number, did a good job. And what was most encouraging was the fact that when the junior band finished its numbers, the biggest applause came from — the senior band members listening from the bleachers.

Though its perhaps one of the smallest in town, the most inviting front porch I've seen for a while was that of the Eustacio Padrons one night last week with its little canopy roof and warm green lights at either side of the front door.

The chairman of the park committee requests some advertising space as follows:

"Wanted—'sacrificed' Saturdays or evenings for the benefit of the park. Phone 2605."

You just never know how effective advertising can be in the little ol' Saint Joe News.

Word was passed along to me this week by Janice Hollabaugh that Earl Lohse takes his copy of the paper to work with him and a friend sent for some of the evergreen seedlings advertised recently. He also sent to two other places for seedlings. But he got the best results answering the ad in the Saint Joe News.

So there.

The gentleman's name is Ray Shuda. He lives in Justice, Indiana.

Club Meeting

An important meeting of the Spencerville Community Club has been scheduled for Saturday evening, June 4.

The meeting will be held at the community building starting at 8:00 p.m.

The officers urge members and friends to attend.

Methodists Plan Special Service

The Methodist Church of Spencerville, Indiana, is planning a special day for this coming Sunday, June 5. The day will mark the dedication of the congregation's newly-remodeled sanctuary and ground-breaking for a new education unit.

The morning worship service will begin at 9:00 a.m. with the Rev. Henry Weber of Angola, former pastor of the Spencerville congregation, delivering the sermon. This service will include dedication of the sanctuary.

Sunday School hour will be at 10:00 a.m. At noon there will be a pot luck dinner in the church dining room.

Afternoon services will begin at 1:30 p.m. Dr. Byron Stroh, Fort Wayne District Superintendent, will be present for the ground-breaking ceremonies.

The congregation moved out of their church home January 1 of this year and held worship services in the community hall while remodeling was in progress. They moved back into the new sanctuary on Easter Sunday. Improvements included a new ceiling; replastered walls and fresh paint; old drop-type lights replaced with a modern indirect light bar; chapel-type front changed into a divided chancel with the lectern and altar built into the paneling, ceiling-high louvres on either side. An altar rail was also built in. The floors are newly tiled and carpeted and new padded pews add to the comfort of worshippers. The focal point of the church is the Communion Table with a spotlighted dimensional cross hanging above it.

Members are particularly pleased with the work because the sanctuary is debt-free due to the hard labor put in by most of the members along with good professional help.

The educational unit will be a brick-faced L-shaped structure located on the west side of the present church. It will contain four 15x20-foot classrooms which will be separated by folding leather doors, serving also as a social or dining room. There will be a 15x26-foot kitchen doubling as a classroom; two rest rooms; boiler and storage room and large corridors. The entrance will be stone-trimmed.

The main entrance to the church will be rebuilt and the new unit will also open from this narthex. The present basement will be divided and partitioned into permanent classrooms.

The Rev. D. Rod Trout and members of the congregation invite the public to attend any or all of the services next Sunday.

Recital Sunday

Music students of Kay and Larry Halt will present a recital Sunday afternoon, June 5, at 2:00 p.m. The program will be presented in the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe.

Students of piano, accordion and guitar who will participate in the program include Sharon Ummel, Karen Eby, Betty Renfrow, Melanie Carr, Rowena Moore, Phil Haberkorn, Michael and DuWayne Inlow, Brenda and Marynelle Baker, Linda Halt, Sandra Bissell, Patricia and Roger Coburn, Ricky Roberts, John Baker and Susan and Donna Mansfield.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Winners 4-H'ers Are - Winners

The DeKalb County 4-H Agricultural Demonstration Contest was held May 25 in the court house assembly room in Auburn. Nine 4-H members participated in the event.

The winners in each division were as follows:

Electric—Lynn Witt.

Garden—Keith Timmerman.

Electric—Phil Allison.

All of the winners, except Phil Allison who represented the Au-Burners Club, were from the Winners 4-H Club of Spencer Township. They were coached by Russell Guinther, ag instructor at Riverdale, and Dan Ransom, adult leader.

These winners will represent DeKalb County in the Fort Wayne District contest to be held at Goshen June 13. The contest will start at 1:30 p.m.

Field Trip

The fifth grade class of Mrs. Violet Baker took a field trip to Auburn recently. Drivers for the trip were some of the mothers and included Mrs. Beaty, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Shockley and Mrs. Baker.

Interesting places visited were Fetzer's Bakery, the public library, the annual local art exhibit, several county offiecs in the court house and the auto repository owned by Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Clouse.

As one of the class remarked after the trip, "We certainly had a wonderful time. I never realized there were so many interesting places so close to home."

Public Urged To Attend Meeting Next Thursday

The committee of five, recently elected by Riverdale patrons to assist the DeKalb County School Reorganization Committee, has set a date for a public meeting. The meeting will be held next Thursday, June 9, at the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe starting at 8:00 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to ascertain the feeling of the Riverdale community regarding the establishment of new school districts in the county under the reorganization law.

The committee, Wayne Benninghoff, Harold Kagey, Frank Laub, Bud Shockley and Ted Haberkorn, met at the home of Mr. Benninghoff Tuesday evening to make arrangements for the meeting. Included in the discussion were the several plans publicized in recent weeks, presented by the county reorganization committee. It is planned that information of the proposed districts be distributed in the Riverdale area. Patrons are urged to consider the plans, then attend the meeting next Thursday to express a preference. Those who cannot attend the meeting may notify any of the committee before the meeting and give their choice or choices.

Since other areas in the county may have their own preferences for their own district, the committee commented that the choice for Riverdale patrons comes to one of three things: uniting with a school district including Butler, uniting with a school district including Auburn or establishing a county unit with one school district for the entire county.

Another point to be covered in the "census" of public opinion by the committee is the matter of selecting the school board, whether members are to be elected or appointed, and where they shall come from, at-large or geographic divisions.

The county reorganization committee has been asked to have one or two representatives present next Thursday to assist the local committee with questions concerning reorganization in the county.

Other areas in the county are conducting similar surveys seeking public opinion on reorganization planning in the county. Committees from the several areas met last week in Auburn to hear Dr. F. B. Kohlmeyer, chairman of the state reorganization commission, explain in detail the workings of the reorganization plan. The committees will meet again on June 20 to present their findings to the county committee. With the information thus gathered, the county committee will then proceed with formulating a plan for the entire county. The plan will be presented to the state commission for approval after which it is presented to the voters of the county for approval either by petition or referendum.

Some of the points observed by Dr. Kohlmeyer last week were:

DeKalb County must submit a plan by October 12, 1960, since the county committee organized October 12, 1959, and there is a one-year deadline date;

School districts must have at least 1000 pupils average daily attendance and $5000 assessed valuation behind each pupil;

The school board (or boards) will have 3 to 7 members and these may be elected or appointed by areas. But the entire school district votes on all its board members;

Assets and liabilities in the school districts before consolidating are pooled and assumed by the new school district.

Other information presented at the meeting included a chart showing the increase in subjects gained through establishment of high schools with enrollments of over 100.

The local committee requests the cooperation of Riverdale patrons in performing its duties and urges patrons to attend the meeting next Thursday evening.

Community Hop Coming

The all-boys Champion Chefs 4-H Club have chosen as a project this year a record hop. But due to conflict with other community activities have found it necessary to postpone the hop. Originally scheduled for Friday of this week, then for Thursday, it has been postponed until next week. The new date will be placed on posters now displayed in business establishments.

The hop will be a community project. Young and old are invited to attend. Proceeds will be given to the Booster Club for the local park. Refreshments will be available.

Admission prices for those under 21 will be couples 40 cents, singles 25 cents. Over 21 it will be couples 50 cents, singles 35c.

The hop will be held at the high school gym. Standards of better dressing for 4-H clubs will be observed for the casual-attire hop, which means "no slacks or shorts."

The People's Choice

One of the many times I have had to change my mind about people or things occurred last week at the meeting of the county reorganization committee and the five-man advisory committees appointed by citizens in the various school districts in the county. I had to change my mind about the man who is chairman of the state reorganization committee. From what I had heard, I frankly didn't like him and thought he was some character with his head in the clouds, not at all aware of the human beings who were finding it necessary to act in school reorganization work in such a way as to meet his and his committee's approval.

What I found was that the man is actually very much aware of what is going on, of what is bothering the people, of what it is that they want to do, generally speaking. The "lecture" that Dr. F. B. Kohlmeyer gave last week was about as illustrative and explanatory as a person would want in seeking to know more about reorganization and the problems that it is bringing. And the questions that were thrown at him were answered completely and graciously. He knows what is going on, as he asked late in the meeting with a wry smile, "Do you have any more MEAN questions you want to ask?"

One question that seems to prevail in the minds of people in the rural areas such as ours, in considering combinations with one or the other larger communities in a school district, is "where will the school (or schools) be?" They mean, usually, where will the high school be located. That is a question which is important to many, but there can be no answer given at this stage of the game. That will be a question for the school board of any newly-established school district to decide, which means that the way of selecting the school board in the new district becomes an important issue. This is a point repeatedly acknowledged in the past by Mr. Ralph Sechler of this community who is serving on the county reorganization committee. Dr. Kohlmeyer pointed out that the method of establishing a school board will be included in the plan recommended by the county committee when it gets all the information it can and finally arrives at one recommendation. And this information is now being sought in the various communities by the five-man committees which the people selected at recent public meetings. Dr. Kohlmeyer pointed out that it can be set up so that the school board is made up of "representatives" of each of the various taxing units in the school district, elected by the people. Another way is to have the board appointed by some responsible official or officials in the county, for instance the county commissioners or the circuit court judge or other similar officials. It is to be noted that the number of school boards depends upon the number of separate school districts to be established.

This and other relative points are to be covered next week by the local five-man committee as it seeks to gain knowledge of the Riverale area's desires as far as reorganization is concerned. It behooves all citizens to attend Thursday's meeting and answer questions asked by the committee so that the county committee can have a guide to follow in finally formulating a county plan. The question for Riverdale boils down to "do you prefer going in with Auburn or Butler" since these are the large units nearby with which we can be joined. This should be thought over carefully by all citizens and opinions expressed to the local committee.

The eight sample plans formulated by the county committee have been publicized on these pages. In addition the information was passed out at the local school meeting recently. Take a look at the plans and think about what you prefer. And if you have a different idea on combining the present districts, write it down and pass it on to the committee. The plans given by the committee are not necessarily the only plans there are. One thing is to be remembered, however, in making up the school districts: there must be at least 1000 pupils average daily attendance in grades one through twelve; this is the minimum. The plans made by the county committee follow this requirement and establish districts of near equal enrollments.

Boards Not 'Representatives'

There is a thought that always bothers me when it comes time to plan something like the reorganization of schools. That is: "You have to be practical" or "You have to face facts." It bothers me because what really is behind those thoughts is that you can't trust the other fellow, or maybe even yourself.

For instance, when you ask the question, "Why are schools being reorganized," the answer is "to equalize and improve the educational opportunities of the youth in the state." It is shown that a small school is handicapped in giving an education program geared to the times. And we are aware that our school is so handicapped. So, we say, let's go in with someone else. If that's all there were to it, there wouldn't be any trouble.

But people are people. We would like to keep the whole school in our community. Likewise, the people with whom we might combine feel the same way. Therefore, the question of better education gets pushed into the background and the burning question then becomes, "If we go together, WHERE WILL THE BUILDINGS BE?" This is not a question that can be answered before we select a reorganization plan; it is a question to be answered by the school board of the newly-established school district. And so, the method of selecting the school board becomes a major issue.

Whatever plan is recommended by the county committee in the future, whatever joining Riverdale may be involved in, I am sure of one thing: we'll be suspicious of the other fellow. This is apparent in the opinions expressed by many people in this area. Because we are a comparatively small community in any proposed combination with a school district including Auburn or Butler, we are afraid of losing our "representation" in the school. I know we have to be "practical"; but is this fear morally right?

One thing forgotten when we become "practical" is that school board members on ANY school board, whether it is in Riverdale, in DeKalb County, or anywhere else, are NOT REPRESENTATIVES OF ANYBODY. The function of a school board is to operate public schools so that the best possible educational unit is made available in that particular area. A conscienscious school board member is one who thinks for the good of all, not for the advantage of, or to suit the whims of, perhaps the geographic area in which he lives. And everybody appreciates this, probably; but, you know, you have to be practical; a lot of things enter into this besides good schools. Politics, friends, business associations, all of which are sources of pressure, enter into the picture. And this is what bothers me, because I want to trust my fellow man. I want to think that he is doing his best for me and everyone else. But - - - you have to be practical.

If we go in with a district including Auburn or Butler, the selection of the school board becomes a major issue. We can establish a method of their selection so that the several tax units in the school district are "represented." But here we begin defeating the establishment of high standards which we recognize must prevail for the good of all. If we elect on a representative basis, the school would quite possibly be run on a representative basis. Thus, the board would be subject (or its individual members would be) to the pressure of their own individual areas. It would be necessary to resort to "politics" in order to gain what a particular area desired, and the result would be disunity.

This opinion was expressed by a Butler man at a recent meeting. And he is right, to my way of thinking. But what if the wrong person gets on the board? By "wrong" I mean one who thinks in terms of area representation. The force of numbers might back him up in his actions and what could be done? On the other hand, I am quite aware of the fact that there may be persons in another area within the school district more qualified to be on the school board than those in my area, that is, not only qualified but willing to serve on the board. Are we ahead to have someone on the board just to "represent" our area when someone else a few miles distant could be serving our school to better advantage?

These are some of the things that we all must consider in this reorganization. Most of our trouble is that the suspicion we have of the other fellow's desires and intentions is merely a reflection of what we probably would do if we were in his place! Add to this the experience we have had in our own consolidation, of the "area representation" prevalent in the past and still present when it comes to our school.

Do we improve by acting defensively for what MIGHT happen? Will a school be for "all" if the people are for themselves What IS the best way to select the school board?

These are questions we must answer in the near future.

Public 'Interest'

When attending a meeting relative to school affairs in this reorganization program, I have often wondered as I looked about the room at the people gathered, "How many of us who are 'interested' in the school now that reorganization has set in, have been inside the school our children attend in the last six months? Except for something like a P.T.A. meeting (if even that) or another gathering in which the school gym or a classroom was used for some community gathering, how many of these patrons have been inside the school building or have talked with a teacher or teachers or the principal about something pertaining to education and their school?" And another question then pops upto to go along with the other, "Why is it that we are now so 'interested' in the school?"

I have a sneaking suspicion that our interest has, for the most part, little to do with education. It has more to do with physical considerations like location of buildings and make-up of the school board and loss of local basketball team and some sort of pride that makes it a bitter pill to send high school students to a school combined with other communities. This suspicion is brought about by comments heard here and there and by the fact that it is almost impossible to get public response to programs having to do with education for the benefit of public understanding. And how can you explain this: the reorganization law has brought forth a great deal of controversy and consternation, "everyone" has been talking about it and many complaining. Yet, at public meetings, expressly provided so that opinions could be expressed and complaints aired about proposed reorganizing, we the public have stayed away in droves. The meetings held in the various school districts in DeKalb County were attended by groups numbering 70, 75, and maybe a hundred or so in one or two instances at the most. It is difficult to explain why public response has been so spotty. I am certain that those attending every possible meeting have learned something new about reorganization each time, and they have gotten a little different outlook on the whole picture as a result. "Education" is learning more things and it is generally agreed that the more you know, the better off you are. But, again, we stay away in droves when it comes to getting "educated" in what is going on in the schools in the state today. A lot of people have changed their minds about reorganization, now that they know something of what is going on; but there are a lot more who are still somewhat in the dark and going simply on what they have heard and most of that has been bad.

One of the puzzling things about reorganization and the discussion about better education is that there are so few instances in which teachers themselves are consulted about what is going on. I don't say that they ought to run the whole show, in fact, educators are behind the reorganization program. But at the level of local schools, the teachers are consulted apparently very little. And they say very little. I wonder just how much I know about school, when I had just a little over 12 years of it some time ago, and here we are reorganizing schools according to what I and you and the next fellow think ought to be done. The people have the voting privilege in the reorganization of schools for better education but who are we that we know it all? School board members are a burning question, but why? Because we are afraid of where they will put the buildings. What about the kind of education program in the buildings? Teachers are hired and must meet certain requirements. It is entirely possible that they are hired by board members who would flunk an exam in grammar or spelling. But nobody says anything in particular about this; the teachers are subject to the criticism of the community and the board on their actions and whether or not they are fit to be hired. But nothing is said particularly about whether or not the school board members themselves are qualified to be in such a position of judgment. Nor do we particularly concern ourselves about our own individual qualifications to be assuming the privilege of selecting teachers and judging them.

Most teachers are human, I have found. And while they may be thinking sometimes in terms of education in an ideal sense, they still have some things to offer which can be useful now. A teacher knows from a practical standpoint of our school needs, buildings and otherwise. Perhaps we ought to ask them for their opinions more than we have in the past. If we expect the teaching system to be efficient and if we want the teachers to be happy in their work, isn't it logical that we consult with them, that we find out how good or how efficient are the "tools" with which they must work?

Would you ask Van Cliburn to give a concert on a spinet piano? Would you ask the garageman down the street to overhaul your car with a screwdriver and a hammer?

Abilities And The 'Whole' Person

With all of the opinions I have expressed about schools, I suppose a lot of people, or some, anyhow, have asked, "How does he know so much about education?" Actually, what anyone knows is what they have learned, and sometimes they know because of something they haven't learned. Other knowledge is from experience. I remember that in manual training class in the seventh grade over in Wheaton, Illinois, the instrutcor(he told us his name was easy to remember, just think of a lock - so I remember Mr. Corbin to this day) warned us that when we nailed the little wooden dog figurines to the base, making a letter holder to take home to Mom or give to Dad for his office desk, we had to be very careful or the legs would split in the vice. He also gave instructions in puting the wooden dogs in the vice so they wouldn't split. I don't think I was a smart-aleck or a know-it-all. But I am conscious of the fact that I didn't do exactly what Mr. Corbin suggested. And today my father can show you that letter holder with one of the dogs sporting a split leg.

What does this have to do with knowing so much about education? Just that what I "know" about it, what ideas I have about it, come from experience. Since this has started on a personal note, let me tell you that (contrary to the idea held by some) I never had a day's schooling in journalism. My education included the twelve years through high school, then about two years of technical training studying to be, guess what - - - an aeronautical engineer! I say "about" two years because I horsed around and made poor grades. This sounds strange because one of my pet complaints about school here has been no selective program of academic study for college prospects. What do I know about college? Only this, and there are a good many other adults in the same boat with me - I know what I COULD have done with what was there for me.

Why emphasize academic subjects so much? Why harp on the lack of foreign languages in our school, particularly the absence of Latin? Why talk about college when most of our graduates don't go to college? My reason is an appreciation of the fact that everything I got in school has helped me later in life more than would normally be expected. This plus the unexplainable dissatisfaction at not having gotten as much education as possible. We think of education too much in terms of the specific future, in terms of "what good will it do me on my job," in terms of dollars and cents. In other words, if you tell a student to get all the mathematics he can, he asks, "Why? I'm not going to be a certified public accountant." If you suggest that a student get all the foreign language he can, he asks, and so do Mom and Dad, "Why? I don't intend to become an interpreter or a language expert." We have lost the appreciation of education as a means of strengthening character, of "growing." And little do we know how this academic growth may help us later. In school, do you know the subject I hated most? It was English. I hated writing themes. Book reports were a terrible punishment which teachers used to make kids more miserable than ever. Today, what must I be most conscious of as an editor of a newspaper? English. What am I doing right now? Writing. And what has given me many pleasant moments in recent months? Reading. (Incidentally, I make out my own income tax returns, too!) Thank goodness somewhere along the line somebody said "you MUST take English and you MUST take math and you MUST take history and you MUST take geography and you MUST study literature." And as for those four years of Latin, I know what a sign means when it says "exit"; when I ride on a "circumurban" highway, I know why it is called that; when someone wants me to be "explicit," I know what they want; if someone is in a "maternity" ward, I don't have to scratch my head to figure out what that is. Words in the English language become more meaningful and useful and almost explain themselves when you know whence they came. I didn't realize it at the time but someone was forcing me to grow when I was in school and compelled to take certain courses, and in the same way I want to "force" today's youth to grow.

We are fearful of hindering or damaging the growth in character of our youth today if we "make" them do things. Part of our delinquency troubles come from the fact that we went for a time to an extreme of letting them do for themselves, the "liberal" type of attitude; we even "liberalized" schools and let the student do what he wanted. Too much of that has been proved no good and we now must be careful that we don't go the other way and become too domineering. Somewhere there is a medium whereby a young person grows in making decisions and doing things for himself with an accompanying influence that compels him to do certain other things because experience shows it is best for him. We can't trust youth to decide what they should take in school; they don't know. Very, very few ever do. (If I had had my way in setting up my high school course, I would have had seven periods a day, four study halls and three phys ed classes. That would have made me a broad-beamed character with muscles.) Whether or not a person is going to college, he should get as much academic education as he can, provided he has shown that he has the talent for higher learning. It is as wrong not to develop the capabilities of those who have them as it is to force someone who has them not to continue in something in which they have no interest or talent.

And better and higher education isn't just a selfish matter. Whether we like a subject or not, exposure to it instills an appreciation of the talents and abilities of those whose work lies in those "hated" subjects. You may not like poetry, but if you have been forced to TRY to write poetry, don't you then have respect for the ability of those who can put words together in measured and pleasant combinations? You may have hated taking piano lessons and were forced to take them; but don't you now appreciate the abilities of those who play the instrument; and maybe you are even sorry that you finally talked your parents into letting you quit? You may have hated foreign language that you had to take; but do you not now respect the men in the world whose capabilities allow them to aid nations in their relationships with one another by listening to one language and translating to another? Don't you better understand what the other fellow is doing because you had a stab at it yourself to some degree?

Better and higher education is a stepping stone to human understanding. It isn't just selfish, a means to a better job. It reaches out to others, the whole world, by bringing greater understanding between individuals and, therefore, between nations. Every effort made to learn more, to know more, regardless of how old we are, contributes to world understanding. Higher education, therefore, becomes a key to peace.

This, then, in a nutshell, is why I am so interested in education. It is from an appreciation of personal failures; an appreciation now of what is worthwhile, not understood in youth; an appreciation of the benefits of guided compulsion which develops talents

He who uses and develops his talents is the recipient of even greater abundance. He who buries his abilities in inactivity, from him is the richness of life taken away. So it is written.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

CONTACT LENSES

Contact lenses are now an integral part of an ophthalmologist's practice.

Although contact lenses were known as far back as 1880, they were not then in practical use. It was not until 1948 that the great interest in such lenses swept the country. Today, one company alone recently filled orders for over 100,000 contact lenses in one month.

Manufacturers have developed lenses that can be worn eight or more hours daily by 70 to 80 per cent of the wearers, and over half of them wear the lenses all day long.

There have been various types of contact lenses. The Tuohy lens of 1948 fitted flatter than the corneal curvature and the microlens of 1954 was smaller and fitted even flatter. In 1955, the contour lens appeared and it is reported that about 80 per cent of all people trying this type of lens find that it fits successfully.

Why do people wear contact lenses? Young women gain in self confidence and poise when they can discard their spectacles and still retain normal visual acuity. There is in some cases an increased field of vision and better vision. There is no fogging of lens by mist, rain, snow, mud or dust.

Singers, dancers, actors, fliers and athletes use contact lenses.

It is estimated that of 6,000,000 people who are wearing contact lenses, about 65 per cent are women. Vanity is the reason given for usage by 80 per cent of the women and by 40 per cent of the men who wear contact lenses, other reasons being convenience, athletics, and occupation.

While there are people who cannot and should not be fitted with contact lenses, such lenses are now practical and can be used by most persons. It is stressed, however, that inasmuch as contact lenses constitute an important part of eye care, they should be fitted by someone who knows both lenses and eyes. This person would be an ophthalmologist who can apply medical judgment as well as mechanical skill to care of the eyes.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Carolyn Miller brought in a copy of the Saint Joe News of January 19, 1923. The Millers found it in the course of fixing up around the house a few weeks ago.

The big event announced on the front page was the Tri-Township Farmers Institute to be held January 29 and 30 at the Lutheran Church. Here is a portion of the program for Monday:

"Song, Leader Floyd Reasoner.

Invocation, Rev. Havens.

'Why Grow Soy Beans,' B. V. Widney.

Discussion, Saxe Hadsell, D. L. Carpenter.

'Farm Organization,' Mr. Covert.

'Co-operative Marketing of Poultry, Eggs and Cream,' B. H. Repp.

Discussion, H. O. Waltz, Frank Milliman.

Solo, Frank Baltz.

'Home Dairying,' Mrs. Minnie Gee.

High School Orchestra.

Reading, Garnett Wyatt.

Vocal solo, Mrs. Ruth Gloy.

Piano solo, Mrs. Flossie Widney.

Song, Coburntown Community Chorus."

Recognize any of those names?

Larry Mason, "the Bee Man," usually gets along with the honeys he works with without any trouble. But a week or so ago he and his buddy somehow got the bees excited and Larry came out of the episode with 19 stings and his friend amassed a total of 23.

Anna Hursey brought in a potted plant this week but couldn't identify it. She said she grew it from a bulb to its present height of about three feet. I put it in the window with a little note asking anyone to identify it. So far Doris Yeiser has given the only positive identification of the plant.

It's a "Voodoo Lily."

Board Asked To Take Over Cemetery

The Saint Joe Town Board met Monday evening at the Town Hall.

Four visitors were present to confer with the board concerning civic matters. H. L. McMaken and Estil Taylor, representing the Knights of Pythias, informed the board of the obligations which the lodge has had in maintainng the local cemetery which it finds difficult to continue maintaining. It was suggested that the town of Saint Joe assume the operation and maineanance of the cemetery with the two men indicating the willingness of the lodge to relinquish title to cemetery property.

The board took the matter under advisement indicating a willingness to assume the responsibility in due course of time.

Also present at the meeting were Glen Moore and Harold Hudson of Spencerville representing the Spencerville Community Club. The organization extended its offer of cooperation through the two men in providing facilities for dumping of trash at the local dump. The board continues to seek a solution to the problem and assured the club members that everything will be done to provide such facilities in an equitable manner.

Services For Carrie Wade

Funeral services were conducted Thursday afternoon at St. Mark Lutheran Church for Mrs. Carrie Blanche Wade, 76, mother of Albert Wade of Saint Joe. Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiated at the services.

Mrs. Wade died Sunday afternoon of a coronary occlusion having been a hospital patient recently for two weeks.

Mrs. Wade was born in Concord Township on December 13, 1883, the daughter of Martin and Harriett Howey Engle. She and Roy Wade were married in 1901. Mr. Wade died in 1949.

Other survivors include another son, George, of Garrett; 14 grandchildren; 22 great-grandchildren; a brother, John Engle, of Saint Joe; and a sister, Mrs. Donna Kosht of near Butler.

Mrs. Wade was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Legion Seeks Scoutmaster

Officers and officials of the local American Legion Post are currently taking steps to reorganize the local Boy Scout Troop. A series of meetings has been held by which adult administrators have learned the responsibilities in maintaining a troop.

The problem now facing the group is that of securing a male adult to assume the position of Scoutmaster. The duties of the Scoutmaster are such as to make him the backbone of the Scout troop. Much time and energy is expended in Scouting by those who serve as Scoutmasters, and the local committee is attempting to find a man in this community who can and will take the job as Scoutmaster and is qualified to do so.

Any suggestions which will assist in securing a Scoutmaster will be welcomed by the committee. Comments may be directed to either Mr. William Beebe or Mr. Gerald Miller.

Saint Joe has had a Scout Troop at various times in the past. Eventual deactivation of the troop has always been due to the lack of a Scoutmaster.

Walter Morr To Head Lions Club

Walter Morr was elected president of the Saint Joe Lions Club at the club's meeting of May 23. Ladies of the Mt. Pleasant Church served a chicken dinner prior to the business meeting, election of officers and program.

The complete list of officers for 1960-61 is as follows:

Walter Morr, president.

Wayne Storer, 1st vice president.

Warren Clauser, 2nd vice president.

Frank Sechler, 3rd vice president.

Clifford Billow, secretary-treasurer.

Eddie Halt, tail-twister.

Pete Timmerman, Lion tamer.

Board of directors — Bud Shockley and Lehr Wilder, 2 year term (Ralph Keeler and Frank Laub, one year remaining of 2 year term).

The program for the evening was a travelogue by Mr. and Mrs. Herb Storck of Fort Wayne and a film of nature study.

The club will meet twice in the month of June before disbanding for the months of July and August. Installation of officers is planned for Monday, June 27.

Two Injured

Jay Fetters, 72, of Spencerville was seriously injured in a collision Monday on county road 55. Also involved in the accident was Donald Donat, 21, of Saint Joe. Mr. Fetters suffered a heart attack following the two-car collision.

Donat was traveling north on the county road and Fetters south when the latter started a left turn into a driveway. Donat skidded in an unsuccessful attempt to avoid a collision.

Fetters suffered a fractured right elbow, probable brain concussion, deep laceration on the right side of his forehead, other cuts, bruises and shock.

Donat escaped with a cut lip, lacerations on his left hand, shock and bruises.

1960 Maintenance Program in Full Swing

The return of good weather has set the Indiana State Highway Maintenance Department's surface treatment program in full swing according to Chairman John Peters, who announces bituminous surface treatment on more than 1,200 miles of state highways. Bids on 350 miles of bituminous motor paving resurface, along with another 175 miles of plant mix road resurface in place, have been let to date.

Just-released figures show a savings of over $300.00 per mile over last year's cost in the bituminous resurfacing of 350 road miles of motor paver work, while the 175 miles of plant mix road building is costing an estimated $10,000.00 per mile. The bituminous surface treatment in this year's contracts have averaged $4,811.00 per mile.

Mowing of road right-of-way and patching operations are now in progress. The heavy ice and snow storms that struck Indiana in February and March alone required more than a million dollars in chemicals, abrasives and special equipment; this money would ordinarily have gone for resurfacing maintenance.

45 Bridge-widening and construction contracts have been let by the Maintenance Department in early 1960 at a total contract price of $215,025.19; some detour structures are involved. Plans are now ready for another 42 bridges on Indiana highways to be widened by the Precast Concrete Slab method as an essential part of Governor Harold Handley's safety program for Hoosier drivers.

Work is being pushed on macadam shoulder stabilization, centerlining, and edge lining as part of the safety program. Herbicide control treatment along some 1,600 miles of our State roads is also going on. Bids will be received June 7th on painting 95 structures at an estimated cost of $250,000.00.

Our map shows only the road program.

From the editor's desk . . . .

Go To Hell? Maybe.

One of the worst faults of the Christian church is that it allows to go comparably unchecked the feeling that it doesn't matter too much what we are doing now, as long as we do our "best," because eventually we're all going to Heaven anyhow.

It doesn't matter what denomination you pick, you will find an undercurrent feeling of assurance in the Heavenly future in the minds of many members. I know there are perhaps a couple of Christian groups which are doctrinally strong in the teaching about Heaven and Hell; but there are also a good many members who take it with a grain of salt and are of a tolerant attitude toward the church in that respect - "Well-l-l, you know the church has to say those things because that's its job."

Doing one's best is a fine way of doing provided there is some recognition of whom it is we are doing "best" by. If I am doing my best to make a lot of money, I may be headed straight for Hell, because it is possible to make a lot of money robbing banks or cheating widows out of insurance money selling fraudulent stock in an oil company. If I am doing my "best" to be a good father, I may be heading my children straight for Hell, because my impression of doing my best may be giving them plenty of money whenever they need it or protecting them in whatever they do regardless of the circumstances. "I tried to give them a good home" often is an empty lament because mother and father didn't have their proper place in that home. A good home gives more than a full belly and a bed to sleep in. If I am doing my best to be a good church member I may be leading the whole congregation to Hell because I think of a good church member as being one who participates in all the activities of the church and gives substantially to the church, meanwhile standing idly by when one of my fellow men suffers persecution at the hands of the community, either because of his actions or rumors of his actions.

There is a futility in trying to spread the truth of the Christian faith when the organ used to disseminate the truth is often afraid of its members more than it is afraid of its Founder. There is nothing in scripture to tell me or anyone else that there is badness in any part of creation. Yet we have churches whose character is marked by a condemnation of this or that wordly pleasure. I know it will rub some people the wrong way to say that there is nothing wrong with anything we do, in the act itself, it is the degree or the circumstance under which we act that determines the evil or the "sin." And likewise, it is disturbing to me to have the pleasures of the world (which are admittedly abused by all from time to time) placed under the general category of "sin" by the self-righteous who look upon their abstinance in some things as being the ultimate in Godly living. And often ministers say nothing to warn the self-righteous because they are afraid of losing members, as the members themselves are fearful of losing some of their number because of a conflict. It therefore becomes a matter not of seeking inspiration from holy considerations but seeking a solution that will not disturb the tranquility of the congregation. Forgotten is the fact that strength in numbers applies not one bit in the true appraisal of the work of the church. When numbers are the primary consideration, the strength of the church is at its lowest point.

The average Christian is not concerned with his attitude as much as he is with his acts. A set of rules would be welcomed by many in the Christian world because they then would be able to go to a written page and find out if it is wrong to smoke or drink or play cards or whatever else it might be that they had a question about. While the Ten Commandments are recognized by Christians as "The Law of God," they are not complete enough for a good many people. Consequently, there isn't nearly enough time given to considering how The Law of God manifests itself in daily living. Thus, we become judges and condemn the drunkard, when he may not need condemnation but love. Thus, we believe rumors about our fellow men, judge him and drive him from our association, if not our community, when what he may need is not condemnation but love. Sunday sermons have been telling about the Love of God for centuries and men yet twist what they hear into the right to judge. While the outpouring of real Christian love is forgiveness and helpfulness to aid one in overcoming his faults, the outpouring of Christianity is allowed to be a condemnation of "sinners" as against the good living of the self-appointed saints.

Quite often a church in this community becomes involved in a dispute of one sort or another. It is frequent that a pastor who makes a declaration of intentions, who becomes insistent in what he believes is right and must be done, is "kicked out," because he does not suit the members of the congregation. The response of a congregation in its attendance at worship or in its support of programs suggested by the pastor is an indication oftentimes of how unwilling laymen are to accept the leadership of the men who have taken as their life work the teaching and preaching of God's Word. And because it is naturally desired to have a happy, contented congregation, tranquility is sought by not making an issue of many things which should be issues, through the "pacifying" efforts of both laymen and clergymen. These "should be" issues are such because they come not from conflicts of interpretation of the way to do as inspired by Godly meditations but by conflicts of personalities and personal desires. For every conflict that has arisen in the churches in this community or any other community for that matter, there can be found an element of pressure that comes entirely outside the world of spiritual enlightenment. And each time the desire to avoid "trouble" determines the course of action, the Christian world suffers a set-back in its mission.

In all history, whether it is in the realm of religion or not, the men and women who are remembered and respected are not the appeasers but those who took a stand and would not back down. They considered being right more important than being liked and they were careful and deliberate in making their decisions. Every professed Christian has a responsibility to be loyal to God first; He is first, before even family and friends. It is in seeking to be thus loyal that a person achieves righteousness. We must not seek to condemn but to love, for our condemnation will lead us to the gates of Hell as readily as will the acts of those we condemn lead them to those gates. And this is a message which the Christian church emphasizes little.

Others say. . . .

IN DEFENSE OF DOING

I happened to be in Fort Wayne on Good Friday, and on that night, to the shock of the citizenry, swastikas were daubed on the local synagogue. My mind went back at once to the 'thirties and 'forties, to Hitler, to the anti-Semetic acts of that tragic time. And I couldn't help thinking about our most obvious current equivalent: in four years, 530 acts of violence in eleven Southern states alone, forty-five bombings, fifteen homes struck by gunfire, six Negroes killed and twenty-nine persons shot and wounded in racial incidents — and so on. Clearly, there are people around who believe in "doing things." And when we read reports of this kind, we get the impression that most of the "doers" are on the side of the bomb-throwers and swastika-daubers — that the poet Yeats was right to say, "The best lack all conviction, while the worst are full of passionate intensity."

There was a happy ending to the Fort Wayne story, though. On Saturday a dozen Christian ministers gathered at that synagogue, expressed their sense of outrage at the act of bigotry and personally scrubbed away the paint. Thus they made the incident symbolically complete. There is one kind of "doer" who typically operates at night, and in furtive anonymity expresses the dark and shameful side of human nature; and there is another kind who declares himself in open daylight, identifies himself, and speaks for enlightened moral principle. Fort Wayne had both; it had its Good Friday and its Easter.

But we cannot really expect any happy endings except those we work for. There is widespread suspicion of activism: cynicism about the motives of "do-gooders" and cynicism about the efficacy of any action at all. Nevertheless, what we are pleased to call human progress has usually depended on "doers." And what my title is intended to urge is that more good intentions be translated into action. I shall use as my central instance one of the most pressing social problems of our time, the racial issue.

We are all aware of the racial depredations in the South, the bombings, lynchings, quasi-legal arrests and terrorization. There the issues seem clear, the humane and American position easy to see. But let us move closer to home. Here in Indiana a Negro frequently cannot get a room in a hotel or a meal in a restaurant of his choosing; he cannot buy a house wherever he pleases; he cannot get certain jobs even if he is well qualified for them. I myself grew up in a Hoosier community tnat did not permit Negroes to take up residence within the city limits; and within the last month a federal agency has reported that there are thirty counties in Indiana with such restrictions against Negroes.

When such unpleasant facts are brought to our attention, our response is likely to be, "Why doesn't somebody do something about it?" One reason nothing is done may be that irrelevant and distracting issues become entangled with the racial problem. It is worthwhile, I think, to examine some of these issues.

(1) Some people think of the segregation issue as a struggle between "liberals" and "conservatives," and do not wish to commit themselves to the "liberal" label. But as a matter of fact, these labels are irrelevant; one has only to examine the Congressional support of civil rights to see that not only the "liberals" but most "conservatives" are officially anti-segregationist. The eighteen segregationist Southern senators cannot properly be called conservatives at all, if a conservative is a man who looks at the past in order to learn from it, not to worship it or return to it. Similarly, party labels are irrelevant, for the major struggle over segregation goes on within both of the major parties, not between them.

(2) Others may be reluctant to act for fear of involvement in "controversy"—a word which has come to have rather sinister overtones. It is perhaps well to remind ourselves that "controversy" simply means disagreement, and that there is hardly any subject on which there is not some degree of disagreement. (Even such a question as whether the earth revolves around the sun can get an argument from some people.) Clearly on the racial issue the decent and humane positions are those on the side of de-segregation, of non-discrimination, of tolerance; and surely men of good will ought not to fear "controversy" so much that they abdicate their responsibility for taking sides in this argument.

(3) A final reason for inaction is that people consider the racial issue a battle between "extremists," and wish to consider themselves "moderates." But in fact this is not a struggle between extremists. The white supremacists do advocate an extreme position, but the opposite extreme, black supremacy, has virtually no advocates. A genuine moderate does stand in the middle — in the American tradition of equal opportunity for all. Standing in the middle, though, does not mean doing nothing. Being a do-nothing is not being moderate — it is being, literally, a nonentity; and the cross-burners are not going to be discouraged by nonentities. The Rev. Martin Luther King makes this point persuasively: "It may well be that the greatest tragedy of this period of social transition is not the glaring noisiness of the so-called bad people. It may be that our generation will have to repent not only for the diabolical actions and vitriolic words of the children of darkness, but also for the crippling fears and tragic apathy of the children of light."

Some "doers" have made steps in the right direction: court decisions, action by the justice department, legislation, non-violent demonstrations, declarations by church federations, establishment of human relations commissions, and so on. All of these are legitimate modes of action, and all have done good. But we can also act as individuals: we can write our congressmen, we can discuss the issue with our friends and acquaintances, we can encourage owners of hotels and restaurants to give equal treatment to Negroes, and we can hire qualified Negroes for responsible jobs in our businesses. We can involve ourselves, that is to say, in maintaining a truly American public opinion. That is what "moderate" action is; it is not seeing nothing, hearing nothing, speaking nothing and doing nothing.

One other thing: we are aware that "when bad men conspire, good men must combine." We live in a democracy where the give-and-take of pressure groups is the accepted way of conducting both local and national affairs. One of the most effective ways of "doing," then, is to support some established organization that is actively fighting segregation (the Congress of Racial Equality, for instance, which is directing the current passive resistance movement in the South). Giving money is the easiest way, and often the most effective; giving time and ideas is also valuable.

Bad men certainly will conspire. We are frequently told that we are all subject to pride, envy, lust, greed, sloth, gluttony and anger. No doubt we are. But it has also been proposed that we can love our neighbors as ourselves and that we should do unto them as we want them to do unto us. I think we can take it for granted that the "daylight" people, the men of good will, the humane people, do outnumber the "nocturnal" people, the prejudiced, the bigoted, the cross-burners. Nobody will know it, though if the bad men go on conspiring while the good remain pleasant, non-controversial nonentities.

"The race question," John Jay Chapman wrote, "certainly puts all of us to the alternative of becoming . . . a great deal kinder, a great deal deeper in character, or else of being brutalized to some extent." Day by day, by our action or inaction, we make our choice of these alternatives.

—Philip Appleman in the Bloomington, Indiana, "Daily Herald."

SMALL HIGH SCHOOLS FLUNK TEST

One of the favorite themes of the opponents of school district reorganization is that the creation of larger administrative units will result in larger classes. Therefore, it is argued, the teacher will have less time to spend with each student, and the quality of instruction will necessarily suffer.

Since it is rather easy to demonstrate that the size of the administrative unit is not necessarily related to the size of the attendance district, we do not propose to deal with this phase of the argument. Also, it can be shown that the size of the attendance district is not necessarily related to the size of the individual English, History, Mathematics or Science classes.

However, what the critics are trying to say is that the small high school does a better job of teaching English, History, Mathematics and Science. We cannot agree. As evidence, we would like to refer to the recently announced results of the National Merit Scholarship examinations. These three hour competitive examinations were given last year. On the basis of these tests, in which approximately one third of the nation's high school seniors participated, 10,000 students were chosen. This number was reduced to 9,000 by a second examination, given in October, 1959. Then a committee of evaluators judged the finalists as to leadership, grades, citizenship and extra-curricular activities to compile the national list of 1,000 winners.

There were 59 winners in Indiana, representing 40 different high schools. Yet there was not a single winner from a high school with less than 250 enrollment in grades 9-12. The smallest high school represented among the winners was Edinburg, which had 256 students enrolled in grades 9-12.

Yet there are 469 high schools in Indiana with less than 250 enrollment in the upper four grades, with an aggregate enrollment of over 57,500 students. These students represent almost 25 per cent of the total public high school enrollment in Indiana.

Since the students in these small high schools can be expected to have the same potential as those in the larger high schools, the most reasonable conclusion which can be drawn from the National Merit Scholarship results in Indiana is that these students are not receiving a proper opportunity to develop their potentialities.

Of course, some may argue that the small high schools may not know about these National Merit Scholarship tests. But even if this is true, it is hardly a defense. Rather it is a condemnation, because it reveals a serious deficiency in the administration of these schools.

And while we are on the subject of administration, we might as well point out that all but two of the 59 students attended high schools under the administration of school boards.

(A breakdown of the National Merit Scholarship awards in Indiana shows that a total of 4 schools were represented having an enrollment of 2,000 and over in grades 9-12; 10 schools were in the 1,500-1,999 enrollment range in grades 9-12, 6 with 1,000-1,499, 12 with 500-999 and 8 with 256-499.)

Dr. James B. Conant, in "The American High School Today," recommends a minimum high school enrollment of 500 students (100 students in the graduating class). The above figures show that 80 per cent of the students winning scholarships were from high schools with 500 or more enrollment.

We feel that there are very serious implications in these results.

—Dr. Marion A. McGhehey, Executive Secretary, Indiana School Boards Assoc., in the "Hoosier School Board Journal."

BURNS

A BAD BURN is a dramatic insult to the human body. Its impact is felt in every part. The patient who survives will likely carry scars not only external but internal as well, for the rest of his life.

The severely burned patient suffers agonizing physical and emotional pain. He is confronted with psychological problems that add immeasurably to his unhappy condition.

There is the threat to his survival, the fear of disfigurement, the prolonged physical discomfort, the frequent anesthesia and surgical procedures and the long, tedious convalescence. Also, there is the separation from home environment which deprives him of one of the main sources of emotional satisfaction at a time of great need.

Loneliness leads to depression and self-pity. Finally personal contacts often help the burned patient in giving him assurance that all possible is being done for him. Many burned patients are deeply discouraged, and it must be through genuine interest on the part of doctors and attendants that they are given hope and faith.

The patient whose livelihood depends on the use of his hands is greatly disturbed by burns in that era. Those who have been active in athletics are particularly alarmed by burns in their lower extremities.

Emotional upheaval frequently leads to abnormal behavior on the part of the severely burned patient. Some patients are noisy, loud and demanding while others are depressed, sullen and uncooperative. Profound emotional exhaustion is sometimes seen in even rugged individuals.

To be burned is to experience tragedy.

Riverdale Prefers School With Butler; County Unit Vote Strong

A crowd of 75 to 100 persons were present last Thursday evening at a meeting held at the Riverdale High School gym for the purpose of tabulating public opinion regarding school reorganization in DeKalb County. The meeting was held at the request of the five-man committee elected by Riverdale patrons recently to assist the county committee in determining public opinion in the Riverdale area. The committee includes Bud Shockley, Wayne Benninghoff, Frank Laub, Harold Kagey and Ted Haberkorn. Present from the county reorganization committee were Raymond Burtch of Garrett and Ralph Sechler of Saint Joe. Mr. Kagey conducted the meeting.

After a few controversial questions had been presented and disposed of relative to the contents of the reorganization law itself, the various plans offered by the county committee were briefly reviewed. Enrollments in high schools under the various plans were given for public information.

During the discussion a side issue developed concerning local building progress. Opinions expressed showing concern over lack of elementary facilities prompted the committee to request the patrons indication of building preference on the ballot with the vote given on county plans. Though the building question was not originally a part of the program and is unrelated to the county-plan preference as far as the reorganization committees are concerned, 13 ballots of the 61 turned in stated the want for a new elementary building. Riverdale's requests to the state in the past have been for high school construction.

The opinions of those present showed a majority in favor of Riverdale's inclusion in a school unit also including the Butler schools. Second preference was inclusion in a unit with Auburn while a surprising vote, 10 for first choice, expressed a desire for a county unit, one in which the entire county would be operated by a single schol board.

Though there has been a question of the workability of two of the proposed plans, announced as plans 7 and 8, due to the inclusion of a school unit now a part of Steuben County, one of the plans, number 7, which would unite Riverdale and Butler, received the highest number of first-choice votes, 12 at the meeting and 7 more turned in by the Newville Township Trustee when the ballots were tabulated. The county unit plan received 10 first-choice votes and Plan 4 received 9 first choice votes, this a unit including Riverdale and Auburn.

31 ballots expressed a preference on the selection of the school board in the proposed units, 27 favoring an elected board and 4 favoring an appointed board.

The various local committees in the county will meet with the county reorganization committee next Monday, June 20, at Auburn at 8:00 p.m. to present their findings. The Riverdale committee will welcome any further expressions of opinions before the Monday meeting so that a more representative report can be given.

A break-down of the balloting is as follows:

PLAN NO.	CHOICE 1st	2nd	3rd
One	10	5	2
Two	5	3	7
Three	5	5	3
Four	9	9	4
Five	6	6	9

Seven	12	14	0

Hospital Movement In Full Swing; Committee Report Cites Urgency

Vital steps have been taken in the past ten days to improve and increase hospital facilities in DeKalb County. The action came following a report by the DeKalb County Hospital Board in which the members recommended construction of a community memorial hospital with all "practicable speed."

The report was the result of extensive study by Glenn T. Rieke of Auburn, chairman of the group, C. J. Maxton of Butler, vice-chairman, Otis S. Fisher of Butler, secretary-treasurer, and Charles Overmeyer of Waterloo, Vincent Ruppert of Franklin Township, Frank Sechler of Concord Township, Carl McKee of Garrett and John Linton of Jackson Township.

Following issuance of the report, the county commissioners passed a resolution requesting the county council to appropriate $5,000 to employ an architect to prepare preliminary drawings and cost estimates for a community hospital.

The commissioners also requested that the hospital board proceed with incorporation of a charitable foundation for the purpose of receiving and administering charitable donations for the purpose of establishing, constructing and operating a county hospital.

The articles of incorporation were approved by the state last Friday and the first board of directors, consisting of the residents of all of the financial institutions in the county, includes: John D. Haggarty of Auburn; Troden H. Bookmiller of Waterloo; Hugh Carper of Auburn; H. M. Brown of Garrett; Amos N. Adams of Auburn; H. Clark Springer of Butler; and Forrest T. Gerig of Auburn.

Incorporators are the members of the county hospital board.

In conjunction with these fast-moving developments, Dr. C. J. Elward, who recently exercised a purchase agreement for Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett, announced that if a license is granted to reopen the hospital, it will be operated only as an interim hospital until such time as a new hospital can be built. When adequate facilities are available, Sacred Heart will be converted to a convalescent or nursing home.

Part of the report by the hospital board contained a recommendation that Sacred Heart Hospital be immediately re-opened and that Souder and Sanders hospitals be continued in operation to provide hospital facilities for the people of the county in what the committee termed an "existing acute emergency."

DeKalb County is reported to have priority in applying for Hill-Burton funds which provide up to one-third of the cost of a new hospital. In addition the committee reported an amount over $250,000 pledged for a new hospital.

A copy of the committee report is at the News Office for anyone wishing to read it in its entirety.

16 of the 22 members of the class were present. New Radar Unit

A new radar speed timer is now in use by the DeKalb County sheriff's office. The new unit was delivered Monday.

The unit was put into immediate use with 10 speeding motorists given verbal warnings in various portions of the county Monday night. Effective immediately, the sheriff said, traffic arrests will be made on motorists caught speeding.

Cost of the transistor-type unit was $1,000 plus trade-in of the old unit.

Minor Changes Sought For School Law

Reorganization of school districts was one of the principal topics discussed by the Legislative Committee of the Indiana School Boards Association when it met at the Severin Hotel in Indianapolis on June 11 and 12, according to William Bloom of Columbia City, chairman of the committee.

According to Mr. Bloom, "It is our feeling that only minor procedural revisions are needed in 1961 in order to assure substantial progress in effecting school district reorganization in Indiana. Most of the county committee are making progress and the work of these committees should be carried through without interruption, so that the citizens of each county will be guaranteed the right to vote on a county plan."

Mr. Bloom reported that proposals for punitive legislation should be discouraged because they have not been successful in other states which have made the greatest progress in reorganization of small, ineffective districts.

Among specific proposals approved for submission to the 1960 convention of the association were the following:

1. Repeal of all consolidation and joint school laws which are presently not being used by school corporations in Indiana. This would not involve the repeal of any consolidation or joint school law presently being used, but would merely clear the books of all obsolete laws.

2. Prevent creation of any new school towns, after reorganization is accomplished under the present reorganization law.

3. Change of the date for notification of teachers of dismissal from May 1 to May 10.

4. Reintroduction of a bill to permit school corporations owning their own school buses to employ school bus drivers as ordinary employees, instead of as independent contractors, thus permitting coverage under social security and other protective laws.

5. Revision of the pupil transfer law to eliminate appeal of the decision of a school board to the county superintendent. Under this proposal, an appeal from a school board's refusal of a transfer request would go directly to the State Board of Education.

6. Exemption of schools which own their own school buses from the state gasoline tax.

Boat Registration

Due to confusion over the law on registration of boats State Conservation Officer John Conrad of Waterloo points out the provisions of the law.

All motorboats propelled by outboard motors of more than six horsepower or propelled by more than one outboard having an aggregate horsepower of more than six horsepower must be numbered and registered.

In numbering, each group of letters and numerals must be separated by a hyphen or an equivalent space such as IN-1234-AA.

The color of the numbers must contrast sharply with the color of the background. They must be readable from left to right and in block letters of good proportion of not less than three inches in height.

The owner or operator must carry the certificate on the motorboat when in use. Owners and operators are requred to report within 24 hours every accident involving injury to person or property damages over $50.

Indiana registration will be honored in all states and in coastal waters.

Boat owners living in Indiana must register in Indiana if the boat is used in the state. Indiana will register all boats, regardless of horsepower, if the owner desires. The conservation officer said this regulation is in effect in Indiana since some states, including Michigan, require that all boats be registered.

Bertha Curie

Funeral services will be held Thursday of this week for Mrs. Bertha Curie, 82, of Saint Joe, widow of the late Morris Curie. Mrs. Curie died at Hicksville Community Hospital Tuesday at 3:00 a.m. She had been in failing health for approximately six months due to complications of old age. She entered the hospital June 4.

Born February 26, 1878, at Harlan, Mrs. Curie was the daughter of the late Geogre and Aretta Dorsey James. She and Mr. Curie were married at Harlan March 5, 1901, and they spent their married life at Saint Joe.

Mr. Curie died January 21, 1951.

Survivors include two sons, James Lloyd Curie of Toledo and Leonard L. Curie of Fort Wayne; three daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Ramsey, confined in the Hicksville Hosptal for the past two years following an automobile accident, Mrs. Marcellean Hanouer and Mrs. Enid Munyer, both of Forest Hills, N.Y.; eight grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; two brothers, Ellis James of Painesville, Ohio, and Byron James of Harlan; and two sisters, Miss Lela James of Harlan and Mrs. Arga Egley of Baltimore, Maryland.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral home in Spencerville with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Chilean Emergency

On a special emergency assignment, CARE'S Assistant Chief of the Ecuador Mission flew into Chile to aid in the arrangements for the recent earthquake disaster victims last week. A dispatch from the CARE representative reported an overwhelming need, with one-third of the country's population affected. Entire villages are buried and almost inaccessible by land. Over two milliin people are homeless, with only the shredded clothes on their backs, exposed to the current cold weather in Chile, and epidemics of many kinds are imminent unless medical aid and shelter is given immediately.

To combat the need CARE is supplying three mobile medical units designed to give emergency medical and surgical care to large numbers of disaster victims, antibiotics and other drugs, blankets, shovels, axes, saws, hammers and other construction equipment and brick-laying machines.

Because CARE does not maintain a permanent mission in Chile, supplies and equipment are being transferred to Chile from neighboring CARE missions in Latin America and from the United States. CARE is sending aid in cooperation with the American and Chilean Red Cross.

Contributiins may be sent to "CARE for Chile," 1 South State, Chicago 3. Illinois.

Locally, the congregations of the two Lutheran churches have been asked to make a special appeal for funds for Chilean relief thru the permanent assistance program of Lutheran World Action.

Twelve Trip Tips

Leaving soon on your vacation? If you are, the Chicago Motor Club suggests checking the following list before leaving home.

1. Notify the circulation department of your newspaper to have the paper sent to your vacation address, or tell them to stop delivery while you are away. Also, tell the milkman and others who make regular deliveries to your home that you'll be away.

2. Turn off your refrigerator and other utilities.

3. Provide for care of your garden and house plants.

4. Provide for your pets.

5. Arrange for someone to pick up your mail; if necessary, have it forwarded.

6. Be sure all exterior doors and windows are locked.

7. Notify neighbors and local police that you're taking a trip and that you have asked no one to move anything from your home or apartment.

8. Leave window shades only part-way down.

9. Don't leave a note in the mailbox for prospective guests announcing that you've gone.

10. Plan your trip well in advance, including your itinerary, places to visit, accommodations, points of interest, route information and maps. Leave a copy of this itinerary with a relative or friend.

11. Make certain you have a car registration certificate and valid driver's license, both with the correct address on them.

12. Remember to take along such essential items as a thermos bottle, camera and film, personal effects, sun glasses, first aid kit, travelers checks, check book, flashlight and insurance credentials.

School Group Hears New Ideas

The advisory committees recently elected by the various school- areas in the county met with the county reorganization committee Monday evening to present their findings from their "public opinion polls." The results indicated a majority of county citizens favoring a plan set up as follows:

PLAN No. 3 (as proposed by county committee) including 3 school districts

1. Fairfield, Richland, Keyser-Garrett-Butler Twp.
2. Smithfield, Waterloo - Grant, Auburn, Union, Jackson.
3. Butler Metropolitan, Riverdale, Troy.

Five of the committees reporting gave the above plan as the number one choice in their areas. The reports were as follows:

Auburn—1st no. 3, 2nd no. 1, third no. 6.

Fairfield Twp.—1st no. 2, second no. 6, 3rd no. 1.

Franklin Twp.—(new plans as described below).

Garrett-Keyser-Butler— 1st. no. 3, 2nd no. 1, 3rd no. 4.

Jackson Twp.—1st no. 2, 2nd no. 3, 3rd no. 4.

Butler—majority opinions in favor of no. 3 or no. 4.

Richland Twp.—1st no. 2, 2nd no. 1, 3rd no. 3.

Riverdale—1st no. 7, 2nd no. 4, 3rd no. 1.

Smithfield—1st no. 2, 2nd no. 1, no 3rd choice given.

Troy—1st no. 3, 2nd no. 2, 3rd no. 6.

Union—1st no. 1, 2nd no. 2, 3rd no. 8.

Waterloo-Grant—1st no. 3, 2nd no. 2, 3rd no. 1.

Troy Township also presented an idea for plan "No. 9, a combining of the Hamilton school with plan no. 4.

Fairfield Township representatives did not have a tally of votes since they had not held a public meeting. However, a presentation was made of new proposals by the 5-man committee which recommended a 2-county unit, a combination of DeKalb and Steuben counties in one school system. This was the first choice of the committee. Their second choice included a combination of four lower townships from Steuben County with four upper townships of DeKalb County. Their third choice was DeKalb County plus Otsego and Richland Townships of Steuben County.

The new proposals were only suggestions for consideration by committee members and were recommendations of the advisory committee. The plans will be submitted to the residents of Franklin Township for a vote and the results will be given to the county committee.

EYE MOVEMENTS

WHAT IS happening to your eyes as you read these lines? They are jumping in a series of little hops. The movement of the eyes in reading is too rapid to be noticeable.

As with many other things people do unconsciously, we do not think about the movement of the eyes in reading.

When eating, we do not consider the movement of the lower jaw which is the only large movable bone of the skull. While walking, we don't think about the action of the various tarsal bones which form the arch of the foot. Nor do people consider the beating of their heart, or their breathing, or blinking of the eyes.

Reading is a complex act and there are several considerations which should be taken into account to prevent eye strain and discomfort.

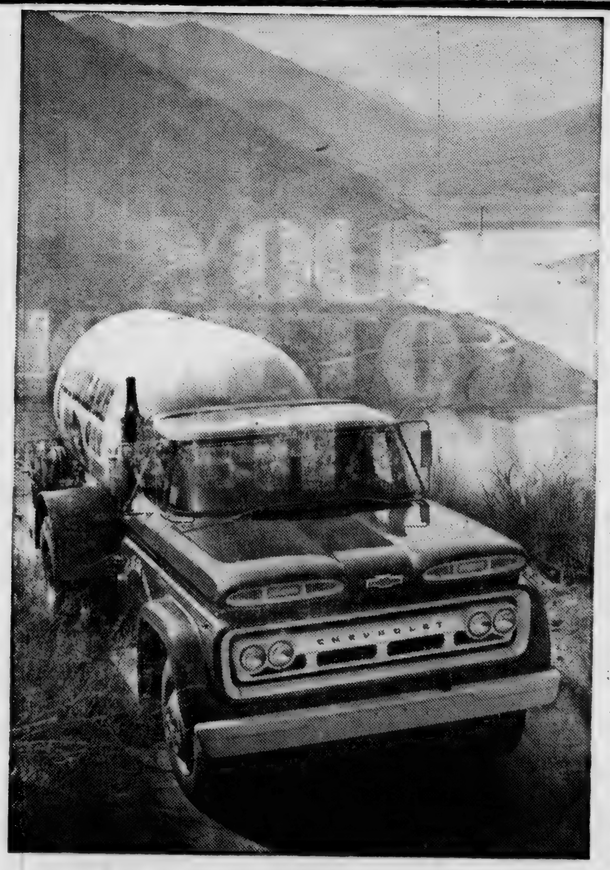
The number of leaps taken by the eyes when reading remains the same regardless of the distance between the eyes and the printed page, so long as the type is readable.

Attention is directed chiefly to the beginning of words, for words are not read by the letters individually, but by their general configuration or shape. In ordinary Roman printed characters, we note that all capital letters extend above the line. Of the small letters, fourteen are short, seven extend above the line and five below. As to the short letters, their characteristic features are in the upper parts.

As a person reads, the eyes are jumping in a series of hops, and at each pause a group of about ten letters is more or less accurately seen.

A child reading makes more jumps in a line than an older person, as does a person reading a foreign language or correcting printer's proof.

Spacing of letters and words has a considerable effect on legibility.



CHEVROLET

OUT WHERE THE COUNTRY CAN TEAR A TRUCK TO PIECES—

Chevy middleweights get 1/3 more work done in a day!

Where they used to deliver 2,300 gallons of liquefied petroleum gas in other trucks, Petrolane Gas Service of Long Beach, California, can now deliver 3,500 gallons a day! That's 7 days a week usually, over back trails and up into high rock country with maximum GVW loads. And with Chevy's Torsion-Spring Ride paving every foot of the way! "You don't get any more jolting on washboard roads than you do in a passenger car, or any sidesway on curves," says driver Bernie Stone. "I used to take some rough roads at from 5 to 8 miles an hour. Now I can go 30 over them." Petrolane has over 200 Chevrolets hauling for them.

If you think we're excited about Chevy's independent front suspension, you ought to talk to the truck owners who are profiting by it. They'll tell you Chevy's torsion-spring design is the hottest thing to hit the industry since trucks began. Drive one—that's the proof, short and sweet.

New Post

Activation soon of a State Police subdistrict headquarters on US27 north of Angola was seen as an answer to a year-round traffic problem caused by expanding travel in northeastern Indiana. The new post, which will serve Steuben and DeKalb counties, will be located a quarter of a mile south of Ind. 120 and two miles north of the entrance to Pokagon State Park. An open house will be arranged when the installation becomes operative late this month.

The new post was authorized by the State Budget Committee. Steuben County's normal 17,000 population grows to 125,000 when vacationers visit the numerous lake resorts. Anticipated travel on the proposed Interstate Route 69 was the factor that caused the committee to act favorably on the proposal made by Col. Harold Zeis, superintendent of Indiana State Police.

The Angola detachment will be housed in a five-room frame and stone structure. It will be part of the Ligonier district, as is the Fort Wayne post.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I imagine most Saint Joe'ers are of the same opinion—the fogging outfit the town purchased a few years ago is one of the best investments we ever made.

Its effectiveness was evident Wednesday night at the ball diamond. The Little and Pony leaguers had a double-header scheduled and the first game was barely underway when it became very unpleasant with the crop of mosquitoes present. Pretty soon a haze came from the east and then we could hear the drone of the fogging machine—and within minutes there wasn't a mosquito to be seen - or felt.

What a relief!

Becky Stiver put me on the spot last week when she called to say they had a little duckling at their place and didn't know where it came from — did I want to take it and put something in the paper about it.

Fortunately, the duck was claimed by its owners, the Groves. And I didn't have to feel guilty about squirming out of becoming father to a duck.

There have been some pretty good ball games at the diamond this year. Among them is a no-hitter hurled by Ronnie Lake for the Lions Little Leaguers. All 18 put-outs were strike-outs.

An item recently about Wally Sherritt studying to be a doctor brought a memory of his ball playing at the local diamond for the Saint Joe Lutheran softballers that seems not so long ago. What is remembered most is the fact that Wally was the smallest third baseman playing at that time and at first he had all he could do to get the ball to first on the fly.

And now he's getting into one of the greatest service professions—medicine.

My, how it does fly.

Our recent bicycle subscription-selling campaign produced only one bicycle winner, John Keith of Spencerville. Dorothy Cobb tried her best but couldn't earn the bike. She did earn cash for the subscriptions she did sell, however.

It seemed like a good deal to me—getting a bike for the small amount of money involved; I expected a lot of "salesmen" to appear, but the anticipated big response just didn't materialize even tho' there was no limit on the number of bikes to be given. But that's the way it goes nowadays, I guess. Even an eight to nine hundred dollar prize offered by the Fort Wayne papers went unclaimed recently because no one tried for it.

I think the next contest will be for a jet-propelled popsicle stick.

For the next two weeks, we hope to have the cooperation of the weatherman so that the most can be made of our vacation. Which means that it will probably rain for the next two weeks.

Anyhow, it's the lake for us for two weeks.

Be back July 23.

Baker-Miller

Miss Maxine Ruth Miller and Mr. Clayton Bruce Baker were united in marriage in St. Mark Lutheran Church at 6:00 p.m. Saturday, June 25. Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiated at the double ring ceremony following a musicale by Mrs. John Carpenter, organist, and Mr. Don Miller, vocalist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Miller of Fort Wayne. Mr. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe.

Miss Janet Miller served as maid of honor for her sister. Mrs. Thelma Ringenberg of Champaign, Illinois, and Mrs. Delores Bowling of Fort Wayne, also sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids.

Miss Suzanne Baker, sister of the groom, was flower girl.

Robert Baker served as best man and ushers were Jerry and John Baker, all brothers of the groom. Paul Ringenberg was ring bearer.

A reception was held in the church basement immediately following the ceremony.

Following a honeymoon trip, the couple now reside at 1923 E. Pontiac in Fort Wayne.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser for the midsummer meeting on Wednesday evening, June 30. There were 12 members and three guests present.

The meeting opened with the club collect and pledge to the flag. A short business meeting was held with the club program for 1960-61 being read for approval of members.

A social time followed and the committee served light refreshments. The committee for the evening was Mrs. Yeiser, Mrs. Elwood Hart and Mrs. Don Burley.

Guests were Mrs. Cora Curie, Mrs. William Staman and Mrs. Allen Haller.

Dump Placed On Supervised Schedule

Plans were formulated Monday evening at the meeting of the Town Board of Saint Joe for the supervised operation of the town dump. Within the near future the dump area will be fenced off and kept open for use at stated hours. The move by the board is felt necessary due to profuse and uncontrolled dumping by people coming from great distances. No restriction is planned on dumping, however, except for fees to be charged according to sizes of loads.

The dump was recently bulldozed and levelled in preparation for maintaining a sanitary landfill. Mr. Randall Balliett has accepted the post of supervisor of the operation and will be in charge as soon as the fencing in has been accomplished.

The days and hours when the dump will be open are as follows (subject to change in the future):

Wednesday—1:00 to 5:00 p. m.

Saturday—9:00 a.m. to 12 noon and 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Fees to be charged those residing outside Saint Joe will be as follows:

25c car; 50c trailer; 75c small truck; $1.00 large truck.

Residents of Saint Joe will not be charged any fee since the dump is maintained thru town tax funds.

The fees and hours go into effect when the dump area has been fenced in. Users are asked to cooperate in establishing a fair and equitable manner of maintaining the dump.

Also discussed at the meeting was the matter of taking over the operation and maintenance of the cemetery. Lyle McMaken and Estil Taylor were present representing the Knights of Pythias Lodge which at present maintains the cemetery. The matter was continued under advisement.

The board then began preparation of the town's estimated budget for 1961 and adjourned at 11:30 p.m. after a 4-hour session.

Park Equipment To Be Installed Saturday; Funds For Industrial Land Purchase Being Collected

Volunteers workers will be needed this coming Saturday at the park as the park committee prepares to install approximately $1000-worth of equipment purchased thru individual and organizational contributions. Park committee members plan to provide the necessary footings and foundations for the pieces of equipment so that the public may begin making use of the park. Thus far only picnic tables and a well for a water supply have been installed.

Volunteers should contact Mr. Willard Hurni, park superintendent.

The Booster Club board of directors held a meeting last Friday with Orville Coburn, Leon Kees, Eddie Halt, Frank Sechler, Maurice Kline and Ted Haberkorn present. The work at the park was included in business discussed.

Also undertaken by the board was a concentrated effort to collect pledges for the fund earmarked for purchase of 5 acres of land at the east edge of Saint Joe for industrial development. The club has had such development as one of its main objectives for the past two years. Purchase of the land will be made in the very near future as the solicitation is completed. Businessmen are underwriting the purchase of the land. However, any contributions from individual citizens will be welcomed. Such donations may be turned in to Mr. Halt, secretary-treasurer of the Booster Club.

A prospect for new industry has inspected the site at Saint Joe in recent weeks. However, no decision on a move to Saint Joe has as yet been made, though it is expected in the next four to six weeks.

Purchase of the land is being made to be prepared for any interested industry which may seek a site such as is being developed by the Booster Club.

Booster Club memberships may be obtained from Mr. Halt for the remainder of this year for $3.00. Dues are $6.00 per year.

People Are Talking

One of the questions asked by several people at a recent public meeting about school reorganization in DeKalb County was incorporated into the survey of local public opinion about reorganization. That question was, "Why haven't we constructed a new elementary school" or "Why don't we build a new elementary school?" The answer is that we haven't asked for permission to build a new elementary school. Request for construction approval for Riverdale has been for high school buildings, which, under the reorganization act, is a futile request. However, every high source of information available, without giving what you woud call an official declaration, has indicated that a new elementary building could have been and can be started any time. In fact, a statement was made at the last public meeting by a member of the county reorganization committee that we could be building a new elementary building "tomorrow" if we asked for it. Thirteen citizens later voluntarily wrote in on their survey ballots that they favored seeking construction of elementary facilities.

You will note that the previous paragraph pointed out that "several" people asked about elementary construction. I have a feeling of guilt for not having presented a resume of reactions to editorials in which I have spoken about schools. Because I am certain people have been afraid to say what they think out of what some might call "respect" for the feelings of others; but it isn't really respect, it is fear, fear of the unknown, not knowing what the other fellow thinks and fear of asking. Many people have said to me, sometimes in a whisper, figuratively speaking, "Keep it up, we need it." And they spoke quietly because of their business associations, their social contacts, their organizational affiliations, their neighborhood relationships, yes, even their church relationships. Others have remained silent because of the same pressures. But, thank goodness, some are now speaking a little more openly, so openly in fact that they asked at a public meeting, "Why haven't we constructed an elementary school if that is what we can get?" It is "the people" who are asking the questions. When "we the people" start asking in numbers, things get done.

I recognize the fact that there are those who have been disturbed by what I have said in these columns because they are in positions of responsibility as far as the school is concerned. However, if the desire to "keep home rule" is so important to us, as it seems to be judging from the criticisms of the reorganization act, then it behooves the responsible parties to listen to the words of the people. Where there was hesitancy in saying anything about school buildings before, now there are outward expressions of opinion in the form of statements or implied opinions in the form of questions. What I am trying to say is that, whether the school board likes it or not, opinions and thoughts about education and schools have been tossed out for the public to chew on and the reactions have indicated a great deal of agreement. And, if so-called "home-rule" is so important on the local school level, then the proper officials would do well to listen to the people and put into practice what they attempt to preach.

But let us not stop at the mere matter of buildings. The whole muddle isn't just over classrooms; classrooms and elementary building are just one of many things which are covered by a concern for good education as expressed by local citizens. When direct statements are made such as these: "It's about time somebody said something"; "I just read your editorial clear through and I called to say 'THANK YOU!' "; "Keep it up; you're on the right track"; "You're going to get criticized for it; but don't stop!"; "Every bit of it is true"; "My gosh, it was that way 20 years ago when I went to school here"; "We've lost too many good teachers"; I am afraid I must take the view that there are a good many people who are not particularly concerned over such purely administrative matters as bus routes and where the high school will be and higher taxes and whatever else has been thrown into the pot to make opportunities for conflicts. They are concerned about the quality of education and the undeniable fact that we are not doing the best that we can. They are aroused enough to express themselves in outbursts of agreement such as greeted a citizen of the community at the last public meeting when he felt compelled to "get on the soap box" to express his concern over the attempts to hinder reorganization. He was greeted with spontaneous applause and vocal agreement. This is, indeed, significant.

There it is. People ARE TALKING and they ARE THINKING; they have been for some time. The difference is that they have found courage to express themselves more openly.

Others say . . . .

PLAIN TALK from the Editor's Desk

With all this criticism over school reorganization (including this column) it's about time a word was said on behalf of the members of school reorganization committees.

I myself don't like the act. I think the men behind it are out to take local control away from the people. I think it will lead to more Federal control of our schools. I think it is socialistic in nature.

But this does not mean that I blame county committee members one iota. They did not draw up the act, they did not ask to be on the committees, they were appointed.

They are just having to do the dirty work, while those who fashioned the thing sit back, unscathed, watching all the fuss, and smiling.

It may be true that there are those on the committees who see the act as a means to further personal ambition, but I believe that the good majority of the members took the appointment out of a sense of civic duty.

They have worked unbelievable long hours without pay, gathering data, holding meetings, having to squabble and argue, while ducking brickbats all the while.

If you are one who doesn't like the act, and are throwing brickbats at committee members, then change your aim. Vent your ire on the provisions of the act itself, vent your spleen on the men who passed the act, the men who drew it up.

Argue with committee members over elements of a school reorganization plan if you disagree, but get off their backs personally. They are just doing a job they were told to do, with state strings and orders all the way.

Blaming these men and women, in the main, is unjust.

And I fear, too, that, if the act does not work out, these committees are going to become scapegoats. Proponents of the plan will say it was a good one but poorly carried out.

Don't you believe it. They are doing sincere, conscentious jobs. It's just that they were chosen as the instrument to force a law on people that the people didn't ask for, weren't consulted about, and we hope, don't want.

A Young Man's Initiative

An interesting story is told by General Telephone Company of Indiana which serves as an inspiration and a challenge to young men and women of today who may think that the age of inventors died with Thomas Edison or grown ups who think that America is going to the dogs because kids like rock and roll.

On a farm near Delphi, Indiana, is a 16-year-old boy, David Peterson, who is building his own telephone exchange out of surplus equipment and salvaged parts. Interested in telephony since one of his dad's hired hands showed him some Army manuals on communications, he has studied and worked by himself to construct the necessary equipment. Various people in his local telephone company have given him guidance and technical advice when necessary, but the ideas and effort are all his own.

At this time, he plans to build a dial system on his father's farm with a beginning capacity of about 20 to 30 stations. Later, he plans to add more capacity when he can afford more equipment. By designing special circuits, he has provided for several unusual features. For instance, dialing a certain two digit number will turn on an electric light at a remote place; dialing another digit will turn it ff. When another series of two digits are dialed, the caller is connected with a standard AM radio, permitting him to listen to a news program, etc., from anywhere in the system.

Also, he has ideas for several other interesting features to be included in his system. One of these is a fire alarm, whereby the dialing of a certain number will ring several loud bells. Another will be a device which when installed will enable anyone calling that number to determine by the relative pitch of a tone the approximate level of fuel in the farm gasoline storage tank, or the level of water in one of several livestock watering tanks. Yet another device may be made to lock or unlock a door from a remote position.

Besides doing all these things and helping on his dad's farm, David is setting up a small demonstration unit of telephone equipment which he will exhibit in science and 4-H fairs.

Recently his project stalled for lack of certain switch equipment needed to complete some of the circuits. After trying for about a year through various telephone supply and repair companies to find these items at a price he could afford, David appealed to General Teelphone of Indiana for help. After checking his background and training, the company offered to let him have whatever useful equipment he could find among their surplus equipment.

He made a trip to Fort Wayne and fortunately found some switches and connectors he could use to complete his project. Now he hopes to be able to finish his demonstration unit in time to exhibit it this summer.

Band Festival

High school bands in DeKalb County have been invited to Indiana University's 11th fall Band Day Festival October 15 in the new 48,000-seat football stadium.

Old Memorial Stadium bulged at its seams last year when the University department of bands paraded 6,000 bandsmen and twirlers from 107 Hoosier high schools before the home football crowd. Increasing interest in the colorful band pageant indicates an even larger group of high school musicians this year to help inaugurate the new stadium.

The opening of the new I.U. stadium will herald a new era in Indiana University athletics with 1960 the year that marks the development of a completely new, non-tax supported athletic plant. Located north of the campus and providing parkink accomodations for some 14,000 cars, the athletic plant will include the stadium and a fieldhouse now underconstruction, and future additions of a 18,000-capacity basketball arena and an outdoor swimming pool built to Olympic specifications.

Tax Split

DeKalb County and its incorporated cities and towns received $462,787.00 for road construction and improvement in 1959 thru license fees and other funds paid into Indiana's Motor Vehicle Highway Account by the state's automobile and truck operators.

Statistics compiled by the Highway planning Survey Department of the State Highway Department show that $363,815.90 went to the county for this purpose and $98,971.10 was allocated for road work in the following urban areas:

Altona $2,322.53.
Auburn $39,692.42.
Butler $12,922.49.
Corunna $2,282.03.
Garrett $28,970.94.
Saint Joe $3,233.99.
Waterloo $9,546.70.

Statewide this account returned $59,334,649.97 to the state's 92 counties and 545 incorporated cities and towns for road improvement in 1959. The Bureau of Public Roads reports Indiana's trucking industry is responsible for 35.9 per cent of this highway improvement fund, or $21,301,139.34 statewide and $166,140.53 in DeKalb County.

The account is collected thru the motor fuel tax, motor vehicle fees, civil penalties, Public Service Commission fees, court fees and state police miscellaneous receipts.

After dsbursements to the Indiana State Police, Office of Traffic Safety, Purdue University and to the State Highway Department, the remainder is then allocated to counties on the basis of the number of motor vehicle registrations and miles of roads and to cities solely on a population basis.

School Board Reverses Decision, Re-establishes Building Levy At Request Of Citizens Committee

A citizens committee of approximately 40 persons presented their views on the proposed dropping of the Riverdale cumulative building fund levy Wednesday night. As a result, the board reversed its previous decision and voted to retain the levy.

The situation developed this month when the school board by a vote of 4 to 3 decided to drop the building fund levy. It was a matter of several days before news of the decision reached the general public by word of mouth. The reaction by several was of disagreement with the decision and a group of parents began telephoning Riverdale patrons to tell of the board's decision and ask for expressions of opinions. With a great number of protests registered against the board's action, it was decided to meet with the board for discussion of the matter.

The board had moved its meeting date from next Monday to an undetermined date this week, pending receipt of certain necessary information from the state. As a result the meeting date and time was not determined until a few hours before the meeting was held. In mid-afternoon Wednesday the telephone committee began again calling Riverdale patrons. The group at the meeting came with only a few hours' notice.

Mrs. Hal Elzea acted as spokesman for the group and asked the reason for the decision to discontinue the levy. Richard Crow, president of the board, said that the board felt it was useless to continue raising funds for building purposes because there was not a sufficient amount in the fund at present to start building. In addition the matter of county reorganization appeared to merit a period of waiting to "see what happens." In connection with this, county superintendent Clarence Bowers commented that a county plan would not be ready for a referendum vote this November.

The rejection of the levy had been made at the board's July meeting. They indicated that there were no plans being considered for elementary or junior high building construction. Any building plans had been on a high school level and no approval had been given to such plans.

Financial conditions were discussed during the meeting. The cumulative building fund will have approximately $123,000 in it with taxes to be collected in 1960. Bonding the corporation would bring an additional $80,000. Any further financial requirements would be covered to a great extent by forming a holding corporation.

Many of those attending the meeting voiced their opinions varying from the matter of the lack of fire escapes to the suggestion of raising the building fund levy to a dollar rather than discontinuing it altogether.

The general air of the opinions expressed indicated a desire to seek approval of construction of a six-grade elementary building as quickly as possible. A minimum of 14 classrooms was suggested during the course of the discussion.

The board then retired to another room to deliberate. In the meantime the group of citizens waited in the gym. Thirty to forty-five minutes later Mr. Bowers returned to the gym and announced that the board had voted to retain the building levy.

The group presented a list of approximately 100 families in the Riverdale area which had been contacted by telephone. The list represented opposition to cancelling the building fund. A statement by a board member that "all the businessmen in Saint Joe" approved removal of the levy was challenged by three or four citizens.

The committee spokesmen indicated an intention of acquiring architect's estimates for construction of an elementary building and any other necessary actions to hasten school progress.

Lions Social

Saturday, July 30.

That is the date for the Saint Joe Lions Club's annual ice cream social. And, as in past years, the feature of the social will be real homemade ice cream dipped right on the spot from old-fashioned hand crank freezers.

The Lions have gained a reputation for their honest-to-goodness home made ice cream. And many a sweating brow there is as club members turn the cranks.

Other items on the menu include ham sandwiches, charcoal broiled hot dogs, potato salad, baked beans, pie, cake, coffee and kool-ade.

Proceeds from the social are for community service activities, which at present include the acquisition of a new television set for Marjorie Ramsey, confined in the Hicksville Hospital.

Serving will begin at 5:00 p.m. The public is invited to attend and enjoy real homemade ice cream.

Merchants Drop From League

Local representation in the Senior Federation Baseball League of Fort Wayne was lost last week as the team was forced to forfeit two consecutive games. This had the effect of eliminating them from play-off plans of the league.

Pete Timmerman, who has been shouldering the responsibilities of team finance manager and field manager, said this week that the forfeits were necessary when players failed to appear for games. A bad season for the team, its first in fairly rough competition, dampened the spirits of some of the players. The team had not won a game as yet.

The manager has been particularly disappointed because of the let-down for the many who had contributed from a dollar to 20 dollars to support the team.

A complete report of the finances of the team is being prepared for publication.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank those who assisted in contacting Riverdale patrons for the meeting with the school board this week, particularly the telephone operators who were so patient and cooperative. We say "thank you" to all who contacted others in any way to bring the message to the public.

He was the owner of Beams & Co. General Store and the Spencerville Telephone Co., retiring in 1946.

He was a member of St. Peter Lutheran Church and a 50-year member of the Concord Chapter of Free and Accepted Masons.

His wife preceded him in 1957. He is survived by two sons, Henry Christian Beams of Montpelier, Ohio, Dr. Ralph Beams of Fort Wayne; two daughters, Mrs. I. A. Ruder of Lompoc, Cal., and Mrs. William L. Peck of Anderson, Ind.

Services were held at St. Peter Lutheran Church with Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. Masonic services were conducted at the cemetery by the Concord Chapter F&AM.

Taking A Double Licking

I imagine giving a speech and writing an editorial are similar in one respect: if somebody doesn't give you an idea to work on, you face the question, "What shall I say?"

That was my problem this week, though there certainly appears to be plenty to say something about. There just hadn't been anything to give that necessary nudge. There hadn't been, that is, until I went to the post office to buy some stamps. THEN I had something to write about.

I wonder how many people are with me when I say, "I don't like those giant size special issue stamps the government is putting out." There have been plenty of special issues commemorating this or that in the past few years and I suppose it is a boon for stamp collectors. But to me it's a nuisance to have to lick twice as much in order to stick a stamp to a letter. And it seems as if it's a waste of money.

The partilular stamp which nudged me this week commemorates of all things "The American Woman." Now I don't have anything against women, mind you; I think they are very nice. But what's all the fuss about the American woman that we have to put out a stamp for her. Time was when a commemorative stamp was something. Whoever or whatever was recognized by such a special issue was particularly honored. This present wholesale series of special issues cheapens the purpose of the commemorative stamp. And as for the waste of money, haven't we been confronted with the postmaster general seeking postal increases because the department was running in the red? How about cutting off these special issues to their former trickle and cut the cost of stamp paper by one half. These special stamps are twice as big as the normal stamp; therefore the paper cost is approximately doubled (we must allow for quantity discount). And somewhere in the deep dark past I recall reading that it costs THOUSANDS of dollars for art work and plates and so on for each one of these special issues, though my memory may be at fault on this point.

At any rate, this run of commemorative stamps seems to do little except cause more tongue wagging when we mail our letters. It certainly reduces the honor for the people and events thus recognized and adds to the cost of post office department operations. When I hear about postal deficits and the need for more money, I can't help thinking about those irritatingly large postage stamps and the need for more - ugh - licking and how much more paper we are paying for for the privilege of - ugh - licking those bigger stamps and how much it costs to prepare for issuing the stamps before we even pay the bill for the paper which goes into those bigger stamps which we continue to - ugh - lick.

We've got Congressmen galore shouting their heads off about reducing the cost of governmental operations. Here's a good place to make a start. It costs more to print a double size stamp than a single size stamp. It takes more ink. It takes more paper. It requires more run-off time. Each new stamp means new platework. Gentlemen, if you want to put the post office in better shape financially, cut down on these "special" stamps that have become so numerous they are no longer special.

Others say . . . .

PLAIN TALK from the Editor's Desk

For humpteen years of my early work life I paid personal income tax without a thought. I griped, to be sure, but somehow or other it had been drummed into me somewhere along the line that Federal taxation was as inexorable as the rising sun.

Now there's a move afoot to abolish Federal taxation, but the income tax has been ingrained in me so thoroughly that the thought of it being dumped still leaves me a little unsteady.

Federal taxation was instituted in 1913 by Constitutional amendment. It can only be abolished the same way. And that is what the 23rd amendment (House Joint Resolution 23) proposes. The bill is now pending in Congress. It was introduced by Rep. James B. Utt, a California Republican.

Some 6,000 organizations in 35 states are reportedly behind this amendment. Legislatures of Wyoming, Texas and Nevada have voted in favor of it.

After mulling this proposal over for several months, I have concluded that the abolition of the Federal income tax could be the salvation of this country.

In my mind it would accomplish the following:

—Exterminate the giant, grotesque bureaucracy that is strangling us all. It's getting so an individual, a business cannot act, cannot move, cannot breathe because of stifling Federal administrative regulations.

—Revive once again that initiative and ingenuity that made America what it is today, that will let men step out in life as free men, afraid of no spectre of Government hovering over them, ready to slap them down.

—Eliminate this subsidizing that makes men try to get something for nothing, that twist awry an economy, that makes mockery of the law of supply and demand.

—Dunk our foreign aid give-a-ways that have the effect of dirty dishwater thrown on those who are the recipients. It seems the U. S. has not learned a simplex principle operative in human relationship: you cannot buy friendship.

The 23rd amendment proposes that no Federal tax be levied on personal income, estates or gifts.

The question arises: where will the money come from to run the Government?

Passage of this amendment would require the sale of more than 700 Federal corporations. This number of corporations owned by the Government is staggering. They have an estimated book value of $250 billion.

Figures quoted by proponents of the amendment say these corporations require more than half the Federal revenue for their support.

One man, Willis Stone, chairman of NCEF, said "the Government has taken over 40 per cent of the land area and 20 per cent of the industrial capacity of the nation."

Savings in foreign-aid give-aways alone would more than equal taxes in 1959 by $6 billion Stone told the Texas legislature.

I wonder how many people, such as I, were inculcated in some vague, unexplainable way when young that it was un-American to not pay taxes to the Federal Government.

Actually it is the other way around. This income tax has turned, and is turning more and more, every day, our country into a socialistic state.

And, lest you think we can't do without it, remember that it was passed in 1913. From 1776 to 1913 we did without it—and we flourished.

—Dick Harmeson in "The Tri-County Truth."

FAMILY PUTS 2,000 MILES A MONTH ON CORVAIR THINKS IT'S MARVELOUS

GAS MILEAGE "OUT OF THIS WORLD"

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kahelin of Plant City, Florida, couldn't be happier with the way their new Corvair has worked out as a combination family and business car. On their newspaper distribution route alone they travel more than 400 miles a week over all kinds of roads. Little wonder they're so pleased with the gas mileage they've been getting —"at least twenty-three miles to the gallon with an automatic transmission . . . and we've had no trouble with our Corvair." The Kahelins have equally good things to say about Corvair's easy-going comfort and unique convenience features. They especially like the way the fold-down seat doubles as a built-in baby sitter.

A big, big day for both mother and daughter! The camera has captured the end of cooking lesson number one, the first of many fun sessions to come. And it also captured one of the many ways electricity adds more fun to our lives. The electric range, the mixer, the refrigerator . . . all played a big role in this exciting day. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount — the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatt-hour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

Around the Town

With the Editor

I understand Earl Kinsey was in town while we were on vacation. I'm sorry we didn't get to talk to him.

One thing that came out of our vacation was the ability to make a "Merle sandwich." It's a pretty good concoction whipped up by Merle Holden. It reminds you of a Dagwood sandwich except this one you eat in the daytime.

Ordinarily I put ketchup and-or mustard on meat sandwiches and let it go at that. But this Merle sandwich includes relish, salad dressing, celery, fresh kosher pickles, mustard, meat and I guess that's about it.

—And it tastes pretty good.

One that Phil picked up on somewhere but we can't quite appreciate ourselves is a mustard and jelly sandwich.

Pete Timmerman was cleaning a real nice mess of bluegills last week when I stopped at the house. He and his dad got them at Fish Lake. Later Pete got his limit at the same lake.

We didn't get our limit and we didn't get many big ones during vaaction. But we did catch enough for some good messes. And the best place to fish at Lake James turned out to be right in front of the cottage we rented.

You just never know how far the little ol' hometown paper reaches.

Warren Clauser said a week or so ago the fund to purchase a TV for Marjorie Ramsey was increased a coupla bucks by a contribution from Richard Beebe way over in Maryland. Richard read about the project of the Lions Club in the News.

Don Baker's beaming face greeted me one morning recently when he stopped in at the News Office. He is making the Navy a career and is now in Philadelphia with his family.

Mrs. Jay Loy says her relatives are afraid to visit the Loys; their house is jinxed. A nephew of hers cut his hand when visiting recently. Then he got hit with a baseball bat. Then his mother got her hand cut.

The magic number is three.

Board Holds Closed Meeting

The Riverdale School Board held a meeting Tuesday evening at the high school in Saint Joe, later moving to the elementary building at Spencerville. Also present were the two Riverdale principals, Joe Smith and Howard Hill, an architect-consultant and Mr. Frank Sechler.

In seeking to determine the nature of the meeting Tuesday evening as the board met, The News was informed that it was a closed meeting with no particular information to come from it. The presence of Mr. Sechler was explained as that of a "representative of the community with an open mind on school matters." It is presumed the school matters referred to pertain to school construction which was the principal factor bringing a large number of Riverdale patrons to a board meeting last week to ask for retention of the cumulative building fund levy. The board voted to retain the levy.

However, the levy was almost a secondary matter as the group of citizens last week sought the board's efforts to seek construction of, in particular, an elementary building.

The board's meeting Tuesday was evidently in pursuit of construction matters though it can not be determined what construction plans were advanced.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB
Arden Dwyer, Rep.

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met Thursday night at the home of Jean Moore. 11 members enjoyed a penny supper before the meeting as a project of the finance committee.

All joined in reading the club collect. Jean Moore read a poem, "Father We Thank Thee." Connie Hollabaugh led the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the song of the month. Roll call was answered with each giving their pet peeve. A trip was discussed and also family night and 4-H night.

Project lessons for 1961 were announced.

Edith Arnett and Pat Keen will attend a special interest lesson, "You and Your Heart."

Special leaders reporting were: Connie Hollabaugh, Beverly Mansfield and Arden Dwyer.

Club closed with all singing the prayer song after which the members finished deserts left from supper.

Scout Troop Re-chartered

Charter night for the Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop was held last Friday with approximately 10 boys present with parents and Scout officials. The meeting was held at the Legion home.

The troop was recently reactivated thru the efforts of the troop committee including William Beebe (chairman), Robert Smith, Robert Musser, Gerald Miller, Walter Ervin and John Mason; Harvey Carr, acting Scoutmaster; Leon Kees, neighborhood commissioner; and Forrest Bevington, Legion representative.

Present for the chartering also were Harold Macentafer of Waterloo, commissioner of the north district, Anthony Wayne Council, and Voirol Myers of Auburn, serving on organization extension.

Mr. Carr has been serving as acting Scoutmaster with members of the committee taking their turns in conducting Scout meetings and assisting in Scout leadership.

Boys from the age 11 to 16 are invited to attend the meetings held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Legion home.

Hospital Unopened

On the heels of a denial by the State Hospital Licensing Council of a request to reopen Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett on a temporary basis, Dr. F. B. Kantzer of Garrett has made public a letter to Gov. Harold Handley protesting the almost unlimited powers of the State Board of Health and the hospital licensing council and pointing out the arbitrary manner shown in handling the local situation.

Gov. Handley then sent a reply to Dr. Kantzer and stated that the matter was referred to Dr. A.C. Offutt, State Health Commissioner. The commissioner pointed out that all the facts mentioned by Dr. Kantzer would be considered by the licensing council.

A hearing was held after the above correspondence and the application denied.

Dr. Carl Elward, owner of the hospital, has attempted to find out what conditions exist in the Garrett hospital to prevent state approval; but he has been unsuccessful in gaining knowledge of the specific improvements which must be made.

The matter appears to hang in suspension with no approval given for temporary opening and no success in finding out what must be done to open the hospital and give a temporary lift in the problem of adequate hospital facilities in DeKalb County.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met at the cottage of Ethel Wineland at Golden Lake July 15. Husbands were guests. A pot luck dinner was served at the noon hour.

The afternoon meeting was called to order by the president, Nancy Coburn, and all repeated the club collect. Devotions were by Ethel Wineland.

The history of the song of the month was read and all joined in singing. Secretary's report was read and roll call answered by 10 members.

Short talks were given by the various leaders.

The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer. A fish supper was then enjoyed by all.

Dusty Roads

Glenn Heffley, DeKalb County Commissioner from the Southeast District, has issed the following information:

"When dust complaints are many, spot treating suggests itself as a solution. Spot treating involves the spreading of a dust palliative for a distance of several hundred feet in front of residences, schools, crossings, intersections, bridges and railroad crossings.

"Spot treating will reduce complaints and improve safety. It has been reliably reported that the cost of using a dust palliative for laying dust on the full width of an 18-foot road is in the neighborhood of $500 a mile, or 27 homes per mile for a 200-foot application.

"There are a number of materials available and the costs are comparable. Bituminous material such as emulsified asphalt would seem more practical for DeKalb County because after several years applications the amount needed would be greatly reduced, thus reducing the cost if applied each year.

"Is it necessary? Many counties in Indiana, as well as Ohio and elsewhere, are now doing it.

"Can we afford it? $462,787.00 was returned to DeKalb County by the state from gas tax and license fees from auto and truck operators collected in the year 1959, or 16 dollars and 52 cents for every man, woman and child (28,000 by the latest census report).

"DeKalb County, outside of towns and cities, received $363,816.00 in 1959 or $482.25 per mile. Two-thirds (502 miles) of gravel roads now subsides one-third (250 miles) of the roads within DeKalb County which are blacktop.

"Are we willing to pay the price? The cost will only be a reduction of between 3 and 4 miles per year of blacktop construction.

"If the dust suffering people of DeKalb County wish a dust mat in front of their home, see, write or phone your county commissioners. It will take only one other commissioner, in addition to myself, to have it done."

Two Saint Joe boys and their parents were in for a conference in juvenile court last week. The boys, age 7 and 8, last Wednesday placed broken pieces of concrete on the B&O railroad tracks "to see a train wreck." However, the debris did not cause a derailment, the locomotives evidently having knocked the pieces off the rails. Rail officials and the sheriff said that the pieces of concrete could have resulted in a derailment.

Ray Hoover reported a theft Saturday of laying hens and a welding outfit from his barn in Spencerville. The welding outfit included the welding unit, assorted tips, hose, gages and cart. An estimated 50 silverlink laying hens were taken from the second story loft of the barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Countryman of near Hicksville spent Sunday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. C. Borthwick. Mrs. Marion Montague of Fort Worth, Texas, and Drexel Otis of Fort Wayne, niece and nephew of Mrs. Borthwick, were also recent visitors in her home.

Something different in the way of parental discipline was shown Saturday evening when an 18 year old Fort Wayne boy's father tore up the young man's driver's license following a one-car accident north of Waterloo. The boy said he fell asleep at the wheel and the 1956 Buick left the highway out of control. The car was a total loss but the driver and his brother were uninjured. Both were returning to Fort Wayne from the family lake cottage when the accident occurred at 5:40 p.m. The father said his son would not be permitted to drive for some time as he destroyed the boy's license after arriving at the scene of the accident. Sheriff Dorsie Likens dropped arrest charges after the father acted.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I suppose it's difficult to decide who's a squealer and who is a public servant. But there must be a line somewhere.

It's not a happy sight to return from a vacation and see that someone has taken the effort to practically pull down the drinking fountain and rail on our main street. It wasn't an ordinary prank; it took some power to do it.

Now what should a person do if he knows a little something about who did it—keep silent or tell the proper authorities?

What's the difference between "squealing" and serving the public interest?

Well, the time finally came —the time for enjoying roasting ears again. We had our first batch Wednesday of this week along with the first batch of tomatoes and m-m-m-was that supper good.

The tomatoes came from our patch but we had to take advantage of Alice and Roy Reidenbach's gardening skills for the sweet corn. Our patch just isn't making it, though we did get one ear last week from an outlaw stalk growing in the kohl rabi section of the garden.

As soon as we picked it, we cooked that one de-e-e-licious ear.

It may be the ONLY ear from our garden.

We learned one thing about beans and vacations. If you're going on vacation early in July, don't plant beans early in May. They'll both arrive at the same time. And you'll lose a mess of beans.

Along with her subscription renewal, a reader sends the following note:

"And I vote for the smaller postage stamps, too. 'A Lincoln' type suits me."

Scouts Sell Flags Saturday

Members of the Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop and adult leaders will circulate in the area Saturday, August 13, in a sales campaign offering a 50-star flag outfit. The set consists of a 3x5 flag, pole and wall bracket. Price of the complete outfit is $4.00.

Proceeds from the sale of the flags will be used for the purchase of new uniforms.

Residents of the community are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to obtain a new 50-star flag and assist the troop in its fund-raising campaign.

Hospital Equip't Available Thru Legion

Walter Ervin, finance chairman of the local American Legion Post, announced this week the availablity of several items to aid in the recovery of the sick and injured.

Through the sales of magazine subscriptions, an annual project of the American Legion in DeKalb County, new items ready for use include a child's wheel chair, child's walker, hospital-type bed complete wih springs and mattress and a bedside table. The new items have been added to the list which previously included two adult wheel chairs, adult invalid walker, adjustable aluminum crutches and canes and two other hospital beds.

Mr. Ervin pointed out that there is no charge for the use of this equipment. It is made available to the public in return for public support of the magazine sales campaigns.

Anyone in need of any of the equipment may contact Mr. Ervin for further details.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

PICNIC—DO'S AND DON'TS

Vive le piquenique. Picnic is from the French and supposed to be a happy time, with everyone bringing his pick of food. Picnics are healthful and should be restful occasions.

In many instances, the chairman of the picnic committee overdoes his part. He organzies the program of activities to the extent that the picknickers don't have time to sit down and enjoy their food and their leisure. Result is upset stomach, nervousness, fatigue. and general disappointment.

Tired, hot little children are rushed to the tables and handed fistfulls of food. Sandwiches are bolted, cold milk is gulped, cake is crammed into overworked mouths. Sensitive stomachs rebel against fast eating on a hot day with a lot of noise and confusion.

The wise picnic director will allow sufficient time for calm and peaceful eating and an interlude of rest.

Oldsters, both before and after eating, should not vie with youngsters in competitive games. The fat man's race under a hot sun is an invitation to trouble. No one should dash into the swimming pool immediately after eating, but should wait for an hour or so.

Children, especially very young ones, should have a nap in a shady nook after the picnic lunch. This will offer a relaxing period for both children and parents.

It isn't the ants but the antics that sometimes spoil a picnic.

BEE TOUR

The 4-H Bee Tour was held Thursday with the first stop at the Wilbur Walter residence west of Saint Joe.

Larry Mason discussed the equipment needs for handling, housing and taking care of bees. The purpose of each part of the hive was discussed. The uses of the bee smoker, bee veil and hive tools were demonstrated.

Larry also showed how to open a hive of bees. The group watched as he sorted the queen bee, drone bee and worker bees so that each individual present could note the distinguishing characteristics of each bee.

A frame of honey was removed from a hive for extraction purposes. Larry and Mr. Forest Nichol demonstrated a method of extracting honey. Newer methods for honey extraction were discussed.

The group's next stop was at the home of Art Baughman. He showed and explained the difference in equipment needed for producing comb honey and extracted honey.

The third and final stop was at George Boren's apiary northeast of Auburn. Mr. Boren showed the group how he produced his own queen bees.

Mr. Boren and Mr. Nichol told the 4-H members how to prepare their honey exhibit for the county fair and stressed some of the points which a judge looks for in a winning exhibit.

18 people attended the tour.

HOSPITAL ARCHITECT

DeKalb County Commissioners last Thursday contracted the services of Dan A. Carmichael, prominent Columbus, Ohio, architect, to draw plans for a county hospital.

Mr. Carmichael has served as architect for hospitals at Van Wert, Ohio, Marion, Ohio, Coshocton, Ohio, Xenia, Ohio, Zanesville, Ohio, Ravenna, Ohio, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and the state university hospital at Columbus, Ohio.

The architect will be guided by the recommendation of the Indiana State Board of Health that DeKalb County's present need is for a minimum 70-bed hospital.

The DeKalb County Council at a recent session appropriated $5,000 for preliminary work on the hospital study program. The appropriation includes $3,000 for architect services.

Included in the proposed 1961 county budget is $12,000 for additional architect services.

APCA REFUNDS

This week the Albion Production Credit Association completed mailing patronage refunds in the form of Class A (preferred) stock to over 3,000 borrowers using the Association during 1959. The refund totaled $100,000 and represented 14.7 per cent of all the interest earned on loans in 1959.

The Association now has the largest number of stockholders of the 495 associations serving every agricultural county in the United States. Cash dividends of 4 per cent on preferred stock have been paid since 1955, but this is the first patronage refund made to borrowers since organization.

Albion Production Credit Association, organized by and for farmers in 1934, is one of 10 in Indiana. It serves Allen, DeKalb, Elkhart, Kosciusko, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben ond Whitley counties. In 1959, its net worth entirely owned by farmer stockholders ranked 6th largest in the country.

Lloyd K. Mason, DeKalb County representative, and Beulah M. Rose, office assistant, currently serve 363 farmers who borrowed $1,840,000 last year.

In case of rain, the program will be presented in the auditorium at Epworth Forest, a mile northeast of North Webster.

"The first raid!"

ELECTRICITY helps create life's most treasured moments

Caught! The pop of the flashbulb, the click of the shutter, and the first midnight raid together is recorded for the family album. Electricity helped create this happy scene. The refrigerator, the lights, the fried chicken . . . all are results of electricity's magic. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

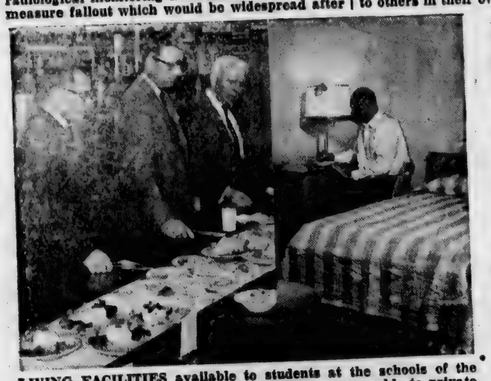
Practical, realistic instruction is a basic part of courses at the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization's Staff College in Battle Creek, Mich. This scene shows how students learn to meet typical CD problems given them while they simulate emergency duties which government officials must be trained to perform under attack. Below, a class learns from a 3-dimensional city map how evacuation would be carried out if and when ordered.

RADIOLOGICAL DEFENSE class in session at the Chemical-Biological-Radiological Defense School of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization at Battle Creek, Mich. Graduates of this course are trained to teach others how to use radiological monitoring instruments to detect and measure fallout which would be widespread after a thermonuclear attack. The students receive free tuition and a portion of their travel and living expenses paid. To qualify for the courses they must have a knowledge of college-level science and algebra, have some teaching experience, and be willing to pass their knowledge on to others in their own communities. (OCDM Photo)



LIVING FACILITIES available to students at the schools of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization are comparable to private schools and convenient to classroom areas. Shown are the cafeteria and a typical student room for the OCDM Staff College or Chemical-Biological-Radiological Defense School at Battle Creek, Mich. Rooms are $1.50 a night. Students attending OCDM tuition-free courses under State sponsorship are eligible for partial Federal reimbursement for travel and living expenses. For additional information write to the above schools or to the Western and Eastern Instructor Training Centers at Alameda, Calif., or Manhattan Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., respectively. (OCDM Photos)

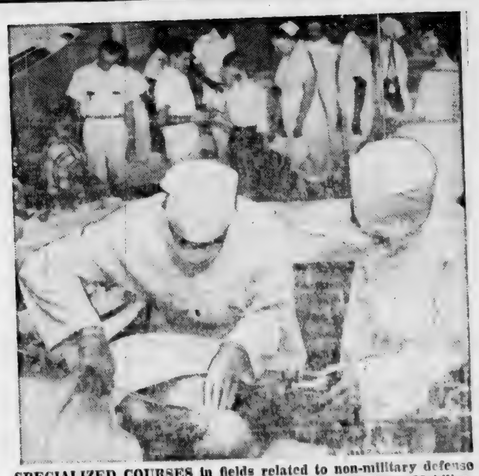
Courses in Radiological Defense; Basic Civil Defense, Principles of Organization and Staffing, Emergency Operations, Communications, Rescue, Chemical and Biological Defense, and Industrial Mobilization. The course, Radiological Monitoring for Instructors, is the same at both training centers and the C-B-R Defense School.



SPECIALIZED COURSES in fields related to non-military defense frequently are scheduled by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization's Staff College in cooperation with private or public organizations. This photo shows the use of moulages to train medical personnel in a Health Mobilization course on casualty care conducted in cooperation with the U.S. Public Health Service, using the Staff College's Battle Creek, Mich., facilities. Among other groups for which courses have been conducted are clergymen, educators, welfare workers and industrialists. (Photo courtesy Battle Creek Enquirer and News)

Learning—to Live

Schools of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization recently graduated their 20,000th student at courses designed to train individuals for emergency leadership to assure national survival in event of enemy attack.

In the past nine years students have attended courses of the OCDM Staff College or Chemical-Biological-Radiological Defense School at Battle Creek, Mich., and the Eastern and Western Instructor Training Centers at Manhattan Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., and at Alameda, Calif., respectively.

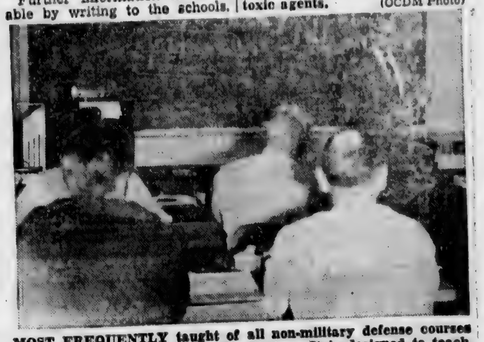
SUBJECTS INCLUDE radiological monitoring (to detect and measure fallout); basic civil defense; civil defense planning, operations, communications, rescue and care of the homeless or injured; emergency information; the civil defense role in natural disasters; emergency management of resources and production, and courses designed for special groups such as clergymen, medical personnel, industrialists, and the like.

Those attending the week-long, tuition-free instructor training courses teach others upon return to their home areas. Rooms are available at $1.50 a night at all training schools, and food at nominal prices. Many students also are able to qualify through their State civil defense offices for one-half payment of their travel expenses.

Further information is available by writing to the schools.

CHEMICAL-Biological-Radiological Defense is taught at a general orientation course for community leaders and government officials who would plan and direct emergency recovery efforts after attack by thermonuclear weapons or chemical and biological warfare agents. The C-B-R Defense School course at Battle Creek, Mich. includes work with toxic agents. (OCDM Photo)



MOST FREQUENTLY taught of all non-military defense courses is Radiological Monitoring for Instructors. It is designed to teach technically-qualified adults how to instruct others to detect and measure radioactive fallout which would be spread by wind after a nuclear attack. The training course is stressed because, unlike most other fields, the radiological expert has few counterparts in ordinary civilian life who could be called upon in an emergency. Classes are taught at the Western Instructor Training Center (shown here) in Alameda, Calif.; the Eastern Instructor Training Center at Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Chemical-Biological-Radiological Defense School in Battle Creek, Mich. (OCDM Photo).

Around the Town

With the Editor

It's always a pleasure to say "Happy Birthday" every year at this time to Jess Loftus who is still rolling along like Old Man River at the age of 87.

Fern Carr pointed out this week that when their family was doing some roof-fixin' last week end, daughter Andrea was living up to the popular ditty about the itsie-bitsie teensie-weensie. I don't recall any mention of yellow polka dots, though.

Bill Staman brought in a place mat used by restaurants in the Hoosier state, pointing out that a nephew of his, Dale Burdeno, is in the printing specialty business in Sturgis, and is responsible for those informative place mats.

Bill remembered a remark I made here some time ago about the information included with your meals when you dine at certain restaurants which use those printed items.

4-H Activities

The county 4-H Swine Day program was held at the Roy Blaker farm near Butler August 10. Dave Blaker assisted with the demonstrations, according to the announcement by Robert Honnold, assistant county agent.

The 4-H Swine Day was designed to teach younger 4-H members how to fit and show their pigs at the county fair. Dave Blaker showed how to trim the hair from the ears and tail of the pigs, how to wash and clean the show animals and proper oiling down with mineral oil.

Proper methods of showing pigs were then explained. Mr. Blaker gave a showmanship exhibition, emphasizing the importance of courtesy, alertness and basic showmanship principles.

Proper feeding, worming and selecting of 4-H pigs were discussed. The necessity of using balanced rations, providing plenty of water and feeding mineral and salt free choice was pointed out.

12 4-H members and five adults were present.

The 4-H County Dress Revue was held August in the assembly room of the court house. 109 clothing project members participated in the event.

Mrs. Evelyn Votrie was chairman of the event. She was assisted by Luella Gurtner, Waterloo; Helen McCollough, Butler; and Pat Young, home agent. The Junior Leader helpers were Sharon Smith and Sharon Beaty, Spencerville; Carol Schmidt, Fairfield; Ruth Ann Schmidt, Fairfield; and Judy Votrie, Richland.

The apron class with 40 members passed in revue. The separate class had 29 clothing girls participating. 31 members were in the daytime dress class. Four were in the suit class, three in the costume class and two entered in the formal class.

The Junior Class Champion was Patrula Knox of Waterloo. Rebecca Haynes of Richland Township was the Reserve Champion in the Junior Division.

The jacket reverses to a dark brown tweed with a matching tweed suit. Karen made her matching cinnamon wool pillbox hat and clutch bag. The gloves and shoes are a blinding cinnamon color.

Break-in Thwarted At Tavern

Two men from Fort Wayne have been apprehended following an attempted break-in at the D&H Tavern early Thursday morning of this week.

William W. Swank, 26, of Room 305, YMCA, Fort Wayne, was seized by Harry and Dick Loucks after he broke a window to gain entry thru the door of the tavern and was about to open a second door. Harry Loucks, who was in the rear of the establishment, surprised Swank who fled down the B&O tracks. Loucks fired two shots with a shot gun but did not hit the fleeing man due to foggy weather conditions. Dick Loucks was summoned for assistance and the two found Swank down an embankment where he had fallen in his flight along the tracks. Harry took note of the license number of a car which happened to appear at the scene at the time. The driver said he was looking for a friend. Sheriff Dorsie Likens sent the information to Fort Wayne police who picked up Frank Dunno, 24, the driver of the car, at 725 Curdes Avenue in Fort Wayne later Thursday morning.

Both men have confessed working together in the break-in.

Sheriff Likens reported that Swank is a parolee, having served two years and eight months of a 2-to-5 year sentence. He was released in December of 1959.

Swank has been charged with second degree burglary while Dunno faces a charge as accessory to second degree burglary.

The break-in occurred at 3:25 a.m. Thursday.

HORSE and PONY CLUB

The Horse and Pony Club met August at the Columbia Stables located south of Churubusco in Whitley County.

Mr. Dick Brandt, trainer and showman for the Columbia Stables, showed the group the stable facilities and the many different breeds of horses and ponies housed in this barn. The group had an opportunity to observe Shetland ponies and Palamino, Arabian and Tennessee Walking Horses.

Mr. Brandt also demonstrated fitting and showing both the horse and pony. The group was taught how to braid the mane, tail and foretop with ribbon. They also observed Mr. Brandt as he clipped the hair from the fetlock and the ears.

The group held a short business meeting. The Horse and Pony inspection tour was discussed. The meeting then adjourned and refreshments enjoyed by everyone present.

18 Horse and Pony Club members and 10 parents were present.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

MATERNITY—FIGURE CONTROL

Many women fear childbirth will ruin their figure. On the contrary, child-bearing can actually improve a woman's figure. That is, unless women regard child-bearing as an excuse for faulty posture.

The maternal figure is generally considered better than that of the woman or girl whose lines are not completely developed. In women not fully developed by child-bearing, the hips are likely to be too large in proportion to the waist.

During pregnancy, keeping the body weight down to an increase approximately 20 pounds above normal is important in maintaining a good figure afterward.

Many women during pregnancy tend to indulge in excessive eating. They harbor a notion they must eat twice as much of everything in order to sustain the added life. The pregnant woman should eat for two only as regards protein and the protective foods supplying minerals and vitamins. There is no necessity to eat twice the number of calories nor twice the amount of carbohydrates and fat.

Women who use judgment in eating, exercise, and maintaining good posture, need not have to fear for their figures after childbirth. Child-bearing can give a woman's figure that even balance that nature intended.

The most beautiful women in the world are, for the most part, mothers.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

That the Christ Child looked like any other baby.

Yes, He looked like any Hebrew baby of His day. He did plenty of sleeping. He got hungry. He cried. And, as He grew up, He looked like any other boy in Nazareth.

Yet, when He was older and started preaching, He claimed to be God. At one point in His life He declared in no uncertain terms, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father."

That a baby, born of a woman, in a stable, in an insignificant land, should claim to be God is an offense to some people, but not to a Lutheran.

To a Lutheran this is a miracle . . . a miracle performed by the God of creation, in order that He might show man His love by sending His Son to become a man, living among men, feeding and healing men, and finally dying on a cross for man.

It was more than a human baby who came that first Christmas Day—it was God in the flesh.

. . . and that's a miracle!

Hence, Lutherans believe God became man and was born of a virgin and was called Jesus Christ.

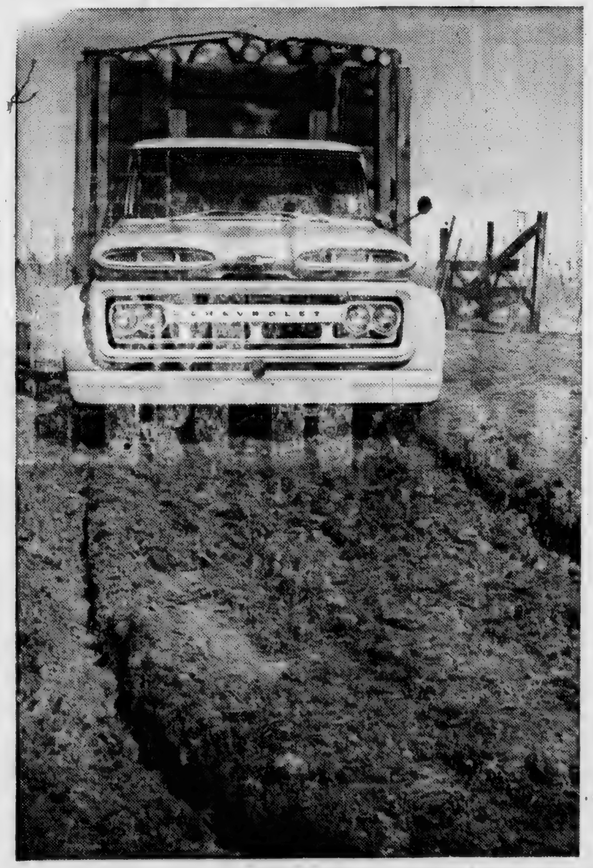
CHEVROLET



"These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck... but not our Chevy"

Few trucks are subjected to the body-wracking beatings that are part of a day's work for this Chevrolet Series 60 pulpwood hauler. It's owned by J. E. Fox, North Carolina logging contractor. As Bobby Fox, a partner in the business says, "Loaded with pulpwood, we drive over stumps and potholes you'd think would tear the truck to pieces. These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck, but not our Chevy. We can average an extra load a day . . . make $45 to $50 a day more with this Chevy than we can with the others."

In every weight class these Chevies are doing more work at less expense than trucks have ever done before. Drive one at your Chevrolet dealer's. It's an experience that could pay you big dividends.

◀ "That 6-cylinder engine really performs," says Bobby Fox. "It's got the lugging power we need in the woods and walks right along with a full load on the highway."

Auto Lights Defective

One out of each eight motor vehicles in Indiana was found to have equipment defects during the annual state-wide vehicle safety-check, according to State Traffic Safety Director L. C. Bever.

With more than half of the 2,170,000 registered cars and trucks being inspected in 315 Hoosier communities, a total of 138,215 faults was discovered. Lighting systems by far topped the list of defects. Lamps in 69,135 rear and stop lights and turn signals were found to be burned out as well as in 29,929 headlights for a total of 99,064 safety hazards.

This constituted 70 per cent of all defects. Other defects included 5,726 brakes, 6,144 windshield wipers, 5,197 tires and 12,880 exhaust systems. Also checked were steering, window glass, rear view mirrors and horns.

"With this large number of defects being disclosed in the 1,101,683 cars voluntarily submitted for inspection," Mr. Bever said, "imagine what the total would be in the million whose drivers either shunned or neglected the free checks." All motorists with defective parts were instructed to have parts repaired and return for approval.

"More than half of our motorists have a sincere interest in the safety of their vehicles on a voluntary basis, it seems to be a testimonial that Hoosiers are willing to follow the lead of 15 other states in enacting an official state periodic inspection," the state director said.

Contest For High School Writers

The opening of the 26th Annual National High School Writing Contest has been announced by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Vetreans of Foreign Wars. The topic will be "Law and the Free Citizen."

Students in all public, private and parochial high schools are eligible to enter the contest. National prizes are: first $1,000 cash; second $500; third $250; fourth $100; and 20 other cash prizes for honorable mention. State and local contest winners receive additional Auxiliary awards which vary with the community.

The writing contest was begun in 1935 to encourage young people to think and write on patriotic subjects. During the last school year more than 30,000 students from all 50 states entered the national contest.

Further information on the contests may be obtained from the Contest Department, V.F.W. Auxiliary, 406 W. 34th, Kansas City 11, Mo.

Mrs. Ivan Miller sang a hymn after which Rev. Frank Stevenson, former pastor of the Lutheran parish, spoke. Mrs. George Doll presented the good wishes of the St. Peter congregation. Rev. Billow then expressed his and his wife's appreciationf of the consideration given them by the local congregations. He read from the Scriptures to close his remarks.

Mr. Carl Perkins, representing the joint council of St. Peter and St. Mark, presented the Billows with a check from the two congregations.

The program closed with a hymn.

Another visitor present was Rev. W. H. Baker, also a former pastor of the local Lutheran congregations.

Rev. and Mrs. Billow have been in the United States for the past year, on furlough from missionary duties in Japan. Their return early next month will mark the beginning of another five-year span of missionary service.

Rev. Billow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow of Saint Joe.

State Scholarships

814 students who will attend Ball State Teachers College during the 1960-61 college year will have part of their college expenses paid by 14 scholarship funds maintained by the college.

Each year the college is authorized to grant at least two state scholarships to students from each of Indiana's counties. The other scholarships are made possible through funds contributed to the college by various agencies.

John Klem, coordinator of scholarships, points out that, in addition to the scholarships awarded by the college, many students are given scholarship aid through organizations or agencies in their own home communities.

DeKalb County students from Auburn, Butler and Waterloo are among those receiving state scholarships at Ball State.

Letters to the Editor

9 August 1960

Hi Ted,

Now that me and my family are settled a little, I thought I would write a few lines and let you all know how Philadelphia is.

For one thing it sure is hot here, it is up around 95 degrees every day and the humidity is high.

We live about a mile from the Naval Base. They have me working in the Legal Office here at the Receiving Station. I have to get all the guys ready to go to Captain's Mast for punishment that get into trouble, and believe me, we have quite a few of them.

We have gone sight seeing already. We saw the Independence Hall, Liberty Bell and a few other old buildings. I'll be here around 4 years, so there isn't any hurry to see everything.

Here is our address, in case anyone ever gets out this way, they had better stop and see us.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Baker
2216 Bigler Terrace (Government Housing-Passyunk)
Philadelphia 45, Pa.

It is right beside the expressway that comes from the PA turnpike, the last exit on the expressway (Broad Street exit), just before the Walt Whitman bridge going into New Jersey.

Well, so long for now, and let us hear from you all.

Respectfully,
The Don Baker Family

Baseball Musings

Going to a major league game game usually involves the question of whom it is we want to see, who has a good team or some outstanding players. I thought about this particularly after our family had been to a couple of games in Chicago recently and came to the conclusion that this year it is possible to attend a game without any concern over seeing a box office attraction. The National League has something to see with every team and the American League is in the same condition.

Everybody likes to see the champs or the leaders in the league. So first division clubs are usually tops in the list of teams fans want to see. Right now, Pittsburgh is an attraction because it has jelled after a few years of experimenting with rookies and developing pitchers. In last place only a few years ago, the team has now matured. Milwaukee with its sluggers, Matthews, Aaron and Adcock to worry a pitcher, not to mention a few of their own hurlers who know what to do with a baseball, is a team to see. San Francisco has the fabulous Willie Mays to lure fans in, Los Angeles and Cincinnati have teams to worry any major league entry and individuals to give a special thrill in witnessing baseball action. Saint Louis and Stan Musial go together and right now they're going at a good pace. Somebody always has to be last and Philadelphia and Chicago are having a go at it this year for the dubious honor of bringing up the rear. At that, each has individuals who are worth going to see, and since I am a Cub fan, it's a treat to see Ernie Banks hit one out of the ball park in his career as a slugging shortstop.

Right now an added attraction on the Cincinnati team is their second baseman, Billy Martin, who is the center of a $1,040,00 suit for damages resulting from a slugging of a Cub pitcher, Jim Brewer. It will be interesting to see what comes of the suit. While I may be prejudiced because of a liking for the Chicago team, it doesn't seem exactly right that one player is able to continue his career after a five-day suspension and a $500 fine while the other player lies in a hospital, having submitted to two operations because of the slugging. The latter must have contributed to the situation which caused the fracas so he should have been fined, too, it seems. And it looks as if it would be only fair to keep the other player from playing ball until the injured player is able to resume playing.

This is one of the incidents resulting from the practice of driving the batter from the plate with inside pitches. Only in this case, the batter, Mr. Martin, presumed that the pitcher, Mr. Brewer, was "throwing at my head" and he did something about it. The affair needed disciplinary action but I'm not sure yet whether justice has been served for either party.

At any rate, this year is a good year for baseball fans. Both leagues have good teams and good races. And there are outstanding individuals to give the sport extra flavor. As the late Bert Wilson put it, "Ah, there's nothing like fun at the old ball park!"

Others say . . . .

IT HAS HAPPENED HERE!

On the Sunday following the San Francisco "student riots" against the House Un-American Activities Committee last May, one of the major television networks carried a filmed "report" on the sorry spectacle. The report showed "American citizens" being physically seized and escorted from the hearing room by San Francisco police. The atmosphere created by the filmed "report" was that of a Police State in which freedom of speech was being forcibly denied to citizens by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The Committee was shown in a very unattractive light. In fact, the film's commentator voiced the opinion that the incident might prove to be the "final straw" that would bring about the abolition of the Committee. Uninformed viewers of the telecast undoubtedly were inclined toward saying to themselves, "Well, it's high time that outfit was abolished - if that's what it's doing!"

The fact is that the instigators of the "student riots," the very "citizens" who were shown being removed from the hearing room by police, were Communists whose long records of leadership activities in the Communist Party were open to the TV reporters and photographers who produced the television network "report." The TV "report" was of priceless value to world Communism. Although no reflection on anybody's loyalty is intended, the "report" could hardly have aided the Communist cause more had Communist propagandists been employed in its editing and narrating.

The incident of the San Francisco "student riots" and the true facts concerning them are of such transcendent importance to the education of our citizens and the security of our nation that a series of columns will be devoted to all the ramifications. The facts constitute a dramatic lesson in Communist tactics at a time when they are using university students all over the world to gain their bit by bit advance toward encirclement of the United States. The facts show that "it can happen here!"

Here's what did happen. The House Un-American Activities Committee opened hearings in San Francisco on May 12 to ascertain facts concerning Communist penetration in schols and colleges in northern California. On that day some 30 witnesses were called, including many notorious Communists. Mobs composed mostly of youths formed outside the hearing room, creating great disorder. Inside the room the Communist witnesses were vocally and finally physically violent; some had to be escorted from the room by police.

On the second day, the mobs were larger and more violent. Agitated by the Communist agents, the youthful demonstrators broke all bounds and attacked the police. Fire hose were used, but twice the incited mobs rushed and grappled with the police. The Committee members' lives were in jeopardy. Harry Bridges, twice convicted as an alien Communist and twice set free by the U.S. Supreme Court, appeared with the demonstrators on the second day. On the third day, the angry mob had grown to 2,000 in number, mostly students. Squadrons of mounted police and motorcycle officers were necessary to get the Committee members and staff safely away from the threatening mob. The hearings were called off.

The facts we are presenting come from an official report made by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It was issued after careful and exhaustive investigation. "The Communist Party, U. S.A., is elated with the success it enjoyed" in breaking up the hearings at San Francisco, Mr. Hoover said in his special report. "The Party's elation is so great, in fact, that it bears witness to the truth of the observation that such a Communist coup has not occurred in the San Francisco area in 25 years. Immediately after the affair ended, the Party's national leader, Gus Hall, congratulated the West Coast comrades for the initiative and leadership they displayed at all stages of the demonstrations."

Salty Subject

Here's a bit of information which you probably were not aware of, from the UPI service:

The average man blinks once every three seconds and the average woman once in four seconds, according to Dr. George N. Jessen, chairman of the National Contact Lens Month committee.

A nervous person, Jessen added, may blink as much as 40 per cent of the time. Blinking is accomplished in 4-10 of a second and propels tears over the cornea at the rate of 1-3 dram each hour or several teaspoonsful a day. Actual crying increases the tear output 100 per cent he said.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

That Christ is the only begotten Son of God.

And the emphasis is upon the word begotten.

The word begotten can best be understood as it is contrasted to the word with which it is often confused—created.

To beget is to bring forth the "same substance." To create is to make something from an "other substance."

For example, man begets man, the "same substance." But man creates a statue, an "other substance." Man does not create a man, he begets a man.

Likewise, God, when He begets a Son, can only beget the "same substance." But when God creates a man, He creates an "other substance." There's a difference!

Lutherans believe that Jesus Christ is the only begotten Son of God.

Lutherans further believe there is no proof for this claim, but that it's a matter of faith. Either one believes the claim of Christ—namely, that He is one with the Father—or he denies it.

To believe that Christ is the only begotten Son of God is an act of faith. That's where a Lutheran begins.

Moderate Hook Bowler's Best Asset

by Sylvia Wene, 1960 BPAA All Start Titlist, Member A-MF Staff of Champions

One of the questions most asked of me in my clinic work with AMF in all parts of the country, by men and women bowlers alike, is, "Where should my hand and fingers be as I release the ball for a hook?"

After determining that the bowler has progressed from the primary stage where only the straight ball is rolled, I set about to teach the mechanics of the most effective type of delivery—the hook ball.

SYLVIA WENE keeps wrist straight at "explosion point".

I first caution the student bowler against one of the most widespread misconceptions in the game—that you must turn your wrist or arm from right to left in order to roll a hook. This action will probably produce a ball that spins a great amount, but has little "mixing" quality when it hits the pins.

The first thing I tell a bowler is to concentrate on keeping the wrist firm and straight at all times. Now, the thumb should be in the ball at a point equal to 10 o'clock on a watch dial (12 o'clock position would have the thumb straight aehad) and your middle and ring fingers to the side of the ball.

The first action at the release or "explosion point" is the sliding removal of the thumb from the ball. In moving the ball forward, only your fingers remain in the ball for a split- second. As the ball is carried on your fingers you impart side spin on the ball when you lift it over the foul line about 4 to 6 inches.

It's this spin that results in the hook or small curve on your ball as it nears the pins. The hooking action allows the ball to cross through the pin area without deflecting off to the right as a straight ball will.

One point I always stress: stay away from the wide hook or curve ball. It looks great to the people sitting in the gallery, but is very difficult to control.

I tell my pupils to 'hold that line" straight down three-quarters of the lane and then have the ball break from right to left at the last moment as it nears the pins. A small, but well controlled, hook is your best asset in building up your average.

If you are an enthusiastic bowling fan, you should have fun finding your way thru this labyrinth maze to your favorite bowling center. If you hit a blind spot, just look for the answer on page eight to regain your sense of direction.

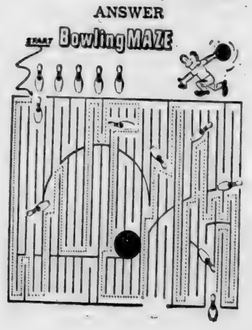
ANSWER



HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

SO YOU THINK YOU'RE IMMUNE

"Poison ivy never bothers me, I'm immune to it," remarked Fred. "That so?" said Joe, "What's that rash on your arm?"

No one is definitely immune to ivy poisoning. And there is no certain treatment for ivy poisoning.

Sensitivity to poison ivy may eventually wear off unless renewed by repeated exposure. People hitherto not sensitive and feeling they are immune, may become sensitive at any time. Desensitization is possible through repeated inoculations of ivy extract before the ivy season begins. Even with this protection an individual must still be careful not to be overexposed.

Poison ivy, poison oak, and swamp sumac all contain a substance which causes a skin reaction known as poison ivy dermatitis. The characteristic eruption on the skin may result from direct contact with the plant, indirect contact through animals or insects, or through clothing or dust.

First aid after exposure includes washing thoroughly with strong soap and water without scrubbing, and then an application of gasoline or ether. Soothing lotions relieve the itching, while scratching the infected parts may result in secondary infection. The best protection against ivy poisoning is to avoid the weed.

Poison ivy is easily recognizable with its three leaves.

Persons who work in the woods or fields should be protected against poison ivy by boots into which trousers can be tucked, and shirt sleeves which are rolled down.

Many summer vacations are ruined by poison ivy.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I don't know if it's a sign of old age or just not noticing other people. But when it is brought to your attention that the years have gone swiftly here lately, I begin to wonder. Here I thought Phil Carpenter, chin whiskers and all, was just completing his first year at Purdue and here he says he ought to be out next year at this time.

It kind of makes you wonder what you've been doing and where you've been when a couple of years get past you like that.

It isn't the kind of weather to inspire one to great physical activity these days. But it sounds nice to hear hammers pounding and cement mixers mixing and see paint brushes brushing in town. The buzz of people doing things just has a good sound to it.

Little League vs. Dads Wednesday

The Little Leaguers have issued a challenge to their dads to meet again on the baseball diamond.

Not satisfied with the brief contest last Friday night, the young men requested another ball game. The request was answered by Coach Price Brookfield with scheduling of another Little Leaguers vs. Dads game next Wednesday evening, September 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Sechler's and Lions Little Leaguers and their dads are invited to participate.

The garden leader, Doris Prentice, gave a report on the care of roses. It was decided to have handcrafts at the November meeting.

The next meeting will be at the home of Lois Strombeck on September 22.

In addition the recreational facilities were increased at the grade school with the moving of a merry-go-round from the upper grades at Saint Joe to the elementary playground at Spencerville.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Myrtle Pugsley.

Hospital 'Private'

The DeKalb County Hospital Board has announced plans this week for raising funds for construction of a community memorial hospital by public subscription.

The announcement came as somewhat of a confirmation of public opinion since little support had been received in the past several months for a tax-supported institution.

With over $300,000 already pledged, it appears a certainty that the necessary one million or so dollars can and will be raised thru public solicitation.

Sheriff Clamps Down With Local Curfew

In a special assembly held at the Riverdale gym in Saint Joe Thursday morning, Sheriff Dorsie Likens issued a warning to students of the school that the 10:00 p.m. curfew will be strictly enforced in this community, effective immediately. The sheriff explained that the strict enforcement is necessary because of vandalism and reports of loitering on the streets at night.

The latest in the reports of vandalism was the theft of watermelons from a garden patch and tearing up of a corn field and scattering of corn. Other reports have been given to the sheriff of late wanderings on the streets and reckless and inconsiderate driving.

A county curfew of 10:00 p. m. has been in effect for some time for boys and girls up to 18 years of age. Parents are held responsible for this age group, the sheriff points out, and any instances requiring the apprehension of these minors will automatically involve the parents.

"Those over 18 will be treated as adults. If they persist in these acts of vandalism, they face jail. I made it plain to the students just what they face. Not all of the boys and girls in this community are 'bad.' It's just a few who are making it rough for everyone else. By enforcing the curfew, we hope to stop this 'hanging around' and vandalism," the sheriff concluded.

1960 Enrollment About Even With 1959

School enrollment figures at Riverdale indicate that, compared to 1959-60, the number of pupils in the Riverdale schools for 1960-61 is about the same.

Figures released by Howard Hill, Riverdale elementary principal, show that a total of 358 enrolled last year. This year the enrollment is 351, as follows:

Grade 1 68; grade 2 59; grade 3 56; grade 4 58; grade 5 50; and grade 6 60.

Joe Smith, Riverdale junior high and high school principal, reports an enrollment of 299 for the upper six grades.

Grades 7 and 8 have a total of 118 students while grades 9 thru 12 have a total of 181. No statistics were available at press time showing the enrollment grade by grade in the upper six grades.

Cal Coburn In Chicago Hospital

Cal Coburn, 22, of Saint Joe, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coburn, suffered serious cuts to the face in an automobile accident Sunday morning in Chicago, Illinois. Cal is presently confined at the South Chicago Community Hospital.

The accident occurred at about 5:00 a.m. Sunday as the local young man accompanied John Cox, 22, of Garrett to visit the latter's mother who resides in Chicago. It is reported that another automobile approached the Cox 1955 Mercury on the wrong side of the road. Cox attempted to avoid a crash but was unsuccessful. He suffered extensive cuts and broken ribs. Coburn suffered severe facial cuts which will keep him confined at the hospital for another 10 to 20 days.

Cal's family reports that, according to the doctor, it will require from 6 months to a year of plastic surgery to correct the damage done in the accident. However, it is also reported that he is recovering ahead of expectations and the doctors are encouraged by his progress.

No report was available as to the injuries and condition of the driver of the other car involved in the accident.

Letters to the Editor

Wednesday
24 August 1960

Dear Mr. Editor (Ted)

I've been meaning to write long before this, but I'm not too handy when it comes to writing letters. I like to receive letters but like most I can't seem to write any.

I want to thank you for sending The News to me each week. It's good to read of the home town happenings.

This place called GLYNCO Naval Air Station is located 70 miles south of Savannah and 60 miles north of Jacksonville about a mile and a half inland from the Atlantic. It's not a large base like Great Lakes or Norfolk, it only has approximately 1800 men stationed here. The main city near here is Brunswick, which is 5 miles south. This area is noted for its year round resort spot at Jeckyll and St. Simons Islands, the "Worlds Shrimp Center," the ship builders of the LIBERTY SHIPS of World War II, and other famous people and locations.

I work (?) at NAS Ground Electronics Division, mainly at the Control Tower on communciations equipment. Those Air Controlmen keep us on the go a good deal of the day and sometimes at night.

The weather here is about the same as Indiana, a little warmer and it usually rains about 4 or 5 times a week.

I'll close now hoping you'll say hello to all back there at home.

Sincerely,
Pug

Dear Ted,

We had a little spare time so we thought we would drop you a line. Boot camp is drawing to a close and we are looking forward to coming back to town.

The weather out here is always the same, cool nights and hot days. We haven't had any rain at all. We get up at 4 o'clock every morning except Sunday and we get to sleep until 5 o'clock then.

We graduate 2 weeks from tomorrow and leave to come home on the 21st. We should get home for part of the Auburn fair.

We placed second in the Battalion (10 companies) our fifth week and fourth our sixth week. We are just 2 points from first this our seventh week. We have taken 3 tests and we have 3 more to take.

We both qualified for schools. Dick got Mechanics School and Jerry got Clerical and Administrative School.

We have been getting the News every week and we want to thank you for sending it because it keeps us up on the happening in the surrounding area. The paper has quite a few other fans. They read it and work on the crossword puzzle. It is kinda funny, they seem real interested but yet they don't even know the people.

Well, we better close because it is about time to clean up the barracks for inspection in the morning.

See everybody soon.

Thank you for your note and the marked copy of your editorial in regard to the unnecessary expenditure of public funds for special issues of postage stamps.

Needless to say, Ted, I am in complete agreement with your views. You know that I have always worked for a balanced budget and the elimination of all such wastes and extravagance where our taxpayers monies are concerned.

I thought your editorial an excellent one and I appreciate your taking the time to write to me and adding your personal comments to the forthright statements in your editorial.

The Price of Freedom

It is exasperating to attempt to do the right thing, only to be embarrassed by friends or enemies. Whether it is an individual or this nation attempting to do right, our freedom leaves us wide open for abuse.

The defection of two men, announced this week by our government though suspected for several weeks past, is a test of our faith in the free way. For much as we may criticize the operation of the very secretive agency in which the two men workd for allowing such a thing to occur, we cannot make a particular few responsible for this development. If these men really left the United States because they truly believed that our nation's conduct was leading to war, they did what was their privilege as individual free men. However, I am not a little suspicious of their action since they sought asylum in Russia. Why did they not seek asylum in any one of a dozen other countries? Why Russia? Or did they seek asylum elsewhere and get refusals? Whether or not they did, I have a feeling that their loyalty has been with Russia for some time and that their presence in one of our top-secret agencies can be described only by the word "spies."

A free nation faces such a moment of exasperation because it is free. Respecting the rights of individuals has its price and we are paying it in this instance. But it is worth the price. The only alternative is that practiced by the enemies of freedom, that of absolute compulsion, compelling a person to do as he is told for the state, compelling him to learn not as he may choose but as he is told, with the penalty established for failure - death. While we may be disappointed in the way things work out frequently, there is always encouragement and hope in the knowledge that these set-backs occur because we have been successful in our attempt at freedom. The right to make a decision, even though it may be the wrong decision, is too precious to be jeopardized by possible police-state methods. Tightening of security will be proper only so long as it does not injure the freedom of the individual. And it will be necessary to look twice when our security measures become so exacting that men must be conscious of their every business and social association, even down to mere conversations, lest they come under suspicion. Thus, this country, as long as it is free, will be embarrassed from time to time, subject to the decisions of its free citizens.

It would salve our hurt, perhaps, if someone could discover a tie between these two men and Russia somewhere in the past. We would then be in a position to counteract the recent trial of one of our pilot "spies" by a Russian court, showing the world that that nation is also guilty of the same spying activity, a fact which most people no doubt have already accepted.

Others say . . . .

WE WHINE TOO MUCH!

(Editor's Note: Had Mr. Fraley written the following article a few days later, he might have used the same title with a slight change in spelling, in view of charges that U.S. athletes were "living it up" evenings during their stay in Rome. His title might have been: "We Wine Too Much!")

The giant of the athletic world had become a whimpering cry-baby today.

That's us, the United States.

For years we had it swinging tall, fat and pretty. We were the muscular marvels of the ages.

But now, thank goodness, we find we're just ordinary guys and it's a disturbing fact that we can't take it.

This fact has become glaringly and uncomfortably obvious during the early course of the current Olympic Games.

Protest has become our middle name and it's a bad sign that we can't accept the defeat with a grin—even if it is a bit rigged on occasion. I'd rather lose than sound like the Russian delegate to the United Nations.

U.S. protests have been coming from all quarters during this Olympiad. It must be admitted that some of them have a sound, legitimate basis.

Yet in making even the semi-valid ones we are hinting to the world that we put a tiny gold medal above sportsmanship. The carping complaints we have been making, and the amazing number of them, hints in a few places that we are trying to talk our way to victory.

One case involved a decision which Australia's John Devitt was awarded over Lance Larson of the U.S.A. in the men's 100-meter freestyle swimming. The judges considered all the facts and, whether they were right or not, gave the duke to the Aussie.

We screamed. We lost an appeal. So we produced some television film and we screamed some more. The case may go before swimming's supreme court a second time.

Personally, I'd like to see our kid win it. But not at the price. As he admitted, maybe he should have put forth just a bit more effort in the final few yards and all this vocal exercise wouldn't have been necessary.

Our girl swimmers complained vigorously about the calibre of the judging which cost them two diving championships.

But Sammy Lee, the straight shooting diving coach, put his stubby mitt squarely on the cause and effect when he said:

"Our girls went into the competition as if they had the gold medals all wrapped up. Maybe what we needed was more effort."

The United States has showered down a regular torrent of protests and appeals. They have come in boxing and wrestling. There have been 12 from us in yachting alone.

Pete Newell, the basketball coach, grumped that "we have to make every basket a clean one or it's no good and we get a foul called on us."

But we haven't lost a game yet and, having all the talent in the world with us on the court, we shouldn't. So copping such a plea makes us sound small even though most of our guys are seven feet tall.

Bob Kiphuth, the retired "grand old man" of American swimming, didn't think we should have protested even Larson's loss.

He's got a lot of company.

If we can't win 'em outright and beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt, we ought to forget 'em. Respect is the biggest victory we can carry home and this one, too, we're losing daily.

—Oscar Fraley (UPI) in the Fort Wayne News Sentinel.

RED TARGET - THE STUDENTS

Nothing has so aroused the anxiety of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the Communist-led "student riots" at San Francisco last May 12-14 which caused the disruption of a series of hearing being held by the House Un-American Activities Committee. It would be heartening if the Congress and The White House were likewise concerned. Apparnetly, they aren't. J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, said in a special report recently issued:

"While it must be granted that the San Francisco riots at the HCUA hearings were the best thing that had happened for the benefit of the Communist Party in years, Americans, too, can benefit from this display of Communist strategy and tactics in operation. In fact, it is impossible to stand idly by in the face of the challenge that this Communist success represents.

"The Communists demonstrated in San Francisco just how powerful a weapon Communist infiltration is. They revealed how it is possible for only a few Communist agitators, using mob psychology, to turn peaceful demonstrations into riots. Their success there must serve as a warning that their infiltration efforts aimed not only at the youth and student groups, but also at our labor unions, churches, professional groups, artists, newspapers, government, and the like, can create chaos and shatter our internal security."

It is well to reflect on that last statement: ".... can create chaos and shatter our internal security." Yes, here in America, infiltration and control of any of these groups mentioned—students, churches, newspapers, government agencies, etc.—could actually lead to Communist take-over. This technique of take-over has happened and is happening in other nations.

In the opening paragraphs of his special report, Mr. Hoover says: "The successful Communist exploitation and manipulation of youth and student groups throughout the world today are a major challenge which free world forces must meet and defeat. Recent world events clearly reveal that world Communism has launched a massive campaign to capture and maneuver youth and student groups.

"The vigor and vitality of such groups constitute an explosive force of immense proportions .... Conmmunists have become expert at using this force to create chaos. In Japan, for example, Communists carefully nurtured and developed a growing body of students over a 10 year period, using them periodically in protest demonstrations. The culmination of this training was reached this year, when the highly organized and tightly disciplined rioters shocked the world with their uproarious displays" which led to cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit.

The Communist attack on the House Un-American Activities Committee in San Francisco was in line, Mr. Hoover reports, "with a longstanding Party aim to destroy not only the HCUA, but also the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and every other 'enemy' seeking to expose the threat which Communist activities represent to the internal security of this nation."

It is noteworthy that in this objective to abolish the HCUA, the Communist international apparatus has received great aid from non-Communists. Congressman James Roosevelt of California, son of the late President, has fought for years to abolish the Committee, usuing similar types of attack against it as those voiced by some of the demonstrators at San Francisco. He recently made a major address in Congress advocating its abolition.

When the HCUA first announced its hearings into Communist activities among educators in northern California, widespread opposition to the hearings developed among teachers' groups, church organizations, civil liberties groups and a few newspapers in the San Francisco area. Though most of this opposition undoubtedly was independent of the Communist plan of attack, it all gave great aid to the Communists in the recruitment of their student mobs from the campuses of colleges in the area.

Mr. Hoover's report makes it clear that the House Un-American Activities Committee is a vital agency in our nation's ramparts of internal security against Fifth Column infiltration.

Next: Red plan for student riots.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

ON GROWING OLD

(Editor's note: From the recent Mann Reunion comes the following bit of verse, passed along by Mrs. Anna Hursey.)

How do I know my youth is spent?
'Cause my get up and go has got up and went.
But in spite of it all, I can sit up and grin,
When I think where my get up and go has been.

Old age is golden, I've heard it said,
But sometimes I wonder as I go to bed.
My ears in a drawer, my teeth in a cup,
My eyes on the table until I get up.
Ere sleep dries my eyes I say to myself,
Is there anything else I should lay on the shelf?

But I am happy to say as I close the door,
My friends are the same as in the days of yore.

When I was a child my slippers were red,
And I could kick up my heels clear over my head.
When I grew older my slippers were blue,
And I could dance and dance the whole night through.
Now I am old and puff my way back.
The reason I know, my youth is spent,
My get up and go has got up and went.

But I really don't care as I think with a grin
Of all the places my get up and go has been.

I get up in the morning and dust off my wits,
Pick up the paper and read the "obits,"
If my name is not there I know I'm not dead,
So I eat a good breakfast and go back to bed.

—Mrs. Conkey, Elizabeth Ford.

SILLY QUESTION DEPARTMENT

Trying to answer all silly questions for the year in advance, Rob Wright, editor of the Montello (Wisc.) Tribune, recently ran a column of questions and answers, as follows:

Q. Why don't you print in color, say red, once in a while?
A. Our entire supply of red ink is used in the Bookkeeping Department.

Q. Why don't you have funny papers?
A. We think we have the funniest paper in Wisconsin right now.

Q. Why don't you have an "Advice to the Lovelorn" column, like Abby Lane?
A. None of our readers have any such problems.

Q. Why don't you carry TV reviews?
A. Our set is busted.

Q. Why don't you publish a pin-up picture once in a while?
A. I dunno. We ran our own picture a couple of years ago and nobody asked for rerints.

Q. Why do you have all those misprints?
A. They're the most entertaining part of the whole paper.

Q. Why do you always say "we" when referring to yourself in the paper?
A. We want our readers to think they're outnumbered.

Q. Why do you make so many grammatical mistakes?
A. Cause we ain't never learned no better.

Q. Why didn't you publish that poem I sent you?
A. It was a lousy poem.

Q. What do you do with all your money?
A. We squander it on frivolities, like food and clothing.

Q. Why don't you put out a bigger paper like the Milwaukee Journal?
A. We plan on it as soon as the population of Montello equals that of Milwaukee.

Q. What's the reason you don't replace that linotype you're always complaining about?
A. $15,000.

Q. Why don't you print weekly sermons?
A. Why doesn't the preacher run the newspaper?

Q. Why don't you run recipes?
A. We did and left a line out. Twenty people got sick and cancelled their subscriptions.

MYSTERY QUICKIE

by HARRISON KINGSLEY, Associate Editor "Official Detective Stories".

On September 16, 1958, the body of a young woman, Agnes Whiteside, was found in a wooded glen about a mile and a half from a military installation in the eastern United States. She had been assaulted, and strangled to death. Local police and military police from the camp, by a process of elimination, came to the conclusion that one of the men at the camp had committed the crime. Every man who had a pass that night was investigated. In fact, a thorough check on all men was made—without result. The killer of Agnes remained elusive.

Old Simeon Whiteside, Agnes' father, hadn't had a moment's rest since the crime. He was determined to find the man who murdered his daughter. He made a living doing odd jobs of gardening; his income wasn't much. But he saved his pennies, with one object in view; to hire a private detective to look into the case.

In August of 1960 he had enough to hire James J. Duncan, a detective of considerable reputation, state-wide. Duncan went to work at once. His first task was to determine how many men still were at the camp, who had been there at the time of the killing. He found that 263 men fit that category.

He arranged to interview each of these men separately. The camp's commander and the military police were only too willing to cooperate. After spending days on the man-by-man interviews, Duncan announced to the authorities that a young corporal, Elton Smith, was guilty.

Elton Smith said that on the night of September 16, 1958, he had gone to see the movie, GIGI, at the Star theater in town. Duncan checked and found that GIGI had indeed played at the Star that night. If Elton Smith had gone to the movie as he said he had, to the only showing that began at 7:00 p.m., he couldn't have committed the crime because Agnes' body was found at quarter to nine that night and the examining Coroner declared that Agnes had been killed only an hour before the body was found. In other words, about a quarter to eight. Hence, Elton Smith, according to his story, couldn't have been near the camp to kill the girl.

Nevertheless, Detective Duncan persisted in his belief of Elton's guilt. Elton was placed under arrest on suspicion of murder. A severe grilling by local and military police finally brought about a confession.

Of the 263 men Detective Duncan interviewed, how could he be sure that Elton Smith and not any of the others had murdered Agnes? Solution can be found elsewhere in this paper.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

SAVE YOUR CHILD

One out of every three deaths in children is caused by accident. This high percentage rating for accidents is due to the decrease in deaths from disease and also to the increase in the number of environmental dangers.

Accidents kill 12,000 children between the ages of one and fifteen every year, cripple or disable 40,000, and require medical attention for two million boys and girls.

From birth the child is beset with the environmental hazards that can do him bodily harm. He could be suffocated by a plastic mattress cover while in his crib or fall from the bathinet while his mother is answering the doorbell or phone.

As the child grows older and begins to crawl and investigate, other dangers present themselves. There is the open door to the stairway leading to the cellar, and there are the electrical socket and plugs around the baseboard, and the bottle of cleaning fluid carelessly left within reach of a baby.

At school age, home accidents decrease, giving place to other kinds. Drownings from wading or swimming, or walking or skating on thin ice, and motor vehicles accidents take heavy tolls among children. While most accidents are preventable, they are not always easy to prevent.

The infant under one year of age is most wholly dependant on his parents to protect him against harm and his survival depends on the care and judgment of the parents.

As the child grows older and breaks away from the home environment, he is less and less protected by his elders, and lessons of safety he has learned from his parents now stand him in good stead. Insofar as the parents have disciplined and educated the child regarding the hazards to life, so will this example offer a pattern to safeguard him.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

That Christ performed miracles.

But Lutherans don't believe in Christ because of them. How come? Well, let's take just one miracle as an example.

Christ had stepped onto the warm sands of the Galilean shore-line, after sailing across the Lake of Galilee. He was in His home town. Immediately, a crowd pressed upon Him. Amid the crowd, a palsied man was brought to Him, lying on a bed . . .

Christ healed him.

Some of the people didn't believe this to be an act of God. In fact, they believed He did these things by the power of the Devil.

All through the Scriptures such charges are recorded when a miracle is performed. Hence, a miracle does not prove the person of Christ. One cannot move from believing in miracles to faith in Christ, rather one moves from faith in Christ to believing in miracles.

Lutherans believe in Christ, first. From that point it's no trick to believe He performed miracles. But, remember, miracles are a matter of faith, not proof.

Now wouldn't that be a disappointment?

Cliff and Gertrude Billow set out for Chicago a couple of weeks ago to see their son and his wife off for Arizona, a step before the missionaries were to leave for Japan. Cliff missed the Illinois turnpike and by the time they fought their way out of traffic and got to O'Hare Field, there went the plane, just taking off.

By this time the Rev. and Doris are settled in Japan again, having left San Francisco last Thursday on a jet. Just think, 22 hours and you're in the Orient.

I don't know what will become of the younger generations. They'll amount to something if their attitude remains the same. I'm talking about their eagerness to get back to school. I've heard a few comments from adults, and some from the kids themselves, to the effect that kids were glad school was starting; one of them even said he or she wouldn't care if they had to go to school all year or close to it.

The vacation Bible schools reported a lot of enthusnasm this year for their sessions, too. Why, I even saw a bunch of kids standing down at Honakers' one morning before 8 o'clock, just itching for the bus to get there. They must be sick. Why, anybody with any sense knows that kids hate school. Anybody who says he likes school is just plain cuckoo.

If they keep on this way, they'll end up amounting to something.

That bright new sign on the side of Vinson's sure lights things up. If we had about a half dozen or so more like it along the main street, we could boast of the best lighted business street in the country.

I&M must have inaugurated a new service or else the trouble-shooter was doing it on his own. Last week when lightning knocked the lights out at 12:45 in the morning, I called to report it. Two others had already notified the electric company. So I went back to bed. Pretty soon the telephone rings, the man says are your lights on, they are, well, if they go out again be sure to call us. I said thanks and started to hang up and he says, would you like the correct time, it's 1:28. So if he hadnt' given that extra service, we might have been behind the eight-ball with our electric alarms all running late.

Now wouldn't it be fun if the next time the lights go out, EVERYBODY reports it just to get the correct time when I&M checks on the lights. Boy, what a telephone bill they'd have.

Mr. Hill told the other night of the first grader who wailed loud and long for two consecutive days, but with no tears. When Mr. Hill asked the boy what was wrong, the answer was, "I want my Mommy!"

It was disturbing for those two days, but things evidently got straightened out when Mommy showed up and left a paddle for the teacher's use.

Fiction:

The stranger ambled into the farmyard and was greeted by the owner, Carl Carpenter. The visitor produced his card and remarked, "I am a government inspector and am entitled to inspect your farm." Half an hour later Carl heard yells from his alfalfa patch, where the inspector was being chased by a bull. Leaning over the gate as the inspector drew near, Carl shouted, "Show him your card, mister — show him your card!"

PTA Resumes Tuesday; Books Possible Project

Officers of the P.T.A. met last week to plan activities for the coming year and make various committee appointments. Committees will be announced at a later date.

The first meeting of the P.T.A. will be held next Tuesday, September 20, at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

As in the past few years the first meeting will be a social-type affair with Mrs. Hal Elzea in charge of refreshments. Her committee also will provide for "registration cards" whereby teachers and parents attending the meeting will be identified individually so as to promote self-introduction between parents and teachers.

The high school band, under the direction of Robert Lowry, will play several selections to open the meeting.

With interest shown in the schools in recent months, fanned by a "brass tacks" address by the P.T.A. president last December and by subsequent newspaper publicity, the president has expressed the hope that parents and patrons will continue that interest and attend meetings of the P.T.A. as often as possible during the coming school year. Programs will be designed as much as possible to be of an informative nature, to provide Riverdale patrons with greater knowledge of their school and of education in general.

A possible major project for the coming year is the purchase of much-needed reference books for both the elementary and upper grades.

Men Fall From Barn Roof

Two men suffered undetermined injuries Wednesday afternoon of this week when a rope broke and the men fell from a barn roof.

Siman Graber, 25, and Dave Schmidt, 25, both of Spencerville, fell from a barn roof at the Wayne Fogle farm northwest of Saint Joe. The men were applying a new roof to the barn. They fell some 30 feet onto cement flooring.

The men were taken to the Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne in the Baidinger-Walter ambulance after emergency first-aid by Mrs. Richard Woodring and assistance from the Saint Joe Fire Department.

County Committee Adopts Single Unit Plan For Schools; Public Meeting Next On Schedule

Mr. Ralph Sechler, member of the DeKalb County School Re-organization committee, revealed Tuesday morning the committee's decision to submit a plan for a single unit in the county's preparation for state approval of re-organization plans. No other information was available concerning the meeting and the decision. However, agitation for local planning in certain areas of the county apparently brought the conclusion that uniformity of education could best be achieved thru a county unit.

Several weeks ago the committee sought public opinion from the various school areas as to preference in county re-organization plans. At that time public opinion indicated a desire for separate school systems within the county. Because of conditions existing in the county which would appear to delay efficient re-organization, the committee has been delayed somewhat in its planning work. It has a deadline of October 14, 1960, termination of the one year period allowed after county committee organization in which to submit a plan for state approval.

The pattern from this point will be state approval or disapproval of the county unit plan for DeKalb County. If the plan is rejected by the state, the committee has its work to do over again and submit another plan, or submit the same plan if it feels the original is the best.

Before the plan is approved by the state, a public meeting is held at which patrons may express opinions about the proposed plan. Then the state makes its decision. If the plan is approved, it may become official thru a petition containing the signatures of 55 per cent of the registered voters in the school district, or by ballot at a primary or general election.

Under the present statute, and assuming that the committee's plan goes thru without difficulty, voters in DeKalb County will not have an opportunity to vote "yes" or "no" on the plan until 1962, a wait of two years. However, legislation is proposed for a special referendum to be held which can cut the amount of time between state approval and public approval of the plan.

The county unit plan approved by the committee Monday night calls for one administrative unit but does not limit the number of high schools or grade schools. Of course, the schools must meet the requirements as established by the state commission with regard to enrollment, etc.

In the meantime, Riverdale patrons are awaiting a report of an architect on proposed construction of elementary facilities as sought by spontaneous public action. No indication has been made as yet as to the probable time of making the recommendations known.

Enrollment

The tabulation of enrollment at the Riverdale junior high and high school buildings shows that there are 147 boys and 150 girls now attending classes at those buildings.

The breakdown of enrollment by grades is as follows:

Grade 12, 45; grade 11, 33; grade 10, 49; grade 9, 52; grade 8, 66; grade 7, 53.

The squeeze which began several years ako in the grades is now making itself more evident as those elementary classes now move into the upper grades. Incoming seventh grades now double their former number.

Students View Progress Show

Students at Riverdale junior high and high school were treated to a look into the world of science and the challenges it presents to the world today when they saw the General Motors "Previews of Progress' demonstration Tuesday in the high school gym.

Presented by a two-man team, Alex Canavan and John Belohlavek, and narrated in understandable, non-technical language, the shows utilized exciting showmanship to make science come alive for the students. One of the highlights of the show was the GM Sunmobile, a miniature car that actually runs on the power of the sun. Another miracle was the production of synthetic rubber from a pop bottle in only 60 seconds, the blob of rubber bursting forth from the bottle after mixing of two chemicals.

A few drops of "liquid sunshine" were used to operate a portable radio. A miniature gas turbine engine was run and shown with an application to the automotive industry.

Foam plastic was made in a few minutes, from a few ounces of chemicals to a pad 3 inches thick and 9 inches in diameter. Its cushioning qualities were demonstrated when an egg was bounced off the pad to a height of four feet. The egg was shown to be definitely "fresh" following the bouncing demonstration during which it remained unbroken.

Glass harder than steel was demonstrated. This product is used in nose cones of intercontinental rockets to allow them to return from outer space.

Tom McKown was called upon to assist in a demonstration of the gyroscope used to guide space ships of the future. A gyroscope was contained in a suitcase which Tom was asked to swing in a straight line; but he found it impossible to overcome the power of the rapidly spinning wheel.

"Previews of Progress" has already been presented to 18 million persons in the United States. Seven units taks the show to all sections of the country. Each team carries 1,000 pounds of equipment for use in the demonstrations.

Ted Haberkorn, president of the Riverdale P.T.A., said that the show may be presented at a later date for the general public if a date can be arranged when the team will be in this area again. Given primarily for the benefit of high school and junior high students as a challenge from the world of science, the demonstrations are also utilized to give the average citizen a peek into the world of the future, and in some instances the present world, thru the wonders of scientific research.

THE SUNMOBILE—WATCH IT GO!!—The amazing Sunmobile, a car that runs on sunshine, is shown in action in this time exposure. The button-like photovoltaic cells on the hood turn light energy into electrical energy to move the model car. A 300-watt lamp simulates the sun. The Sunmobile is one of the demonstrations in the General Motors science show Previews of Progress. The 40-minute, admission-free, stage show dramatizes the wonders of science before two million American students and adults each year.

CRAZY SUITCASE — This "no-hands" suitcase takes off for a spin on its own. The time exposure catches it revolving on a turntable, one end in the air, during a "science in action" demonstration of gyroscopic principles which will guide tomorrow's space ships. This and other scientific wonders are dramatized in General Motors 40-minute, admission-free stage show, which will be seen this year by more than two million students and adults.

March of Dimes Support Urged by Mother Who Lost Birth Defects Baby in 49 Days

(Editor's Note: Mary Strous, young Laurelville, Ohio, mother, tells in her own words the tragic story of what happens in a family when a child is born with a serious birth defect.)

By MARY STROUS

Our baby Laura was born on Mother's Day seven years ago.

We lost Laura seven weeks later on Father's Day.

She gave a soft little sigh as she died in my arms. My husband and I buried her with the rattle to which she had clung tightly during her brief life.

But Laura, who died of the terrible birth defects known as open spine and too much fluid on the brain, still lives in the hearts of her father Don and myself. When asked by strangers, we always say we have three daughters (instead of really only two), and I want to explain why.

We feel that each of us, including our tiny Laura, is brought into the world to serve a purpose, even if our stay on earth is as tragically short as 49 days.

For years we were numbed by our baby's passing. But today we recognize that in being asked by The National Foundation to renew our memories of those despairing seven weeks, my husband and I are somehow fulfilling the purpose of Laura's fleeting visit with us.

That purpose is to repeat as forcefully as we can the lessons we have learned:

1. Scientists insist that parents should not be ashamed over the birth of an infant with a congenital malformation; instead, face the situation bravely and seek professional advice. Feelings of guilt aren't justified.

2. There is no medical evidence that birth defects are always hereditary; and

3. There is no evidence that because a couple have had one defective baby, they are likely to have another. Doctors at Columbus, Ohio, near our farm at Laurelville, said our chances of having another malformed baby were something like one in 40,000. (Donna Marguerite, five years old, and Julie Ann, two, who followed Laura after Don and I had reflected deeply and sought advice, could not be healthier or more normal.)

Mary Strous, of Ohio, and daughters Julie Ann, two, and Donna Marguerite, five, study photos of youngest child, Laura, who died of birth defects at seven weeks.

But by no means have Don and I forgotten our hopelessness and indeed our self-loathing during those 49 days and nights when we took turns holding Laura in our arms, or sat hour after hour beside her bassinet, watching life drain from her eyes.

We detested ourselves because of torments that something was wrong with us physically, or that a shameful defect had been inherited from our forebears (later proved untrue), and that we were thus responsible for this cruelty to an innocent baby.

Never will we forget the frantic drive, while our baby was dying, to our church so that she might be baptized before she left us. In some way our congregation had learned of the reason for our headlong visit, and the tears of those sorrowing folks flowed with ours.

Our Laura was one of 250,000 babies born each year in our country with significant birth defects; that tragic total is growing with our increasing population. Our baby was one of 34,000 who in addition die annually from theese congenital malformations; and that awful figure is also mounting.

At last, something constructive is being done about birth defects. With March of Dimes contributions, The National Foundation is directing a broad study of this devastating puzzle, just as it fought polio and in time found the Salk vaccine to prevent it.

With a donation in January from each of us, in time there will be many fewer Lauras in our land.

Indiana University is scheduling a management program for small businesses to be given at Fort Wayne beginning October 4. The program consists of a series of seminars, to be held each Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce. Registration will be limited to 35 individuals and may be made at the I.U. Center Office, 1120 S. Barr in Fort Wayne.

Jerald W. (Jerry) Heyman, 18, son of Mrs. Phyllis Heyman of Saint Joe, has enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps for a period of four years. Jerry enlisted in the "120 day delay" program which enabled him to enlist and select any date in the following 120 days to depart for active duty. He will leave October 31 for San Diego, Cal., for 12 weeks of recruit training. Jerry is a 1960 graduate of Riverdale High School and is currently employed at Sechler's. Enlisting with Jerry was Tom Braden of Fort Wayne, formerly of Saint Joe.

The Lady Votes

Forty years ago the U.S. was groaning under the same thundering oratory and rolling bandwagons that comprise a presidential election campaign, with one hair-raising difference - women were about to cast their vote for the first time on a nationwide scale.

Harassed men of politics had let down their guard and regardless of whether women might become desexed or turn politics into a morality play, as opponents of feminism charged, they were going to have their say.

It wasn't the first time women had voted, however, reports World Book Encyclopedia. Congress had left the decision to the states and New Jersey at first permitted its women to vote. But the men had second thoughts and the state took back the privilege in 1807.

As women joined the labor force in new factories, and began to help men fight for temperance and the abolition of slavery, they gained a forum to air their pet peeve. A meeting at Seneca Falls, N.Y., which has been called the first woman suffrage convention in the U.S., stirred public discussion in 1848. Two years later reformers, male and female, from the entire country assembled at Worcester, Mass., at the Woman's Rights Convention. The crusade was in full swing when the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment divided the forces of reform.

The radicals, led by Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Clay Stanton, opposed the amendment because it gave the vote to Negro men but not to women. They organized the National Woman Suffrage Association. A more moderate group founded the American Woman Suffrage Association and concentrated on persuading the states rather than the federal government to grant voting rights to women.

In 1872 the determined Miss Anthony was arrested for voting and her trial focused wide attention on the feminist fight. Several states granted women suffrage in the 1890's and others began to take the idea more seriously. At the same time, the suffragists reunited in the National American Woman Suffrage Association and prepared for the big push.

Their chance came with World War I and the expanding role of women. Militant womanhood descended on Washington, D.C. They paraded thru the capital, picketed the White House and carried on hunger strikes in jail. In 1917 a woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution was submitted to the House of Representatives. The pressure was stepped up and in 1918 Woodrow Wilson personally went before a joint session of Congress to urge passage.

Congress took action and the last of the necessary three-fourths of the states approved the Nineteenth Amendment in August, 1920, just in time for the presidential election.

New Zealand was one of the first countries to grant women voting privileges, this in 1893, 27 years before the U. S. took such action.

Wyoming put its women on a pedestal long before the other states in the U.S., granting women full voting rights in 1869.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

Every Christian is a priest.

St. Peter, in his first epistle, addressing the whole Christian Church, says, "ye are a royal priesthood."

He could claim this, because Christ made it so when He died on the cross and offered there the once-for-all sacrifice for the sins of mankind.

After that there was no longer any need for a Temple priesthood to offer blood sacrifices of animals. Christ became the High Priest who made the eternal sacrifice; and those who believed it no longer trotted to the Temple to offer animal sacrifices. Their sins were forgiven through faith in Jesus Christ . . . period.

And it was at this point that every believer in Christ became a priest, subject only to the High Priest, Christ.

Lutherans believe that every Christian, since he is a priest, must act like a priest. In other words, every Christian is to function as a priest.

His functions are two-fold. First, to make intercession, which he does in his own private devotions. Secondly, as a priest, to use his God-given talents to serve his neighbor through the work-a-day world. "I am a priest," says a Lutheran. That's humbling... and demanding.

A big, big day for both mother and daughter! The camera has captured the end of cooking lesson number one, the first of many fun sessions to come. And it also captured one of the many ways electricity adds more fun to our lives. The electric range, the mixer, the refrigerator . . . all played a big role in this exciting day. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount — the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatt-hour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

Around the Town

With the Editor

I hadn't heard a thing about it until Mrs. Platter put a card of thanks in the paper last week. I mean the fire that destroyed their barn. It happened Labor Day week end and from what Mrs. Platter said, there was a big crowd of lookers, not only during the fire but afterwards, even one and two days after. Cars going past the whole week end just to see what happened.

Swoosh! - - - and the Republicans blew into town last week. The caravan went all over the county thru the day, dropping in on business establishments and stocking up everyone with matches.

And swoosh! - - they were gone again.

Unfortunately, you didn't know about it in advance by this paper because we got the schedule too late. Consequently, at about 9:30 a.m., downtown was practically deserted.

New Grocers Take Over

Mr. and Mrs. William Voirol have assumed the operation of the former Vinson's Market in Saint Joe. The change is effective today.

The Voirols now reside in Saint Joe, having moved here from Garrett where Mr. Voirol was employed as an automobile salesman.

The new grocers announce that they will be open 7:30 a. m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday thru Saturday and from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Vinson operated the grocery for about two years, making extensive remodeling improvements expanding the store to twice its former capacity.

Fannie Keith

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. for Mrs. Fannie Beatrice Keith, 73, of Spencerville who died at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Souder Hospital in Auburn. Mrs. Keith was admitted to the hospital Wednesday due to a heart ailment.

Services will be held in the Baidinger - Walter Funeral Home with Rev. Douglas Holley officiating. Burial will be in White City Cemetery near Spencerville.

Survivors include the husband, Curtis; a son, Haskel, of Spencerville; four grandchildren; and a brother.

Mrs. Keith had been a resident of Spencerville for seven years, coming from Cotton Town, Tennessee. She was a member of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Car Skids, Driver Injured

Ruth Groves of Saint Joe was seriously injured Monday evening when her car skidded on wet pavement and left the road. The accident occurred at a curve just north of the Northcrest shopping area near Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Groves was taken to Parkview Memorial Hospital where she is confined for treatment of cuts and a brain concussion. One cut above an eye required 15 stitches.

175 At PTA

Approximately 140 persons plus the Riverdale band were present for the initial meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. Tuesday evening at the high school in Saint Joe.

Included on the program was an introduction of the officers by the president, Ted Haberkorn. Vice-president is Forrest Bevington while Mrs. Robert Davis is serving as secretary and Mrs. Hearsel Shockley is treasurer.

Introduction of the elementary teachers was made by Mr. Howard Hill, elementary principal. Junior high and high school teachers were introduced by Mr. Joe Smith, high school principal.

It was reported that the officers planned to present the same type of programs in the coming year as were presented in the past year, informative and educational. Under consideration for a major project is the purchase of books for both elementary and upper grades. Those present were asked to consider the project for a later decision.

P.T.A. memberships are now being sold by members of the membership committee. Mrs. Davis is chairman of the committee with the following assistants: Mr. and Mrs. William Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Uehlein, Mr. and Mrs. Hearsel Shockley, Mr. and Mrs. William Beebe and Mr. and Mrs. Max Doub.

All patrons of the Riverdale school are eligible for membership which costs $1.00 per family.

Citizens Committee Pushes For Action On Elementary Building; Public Meeting Friday

Mounting unrest over the lack of progress in seeking approval of construction of an elementary building for Riverdale students has brought the announcement of a public meeting to be held this Friday night, September 23, at 7:30 p. m. The meeting will be held in the Spencerville Community Building. All Riverdale patrons are urged to attend as the meeting will be for the purpose of determining as much as possible public opinion concerning such construction.

The meeting is being called by a citizens committee seeking to promote a new building for the elemenary grades.

The invitation to attend has been extended to members of the Riverdale school board. Mr. Albert Heeter, architect consulted recently by the board, has been invited to attend.

The unrest over the building construction program mounted within the last few days when it was determined that no effort is being made by the board to obtain plans or estimates for elementary building construction. An assumption that the board was proceding with such plans, following a public response in August which brought about the board's re-instatement of a cumulative building fund levy, apparently was an incorrect assumption. Therefore, several patrons have undertaken to contact the community and urge attendance at the meeting Friday night.

The meeting is an important one for all Riverdale patrons. It will be an opportunity to express opinions, a fact which may help the board break down its apparent deadlock which exists concerning building construction.

Another Catch With Trestle Trap

In what was a near carbon copy of an attempted robbery of the D&H Tavern on August 18, two men were apprehended early Tuesday morning of this week at the same tavern following a break-in. The two, Norman David Robinson, 22, of 2403½ Euclid Avenue, Fort Wayne, and Charles Edward McCarty, 23, of 1002½ Broadway, Fort Wayne, were seized by Harry and Dick Loucks and DeKalb County Sheriff Dorsie Likens with the assistance of Rush Holtzberg.

Both men broke into the tavern at about 2:00 a.m. Tuesday, shortly after it closed. Harry Loucks surprised the duo but saw only Robinson who fled. He shot at Robinson but missed. McCarty jumped Loucks and the two fought for possession of the gun. Loucks received a blow on the side of the head and McCarty got possession of the weapon and fled from the tavern, down the B-&O tracks and, as it turned out, fell thru the same trestle which was the undoing of another fleeing thief a little over a month ago.

Dick Loucks was summoned for help as was the sheriff. A car which came down the road past the tavern stopped when the Loucks men gave it a close look and took the license number. The driver was seen to have a blood spot on his head and was detained, then identifying himself as one of the intruders. He also identified McCarty who then gave himself up when the sheriff called for his surrender by means of the officer's loud speaker.

Robinson and McCarty had been in the tavern most of Monday evening as patrons before attempting the break-in after it closed.

Robinson is on probation on second degree burglary charges filed in Fort Wayne. He has been on probation since January 4 of this year. McCarty has also been in trouble with the law, being out on bond since September 17 on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony.

75 At Citizens Meeting; School Board To Seek Construction On Limited Basis

Two meetings were held simultaneously Friday night concerning Riverdale building construction plans. One meeting, a citizens meeting called by a group seeking to have an elementary building constructed as soon as possible, was held at the community building in Spencerville with 75 persons present. The architect recently consulted by the Riverdale school board concerning school building construction was not present though extended an invitation to attend.

The other meeting was that of the school board, held at the high school in Saint Joe. The meeting was reported to have been set before notice was given of the citizens' meeting. Thus the board did not attend the public meeting though an invitation was also extended to them.

The citizens group viewed slides and a sound film about the fire at a Chicago parochial school whch took 96 lives in 1958. The hazards found in old-building construction were shown as were hazardous practices prevalent even in newer buildings. The film and slides were shown by Cooney Tucker of the Huntertown Volunteer Fire Department.

Following the presentation on fire safety, discussion was held about the school building program. It was pointed out that the group desires to help accomplish the best results and cooperate with the school board, at the same time urging more aggressive action on the board's part as far as buildings are concerned. A large majority of those present raised their hands when asked to do so if they wished to push for an elementary building program.

At the same time the school board was considering, along with other business, the matter of building construction and decided to authorize the architect's preparation of recommendations for building construction, limited to the amount of funds now in the cumulative building fund plus that which can be raised thru bonding of the school corporation. This would amount to approximately $243,000, including the amount raised thus far with the cumulative levy, around $123,000, the amount available bonding the corporation at 2 percent, around $77,000, the amount to be raised thru the cumulative levy in 1961 and the interest on the funds raised thru the cumulative levy. The amount of money thus available is said to be sufficient for a new building of about 10 classrooms. The report of the architect is expected within a short time.

The board is reported to be in the present process of seeking state approval of building construction on the limited basis with a plan of bringing the sixth grade from the elementary building to the proposed new building with the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, leaving the buildings now used for grades seven thru twelve for the top three grades. Riverdale would then have its grades housed as follows:

Grades 1 thru 5 at Spencerville in the present old elementary building;

Grades 6 thru 9 at the proposed new building;

Grades 10 thru 12 at the present old high school buildings.

Another plan suggested by citizens in the community would provide a 14 or 16 room building for the elemenary grades, financing the cost in excess of available funds thru a holding corporation. With re-organization of schools ready to take care of the high school situation, temporary use would be made of the present elementary building at Spencerville for the high school with the junior using the present buildings at Saint Joe. This would provide for the separation of upper grade students from lower grade students, a desirable condition from a disciplinary standpoint according to comments from teachers. This plan could be accomplished, however, only by constructing an elementary building large enough to meet present demands and future growth to a certain extent.

The school board sent an invitation to the citizens meeting to attend the next meeting of the board to be held Monday, October 3, at the high school in Saint Joe at 8 p.m. Riverdale patrons are urged to attend this meeting.

HERE!
'61 CHEVY TRUCKS

WITH WORK-PROVED
INDEPENDENT FRONT SUSPENSION!

Chevy's '61 fleet swings in with a ready-made reputation as the trucks that are worth more because they work more . . . the latest editions of the haulers that trapped the I-beam axle and proved the important advantages of independent front suspension!

You'll find new models for '61—long-wheelbase 4-wheel drive units—and thoughtful refinements throughout the line. But the big news for '61 is nailed-down proof (based on owner reports) that Chevy's torsion-spring design is the best thing that's happened to trucks in decades!

With Chevy's independent front suspension and Sturdi-Bilt design, you cruise over trails where other trucks creep. You feel the difference in less wheel fight and vibration. You can see why drivers are happier, why loads are better protected and why the truck itself will stand up to thousands of miles of more work. That goes for any size Chevy, too—pickups, tilt cabs, tandems, all of them.

Check the latest specs with your Chevrolet dealer: capacity, power teams, options. Then, by all means, drive a '61. Once around the block and you'll never be satisfied with a front axle truck again!

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE!

VOL. LXXV | Saint Joe (DeKalb Co.), Ind. | Thursday, October 6, 1960 | NUMBER 38

Indiana State Library

Monday Is Voter Registration Deadline

Registration of voters will end Monday, October 10, according to an announcement by Clerk Walter C. Manon. As many voters as possible are being registered to be eligible to vote at the general election to be held November 8.

Rules of eligibility for registration are as follows:

The voter must:

1. Be a citizen of the United States;

2. Be 21 years of age on or before the general election November 8.

3. Have resided in the state of Indiana for six months, his township for 60 days and his precinct for 30 days;

4. Be a qualified and registered voter of the precinct in which the voter will vote;

5. Vote in the precinct in which he or she resides. Residence of any person shall be held to be that place in which his habitation is fixed, without any present intention of moving, and to which, whenever absent, he intends to return.

If a person moves into another state with the intention of making it his residence or with the intention of remaining there for an indefinite period, he shall be considered to have lost his residence in this state.

The word residence insofar as the election laws are concerned shall mean domicile or habitation. Each voter must vote in the precinct where he resides.

Womens Club Offers Assistance To Town Board

The Saint Joe Town Board met twice this week, starting a meeting Monday before adjourning in order that members might attend the school board meeting at the high school.

Some business was transacetd Monday, however, before the adjournment with Mrs. Jack Bowser and Mrs. Bob Richmond, representing the Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club, offering the club's financial assistance in obtaining waste paper receptacles for use along the main street. Members of the club, noting the bad appearance of the main street due to inconsiderate tossing away of candy and gum and ice cream bar wrappers, cigarette wrappers, and other refuse, extended their assistance to correct the situation and help keep Saint Joe clean.

The board responded Tuesday night with plans to obtain paper receptacles and expressed appreciation of the club's interest.

Other business included preliminary discussion of the installation of additional permanent water mains where temporary lines now exist or where no service is now offered. It was noted that the recent increase in water rates is only now beginning to allow for better maintenance of the water system and future expansion.

Also planned is the extension of street light service at the east edge of town.

Career Day Program Oct. 15

Financing a college education, academic preparation and qualifications for careers in the professions, in business and industry, will be discussed for high school pupils, their parents and school officials at the Career Day program sponsored by Tri-State College at Angola on Saturday, October 15. The program is being held on the campus as a public service project.

The teaching profession leads the career fields in which pupils have evinced interest, followed closely by the medical sciences and nursing, according to the general chairman, Harold Hoolihan, acting dean, school of business administration. Other career fields to be covered include accounting, agriculture, architecture, biology, chemistry, engineering, home economics, industrial management, insurance and real estate, journalism, law, law enforcement, medical sciences, meteorology, ministry, music, pharmacy, physics, sales and marketing, social sciences, social work, teaching and transportation.

Advance registration from high schools indicates marked interest in the program. Juniors and seniors in high schools in DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble and Steuben counties in Indiana; Defiance and Williams in Ohio; Branch, Hillsdale and St. Joseph counties in Michigan have been invited to attend the sessions with parents and school officials also invited.

The opening session starts at 9:00 a.m. Saturday morning with the second session at 10:30. Tours of the Tri-State Campus are scheduled for 11:30.

There will be an opportunity to view the 8-mile Potawatomi Canoe Race at 1:00 p. m. in which Tri-State students will compete.

Blood Donors Wanted Tuesday

The Bloodmobile will be in Butler next Tuesday to receive one-pint blood donations from residents of this area.

Mrs. Donald McCann, Mrs. Paul Moore and Mrs. Jean Shockley are contacting Saint Joe residents for blood donors. Anyone who can and will contribute a pint of blood to the blood bank may call one of these women to make an appointment. Appointments are not absolutely necessary, being made only for the convenience of the donor and the workers at the Bloodmobile.

Band Meeting

A meeting for prospective Riverdale band members and their parents will be held at the high school in Saint Joe next Thursday, October 13, at 7:30 p.m., according to an announcement by Robert Lowry, Riverdale band director. This is the annual meeting held to inform parents and students of the different types of musical instruments used in band work and of the means available for obtaining an instrument. A representative of a musical instrument firm will be present to assist with the meeting.

Mr. Lowry points out that the primary aim of instrumental music in schools is to develop an appreciation and understanding of music. One can develop more understanding of music in a year of performance than in many years of listening. However, there are many worthwhile values to be gained aside from purely musical ones. A child must learn to work in close co-operation with a group in order to play in a band. He develops poise and self-confidence in making public appearances. He develops coordination and a sense of rhythm. He learns to breathe properly. He takes part in an activity which gives prestige and personal satisfaction. Thus, instrumental music frequently is more beneficial to a student's personality development than any other school activity.

Tests have been given to all students in grades 5 thru 8 to determine musical aptitude. The director prefers to start band training when the student is in the fifth grade. However, an older student can learn faster; thus there are no set rules established as to the "best" time to start musical training for all students. It depends upon the indivudal.

Additional information about the needs of the band, ways of selecting an instrument, financing, etc., will be discussed at the meeting next Thursday.

85 At School Board Meeting; No Change In Limited Building Plan

Approximately 80 to 85 persons, including the Riverdale school board, gathered Monday evening to express views concerning the board's proposed action on school construction on a limited basis. Also present was Hugh Sanders, the school board's legal counsel.

One of the first discussions centered around the possible conversion of rooms, with principal Joe Smith pointing out that it was easier to convert a high school classroom to elementary use than to adapt an elementary room for high school use. The board's plans for construction would erect a building to house the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth grades with probable future use for elementary grades after county re-organization plans are completed.

However, the present controversy has arisen over the concern of many patrons thru their desire to make a more progressive step in school construction, providing at least 14 or 16 classrooms in any new building program to be used by the elementary grades.

Mr. Sanders pointed out the higher costs of financing a building program thru a holding corporation, noting that the Hamilton school cost was around $750,000; but with interest rates higher and with other increased costs, the school will ultimately cost around $1,250,000. It was noted under question, however, that that school may have had no funds to start with whereas Riverdale will have around $244,000 with the 1961 cumulative building fund collections.

Of major concern to parents is the matter of fire safety, this matter coming up at each of the three citizen group meetings held in recent weeks. It was noted that doors could not be opened except by extreme pushing and pounding a few months ago. However, it was reported by principal Howard Hill that doors could now be readily opened and also that anyone can turn in a fire alarm at the school. It had been pointed out at a past citizehs meeting that only certain authorized persons were allowed to ring fire alarms at some schools.

Other comments ranged from complete approval and endorsement of the school board's proposal to complete disagreement. From the reactions of those present when conflicting opinions were expressed, it appeared that there were more dissatisfied patrons than satisfied patrons. A board member commented that the entire board felt that the elementary buildings were too good to be abandoned and this appears to be the board's basis for planning construction, to work old buildings in with new.

One of the questions asked about the new building, as proposed by the board, concerned cafeteria facilities. Will there be a cafeteria in the board's plans, was the question. The answer was, no, the pupils would have to go from the new building to the old building to their lunch. This brought a few groans and some shaking of heads from the patrons.

One suggestions was made that the board send news of its decisions and actions to the local paper to keep the public informed. The board commented that the mintues of meetings were open for the public to inspect. Only one item has been given for publication in the past two years, that a list of names of patrons assisting in a school survey. Any other school information has come indirectly thru other sources.

According to one report, an unofficial comment by a board member after the meeting adjourned was that news given to the newspaper would be "changed" and distorted.

The outcome of the meeting was that the board will present its request for approval of school building construction limited to the amount of funds readily available. It is proposed that the sixth grade be housed in the new building with the seventh, eighth and ninth. The first five grades would remain at the elementary building at Spencerville and the high school would use the present two buildings at Saint Joe.

Letters to the Editor

Friday 16 Sept. 60

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

I have been wanting to write before, but I have not had a chance to write you a letter sooner. Well, this is my ninth week and I have just got one more week to go before I come home. Next Friday I will pack up my duffle bag and start back.

In the last two weeks we have had two parades and in both of them, my squadron has placed first. These parades are not graded just on how well we march but our all-around general appearance. In the barracks as well as on the drill field.

The weather down here is not so much different from the weather in Indiana. It is just hotter and drier. The nearest town is San Antonio about ten miles from the base. Well, I have got to get busy for the inspection that we have tomorrow.

Your interested reader,
Dick

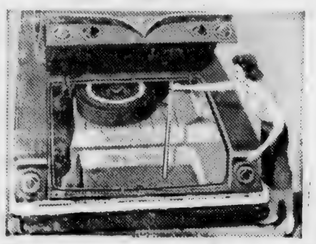
FRIDAY! THE GREATEST

SIXTY-ONEDERFUL CHEVROLET

Here's the car that reads you loud and clear—the new-size, you-size '61 Chevrolet. We started out by trimming the outside size a bit (to give you extra inches of clearance for parking and maneuvering) but inside we left you a full measure of Chevy comfort. Door openings are as much as 6 inches wider to give feet, knees, and elbows the undisputed right of way. And the new easy-chair seats are as much as 1½" higher—just right for seeing, just right for sitting.

Once you've settled inside you'll have high and wide praises for Chevrolet's spacious new dimensions (in the Sport Coupes, for example, head room has been upped as much as 2 inches, and there's more leg room, too—front and rear). Chevy's new trunk is something else that will please you hugely—what with its deep-well shape and bumper-level loading it holds things you've never been able to get in a trunk before.

Yet, generously endowed as this car is with spaciousness and clean-etched elegance, it holds steadfastly to all the thrifty, dependable virtues Chevrolet buyers have come to take for granted. Your dealer's the man to see for all the details.



There's never been a trunk like it before! The floor's recessed more than half a foot and the loading height is as much as 10½ inches lower.

SHOW ON WORTH! CHEVROLET

NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR

More space . . .
more spunk
and wagons, too!

The newest car in America: the CORVAIR 700 LAKEWOOD 4-DOOR STATION WAGON.

CORVAIR 700 CLUB COUPE. Like all coupes and sedans, it has a longer range fuel tank.

CORVAIR 700 4-DOOR SEDAN. Provisions for heating ducts are built right into its Body by Fisher.

Here's the new Chevy Corvair for '61 with a complete line of complete thrift cars.

To start with, every Corvair has a budget-pleasing price tag. And Corvair goes on from there to save you even more. With extra miles per gallon . . . quicker-than-ever cold-start warmup so you start saving sooner . . . a new extra-cost optional heater that warms everyone evenly. Riding along with this extra economy: more room inside for you, more room up front for your luggage (sedans and coupes have almost 12% more usable trunk space).

And our new wagons? You'll love them—think they're the greatest thing for families since houses. The Lakewood Station Wagon does a man-sized job with cargo, up to 68 cubic feet of it. The Greenbrier Sports Wagon you're going to have to see—it gives you up to 175.5 cubic feet of space for you and your things.

Corvair's whole thrifty lineup gets its pep from a spunkier 145-cu.-in. air-cooled rear engine. Same rear-engine traction, same smooth 4-wheel independent-suspension ride. See the polished and refined 1961 Corvair first chance you get at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Spare tire is in the rear in coupes and sedans—leaving more luggage space up front.

Even middle-seat passengers sit pretty, thanks to Corvair's practically flat floor.

Now in production—the GREENBRIER SPORTS WAGON with up to twice as much room as ordinary wagons (third seat optional at extra cost).

MYSTERY QUICKIE

by HARRISON KINGSLEY, Associate Editor "Official Detective Stories".

"It ain't every day we get a chance to knock off an undercover agent and get away with it, so we're gonna make the most of it," said "Little Mac" Cappellini.

Detective Harry Brady restrained an impulse to jump out of the chair, grab his .38 Super Auto from the desk and start shooting. Flanked by the Buckley brothers and with the slim cold-eyed stranger standing next to Little Mac he knew he'd have no chance.

"Murder's a hard rap to beat," he said.

"What you got in mind, Boss?" the taller brother asked.

"Yes, let us in on it," Detective Brady said. "I'm rather interested myself."

"You should be." Little Mac was grinning again. "It's simple. Suppose a man—maybe Slim there—suppose he's walking down the street, minding his own business, and some jerk jumps out of a car wavin' a pistol at him. Now Slim don't know what's going on, but he's sure his life is threatened. There'll be a few witnesses around to see it." Little Mac casually aimed Brady's .38 Super between the detective's eyes. "So maybe Slim pulls his own rod and goes, 'Bang, bang, bang!' like that. What then? To me, that looks like an out-and-out case of self-defense.

Detective Brady shrugged and made himself sit back in his chair. "They'd nail you for it. How would you explain your boy with a gun?"

"Nobody knows Slim is my boy. He just drifted in from the Coast. No record. He's never even shot a man before." Little Mac leaned back and chuckled again. "You'll be an easy one to start with. Your gun will be empty."

Little Mac thought for a moment, then began explaining to his men where and when the killing should take place. When Detective Brady heard him finish by ordering Slim "... be sure and run up close before you shoot so you don't miss," a chill went over the officer and for the first time he fully realized he was about to die. The plan was crude but it could work. And even if the hoodlums were later caught and convicted of murder, it would do him no good whatsoever.

"Okay, let's go," one of the Buckleys said, and Detective Brady felt the muzzle of a pistol hard against his head.

"Just a second," Little Mac broke in. "He's gotta have his gun." Little Mac started to unload it; then a sudden thought hit him. "No, you do it," he said. "See what it feels like to have a loaded gun in your mitt and not be able to use it."

"Jeez, Boss, I don't think you ought to..."

"Why not?" Little Mac's chuckle was not completely sane. "He can't make a move without you blasting his head off."

Brady knew the man was right. He took the automatic gingerly, conscious of Buckley's gun muzzle shoving hard against his head, jerked the slide back to eject the cartridge from the chamber, let it snap shut, then pushed the button to release the loaded clip. He looked longingly at the clip for a moment before dropping it on the desk.

"All right, put it away," Little Mac said, and Brady shoved the automatic into its shoulder holster. It was impossible to load it there.

"Let's go," Little Mac said.

Everything went according to plan. On a side street, with a few witnesses neither too near nor too far, Detective Brady's gun was thrust into his hand and he was shoved from the car on to the walk to meet Slim, who was walking rapidly toward him.

For an instant Detective Brady glanced back at Little Mac's gleeful face. Then, the automatic heavy in his hand—he swung to meet his executioner.

Slim was almost on top of him now, his cold face breaking into a grin, a snub-nose .357 Magnum in his hand. He stopped and was taking careful aim when Detective Brady lifted his .38 Super and shot Slim in the throat.

Before the hoodlum had collapsed to the pavement, Detective Brady scooped up the .357 with his free hand and twisted to cover the dumfounded Little Mac and the Buckleys.

"All right," he said. "Now it's my turn. Let's go."

With his .38 Super Auto in its holster, and no chance to reload during the drive to the place of his intended killing, how did Detective Brady manage to gain an upper hand and free himself? Solution can be found elsewhere in this paper.

Site Approved

Engineers from the Indiana State Board of Health have approved the site for the new memorial hospital, Glenn T. Rieke, chairman of the DeKalb County Hospital Board, revealed Monday. In granting approval the engineers stated that the location, the accessability and other features of the McCoy property at the east endge of Auburn are excellent for hospital purposes.

The site has been surveyed and plans are now being prepared by Dan Carmichael of Columbus, Ohio. The architect is working on plans and estimates for a 70-bed institution. It is estimated that this phase of the work will take four to six weeks.

Because of the progress thus far in planning the hospital, it has been announced that the project can receive funds from the Hill-Burton federal funds from Indiana's current allotment. The state has received approximately $2,800,000 for the year 1960-1961.

Final plans may be ready for bids by March of 1961 with actual construction possibly started by the middle of next year. It will require about nine months to complete actual construction work.

The project's becoming a reality depends upon the general public, however. Mr. Rieke pointed out that a fund raising campaign will get underway soon with an estimated 1,000 volunteers needed to solicit for public donations to the hospital building fund.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

In saints.

To a Lutheran, every Christian is a saint.

St. Paul believed this, too. For he wrote to the Christians at Philippi, thus—"to all the saints in Christ Jesus which are at Philippi . . ."

Simply stated, a saint is a forgiven sinner. And every Christian is forgiven through faith in Jesus Christ.

That makes every Christian, who can never really become perfect, a saint. It might be stated by saying that every Christian is a sinner and a saint, at the same time. Or it might be said by stating that a Christian is a sinful saint.

You see, to be a saint you need not be perfect in your own actions. Instead, to be a saint you need to be forgiven by Christ, then God sees you through Christ-colored-glasses. And Christ's perfectness is given—yes, given—to you.

Thus sainthood is a gift of God.

It's yours through faith in Christ. You don't merit it. You don't gain it. You don't deserve it. You merely accept it.

Lutherans believe sainthood is conferred upon every Christian as a free gift from a God of love.

Indiana State Library

Around the Town

With the Editor

Glen Kinsey says he needs his wheelbarrow. Whoever borrowed it (Glen doesn't remember who it was), please return it.

Well, the Frank Sechlers should be real happy now. To add to the three boys in the family they now have a girl, born last Thursday at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne. Her name, Karen Louise, and she weighed 9 lbs. 10 ozs. at birth.

Just to show that I don't notice everything—Mrs. Murphy called the News Office last week about her subscription and in the course of the conversation mentioned that she had been gone several weeks early this summer and since returning home has had to remain in bed most of the time.

I know there wasn't any item about it before, so maybe this will make up for the error of omission to let friends of the Murphys know of their circumstances.

Phil and I got a bargain at the fair, though we aren't quite sure whether or not we wanted it.

On opening night we finally got up enough courage to get on the ferris wheel. We got our round of riding and the operator began putting on waiting customers. But before he got to our "car" he started another round of riding. So Phil and I were on the ferris wheel for a good 15 minutes.

—We're still not used to it.

Tax Rate Cuts

At a hearing of the State Board of Tax Commissioners at Auburn last week, the tax rate for Saint Joe was reduced a total of 19 cents, from $6.01 to $5.82. The reduction included a cut of 6 cents in the county tax rate, 8 cents off the tuition levy to $1.26, 5 cents off the corporation levy to $1.19.

Only three taxing units did not receive any cut in rates other than the county reduction amounting to 6 cents: Troy and Wilmington townships and Butler City.

The reductions included:

Concord Township: 8 cents off tuition levy to $1.26, total rate $4.76, total reduction 14 cents.

Newville Township: 1 cent off township poor to 10 cents, 8 cents off tuition to $1.26, total rate $4.86, total reduction 15 cents.

Spencer Township: 8 cents of tuition levy to $1.26, total rate $4.72, total reduction 14 cents.

GOP Reception Sunday

Republican women of Concord, Newville and Spencer townships will sponsor an open house and reception Sunday, October 16, at Chaney's Restaurant at Spencerville. The reception will be held from 3 to 5 p.m.

Cong. and Mrs. E. Ross Adair will be present as will county and district candidates. Cong. Adair and Joint State Senator Willis Batchelet will speak briefly at the gathering.

All voters are invited to attend the meeting and meet the GOP candidates. Refreshments will be served.

Serving on the committee for arrangements are Mrs. Janice Hollabaugh, Mrs. Ethelyn Miller and Mrs. Bernice Wilder.

Daisy May Keeler

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday for Mrs. Daisy May Keeler, 75, a lifelong resident of Saint Joe. Mrs. Keeler died at Hicksville Community Hospital at 6 p.m. Saturday from a heart seizure. She had been in failing health for several years and entered the hospital six days before her death.

Mrs. Keeler was born September 16, 1885, in Saint Joe, the daughter of the late Harry and Mary Bryan Meek. She was the widow of William Keeler who died in 1958.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Flossie Bassett of Saint Joe; three sons, Ralph Keeler of Saint Joe, Clayton Keeler of Dayton, Ohio, and Judson Keeler of Kendallville; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Douglas Holley, pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, officiated at the funeral services. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Winnie A. Poper

Joy prevalent at a golden wedding anniversary observance turned to sorrow Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Marvin Poper of near Saint Joe died Sunday afternoon after suffering a heart seizure while celebrating her golden wedding anniversary with her husband at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Elwood Hart, of Saint Joe.

She had been in failing health in recent years but was able to be active until the seizure.

Winnie Anne Poper was born in Allen County February 23, 1891, the daughter of the late John C. Bailey and Mary McNabb Bailey. On October 6, 1910, she married Mr. Poper in Saint Joe. She was a member of the Church of Christ in Saint Joe.

Surviving, in addition to the husband and daughter, are another daughter, Mrs. Harold Baker of Saint Joe; a brother, Robert Bailey, of Spencerville; a sister, Mrs. Alice Watson, of Spencerville; three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Saint Joe Church of Christ with Douglas Holley, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Firearm Safety Program Oct. 29

A Shooting Clinic for boys, girls and adults will be held Saturday, October 29, in DeKalb County under the general supervision of Dick Miller, shooting consultant with the Sportsmen's Service Bureau. The clinic will include lectures, visual aids and actual shooting participation by those in attendance.

The affair is being held as a pioneering move in the safe use of firearms and is being sponsored by the DeKalb County Conservation Council. The Council is composed of sportsmen's conservation groups in the county, including the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club of Saint Joe, and represents more than 1,000 individual conservationists.

Many states now require a course of this nature before a license to hunt may be issued to a young person. Similar clinics have been held in many areas of the state of Indiana on a voluntary basis.

The mornign session will be held at the court house with the afternoon session to be held in a rural area south of Auburn. Representatives of the Enforcement Division of the Indiana Department of Conservation and the DeKalb County Sheriff's Department will provide a shooting demonstration and will assume a major portion of the actual work with the youngsters.

Advance registration may be made with Estil Taylor, secretary of the local conservation club. Blanks are also available at the News Office. Registrations will be accepted until 8:30 a.m. the day of the clinic or until quotas are filled. Advance registration may also be made with Hemen Opdycke, Clinic Registrar, RR3, Auburn. The fee is 50 cents and lunch money should be taken along. Participants will not be allowed to bring firearms.

Boys, girls and adults in this community are invited to attend what should be an interesting and informative program about the use of firearms.

'Pressure' Forces County Committee To Rescind 1-Unit Plan Action

Though there has been no official report given by the DeKalb County Re-organization Committee, it is known that the committee has rescinded its action of a month ago. At that time the committee voted to recommend a single unit plan for DeKalb County schools. Reaction to the committee's vote, coming from larger communities in the county, brought the reversal by the committee which then voted to recommend a 3-unit system for the county. This action came at a meeting approximately two weeks ago. Further "reaction" thereafter has brought the possibility that the committee will again vote on the matter, this due to the pressure for four units in the county.

The deadline for submitting a plan for the county comes this week. The re-organization committee was established a year ago with a year provided in which to submit a plan for the county. The committee appears to have been delayed and hampered by the protests and pressures resulting from its first decision to recommend a county unit, all schools administrated by one board to achieve uniformity in the educational system. However, the above-mentioned pressures have brought some confusion and it appears a decision will be made, if it has not already been made, to appease those who have registered complaints.

Local News

No injuries were suffered by the two drivers but $550 property damage was inflicted in a two car accident Wednesday of last week in Spencerville. Involved were cars driven by Donald E. Cook and Mrs. Claudia B. Hafner, both of Spencerville.

Mildred Ridgway of Saint Joe filed suit for divorce last week charging her husband, John Kenneth Ridgway, with an attitude of neglect and indifference towards his marital vows. The couple married July 1, 1949, and separated August 13, 1960.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McBride and daughters of near New Haven were guests of the Herbert Millers Sunday.

Bill Griggs is on his way to Germany with the Air Force having enjoyed a leave at home after basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas. His address is: A-3C William Stanley Griggs AF16-671424, 602nd Aircraft Control Warning Squadron, APO 321, New York, N.Y.

Judge Stump To Address PTA Tuesday: 'Delinquency'

The October meeting of the Riverdale PTA will be held next Tuesday, October 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

Judge Stump has recently been presenting his views on juvenile delinquency to organizations in DeKalb County and will present those views for the benefit of Riverdale patrons Tuesday evening. Judge Stump is in continual contact with young people and their parents in his present position and has gained some insight into the causes and contributing factors of what is termed "juvenile delinquency." Of particular interest are some of his conclusions regarding young people and automobiles.

All Riverdale patrons are invited to attend the meeting and hear this member of the judicial system share his experience with them.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Walter Stewart got a surprise from Esther this week.

He had asked me if I thought she would help on the election board come November 8. I suggested he go over to the house and ask her, I didn't know. So he went over and I guess the conversation went something like this:

Walter: How fast do I have to talk to get you to help on the election board?

Esther: Oh, I don't know.

Walter: Well, will you do it?

Esther: Oh, I guess I can.

Walter: . . . . (speechless, mouth open, jaw dropped).

—That was short, and sweet as far as Walter was concerned.

I was rooting around in our attic the other day after putting up a radio antenna and noticed some pieces of paper on the attic floor. One of them turned out to be an old price list from a liquor store in Fort Wayne. Get these prices: whiskey $9.00 a case for a case of 12 quarts, or 75 cents a quart. Wine, brandy, etc., were priced accordingly. I wondered what year the list was printed in but there was no date. Another piece of paper cleared the situation, tho. It was a statement for the Krabill family from the same store showing a balance due of $3.00. The statement is dated 1910.

—Ah, the good old days.

It comes in handy once in a while, the experience we get on the various jobs in a lifetime. Dan Ransom's past experience with installing convertible tops came in handy for us last week. He put a nice new top on our Ford, so now we won't freeze in the cold weather coming up. Neither will Phyllis Baker and Tillie Monroe and Louise Church and Audrey Walter and Ruth Shilling when they ride with Esther to Friday night bowling. The girls had gotten to be exceptionally cooperative in offering to drive here lately.

The fire department through Dick Roberts sent word this week that Saint Joe'ers should be careful when burning leaves what with the dry weather. But Wednesday's rain tempered the warning. However, we'll probably have more dry weather and more leaf burning, so keep fire prevention in mind.

Voters are invited to "eat out" that night, casting their vote, then enjoying a menu which usually includes chili and vegetable soup, chicken and sloppy joe sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, coffee, milk, pie and cake.

Rehearsals To Begin For Festival

Rehearsals will begin next Tuesday evening, October 25, for the Christmas Choir Festival to be presented Sunday, December 18. The Festival began last year, presenting a program of Christmas music by young people and adults in the community.

Tuesday's reahearsal will be held in the Community Building at Spencerville starting at 7:30 p.m. Rehearsals will be held every Tuesday thereafter until the program is presented in December at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Mrs. Omer Hansen is director of the Festival Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner is pianist and Mrs. William Jones is organist.

Adults in the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities and surrounding area are invited to participate and attend the first rehearsal next Tuesday evening. High school students are also invited to participate.

The children in the community will be directed in their part of the program by Mrs. Robert Lowry.

Scouts, Leaders Attend Camp-out

15 members of Saint Joe Scout Troop 173 attended a North District camp-out over the past week end. The camp-out was held at Indian Lake north of Angola.

Boys attending included Dennie Miller, Robert Smith, Robert Arnett, Mike Beebe, Bruce Holtzberg, Nick Carr, Danny Kessler, Terry Loucks, Mike Loy, Larry Kinsey, John Stiver, Frank Kessler, Laune Mason, Leslie Strong and Larry Fredericks.

Adult advisors who participated in the camp-out were Bill Beebe, John Mason and Harvey Carr.

The troop is currently operating thru the efforts of the troop committee. Needed is a scoutmaster to assume direction of the troop. Mr. Beebe who was instrumental in getting the troop re-organized asks that any man in the community who is willing to direct the boys in the troop contact him. The need is urgent as a scout troop functions more efficiently under the direction of a scoutmaster.

Curbing Project Proposal With Road Resurfacing In Preparation For 1961

A proposal is being prepared for presentation to the Indiana State Highway Commission whereby State Highway 1 would be resurfaced thru Saint Joe and the pavement extended from the highway to proposed curbs installed by the Town of Saint Joe.

Following a meeting Wednesday afternoon of this week, arranged by Joint State Senator Willis Batchelet, the proposal was announced by Russell Thompson, chief engineer of the Fort Wayne District of the state highway department and Town Board members Roy Bowser and Ted Haberkorn. The four men met at the town hall for discussion of the street improvement program.

The board has been attempting to arrange a cooperative improvement program with the state for some time and with the assistance of Mr. Batchelet, worked out tentative plans at Wednesday's meeting.

Subject to the approval of the State Highway Department plans call for installation of curbing on the main street of Saint Joe from the B&O Railroad tracks at the east end of Saint Joe to the south-bound curve at the west end of town. Construction would begin in the spring of 1961. With installation of curbing by the town, the proposal calls for state resurfacing of the highway plus paving from the curb to the highway.

Contracting estimates are to be sought with some information already obtained by the third member of the board, Bud Shockley.

A survey was made last week of the drainage facilities along the highway thru the town to assist Mr. Thompson in preparing a report of the conditions existing in the face of the proposed program. A request for approval will be drawn up in the near future to be signed by the town board and sent to the highway department

Special music will be presented at both services by a quartet from the Bible college.

The public is invited to attend these services.

A Foul Item

Quail and pheasant were released on several farms in the area recently. The birds were obtained from the Indiana Department of Conservation by the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club for distribution, according to Estil Taylor, secretary of the club.

On October 5 pheasant were released at the conservation club grounds and at the farms of Lester Coburn, John Mason, Lavon Brunson, Robert Sechler, Walter Reinhart and Frank Curie.

Quail were released October 12 at the conservation grounds and at the farms of Walter Morr, Lester Coburn, Lavon Brunson, Lester Anthony, Robert Sechler, Grant Baltz and Walter Reinhart.

It Really Isn't Funny, But . . .

A suit to determine the ownership of and title to the community building in Spencerville will open Monday, October 24, in the DeKalb Circuit Court at 9:00 a.m. The suit involves Argil Richmond of Saint Joe who thought he bought the property about two years ago. The other party involved is the Town Hall Co. of Spencerville which thought it had never given up title to the building. The difficulty arose after the Riverdale School Board, which thought it could sell the property, accepted Mr. Richmond's "bid" after the property was advertised for sale.

Now the matter goes to the court, which probably thinks it can settle the case, but no matter who wins, somebody's going to be mad at somebody.

Re-organization Stalled

The turmoil in DeKalb County concerning the selection of a plan for school re-organization, such plan to be submitted to the State Commission for Re-organization of School Corporations, is a good example of the inefficiency of the democratic way of doing things if individuals forget their responsibilities. So, it isn't the democratic way that is at fault, it is the people who have the privilege of exercising their influence.

Some time ago I expressed an opinion that it is necessary to trust those to whom we give power to act in the school systems after the systems have been set up under re-organization, the idea being that we should have faith in the members of a school board in a re-organized district that they would not think in terms of their own particular community alone in making decisions but would think in terms of all people and all students concerned. I also said in effect that it was not serving a lofty purpose to think of school board membership in terms of area representation. The present turmoil in county re-organization gives those who differ with me plenty of ammunition, because it appears that the county re-organization committee has changed its mind on its recommendation because of the pressure brought upon them by citizens in the larger school areas in the county. So, area representation DOES make a difference, whether or not it is right.

What will hurt in the future is that education is secondary in importance in re-organization as far as the actions of some individuals in DeKalb County is concerned; community pride comes first. If the members of the county committee do not have the ability to recommend a plan which will be of greatest benfit for all concerned, then why have a committee in the first place? In a sense, the present turmoil is an insult to the DeKalb County Re-organization Committee. They have been asked to do a job because they are qualified to do it (at least that is my assumption). But some people are not willing to recognize those qualifications and accept the committee's judgment. Therefore, the committee's recommendation, whatever it may be, will have the taint of appeasement.

As one whose job it is to keep the public informed, I am often peeved at people for not letting others know of their community activities; the newspaper is supposed to dig everything up, that's its job, they say. So, it was a happy event at the beginning of the county re-organization committee's activities to be informed that publicity would be given to all the papers in the county to let the public know what was going on. And so it went as re-organization got under way. But strangely, the publicity dropped off in time, to the point where NOTHING was given for the information of the public in the past several weeks except the brief release indicating the committee's original decision to recommend a county unit. Thereafter, there was not one publicity release for the information of the public even though there were people at work successfully attempting to get the county committee to change its mind. Why?

This puts the committee on the spot, but they are not alone. I think they said nothing because of the probable greater confusion that would result from any publicity given resulting from the agitation done by some people who were not satisfied with the committee's decision. Again, let's keep in mind that the committee members were selected because they were qualified to make a decision in this important business of re-organization.

One of the biggest complaints registered over the re-organization act has been that the people didn't have the right to express their opinion or have the final say; school business had been taken from their hands. In the light of recent developments, that argument against re-organization falls on its face because re-organization in DeKalb County, as in other counties in the state, is being hindered by the ability of the people to express their opinions and to exert pressure upon the men who were selected on the strength of their character and background to improve the school system. And there has been a fear in the background that "the State will come in and tell you what you HAVE to do." As far as I am concerned, this threat is brought on by the public itself because we allow personal desires, having nothing whatsoever to do with improving public education, to override the purpose of such a thing as the school re-organization act.

It will take a few years at least at the present pace before we will have any visible alteration in our high schools in this county. If re-organization in DeKalb County then accomplishes anything less than this - -

- choice of at least two foreign language courses available at all times;
- chemistry and physics labs with equipment for the students to use in experiments, not singular equipment for the instructor to show what happens, and "that's it";
- manual training course and equipment at all times (with junior high boys also receiving such training);
- facilities for proper administration of physical education programs for girls and boys;
- advisors from the faculty available to help not only students encountering difficulties but also to challenge those with outstanding or exceptional abilities to seek greater achievements;
- generally a school system in which teachers seek to be employed and the school selects, as against the condition in which the school must take its only applicant;

- - those few years will have been wasted. Anything less than a school program which includes the above will not meet the standards required in living in the world of the 1960's.

It's too bad that we the public have so little faith and trust in educators that we can't turn the job of education over to them. It's too bad we must give the job primarily to "laymen" with the further privilege of exercising our right to vote on (which might be more correctly designated our "right to veto") whatever it is they might recommend for the public good. Remember this, whatever difficulties we are having in our county and in the state over re-organization are not due to blindly-sought ideals of those working in the field of education but to the pressures exerted by selfish and ill-informed citizens.

REDS CONTROLLED THESE STUDENTS

Whatever you may have head about the "student riots" against the House Un-American Activities Committee in San Francisco last May 12-14, here is the official report issued by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, after a thorough investigation:

"The Communist attack on the HCUA in San Francisco was in line with a longstanding Party aim to destroy (the Committee and its work) . . . . The first objective of the Party was to fill the scene of the hearings with demonstrators. The second was to incite them to action through the use of mob psychology.

"The first stage of the Party's plan of action began to unfold after word was received on April 26, 1960, by Party officials that subpoenas had been issued for local Communists to appear for the hearings. One of the recipients of a subpoena was Douglas Wachter, an 18-year-old sophomore at the University of California. Wachter had attended the 17th national convention of the Communist Party in December as an official delegate.

"Party officials decided to build a major part of their plan of attack around Wachter. Immediately after receiving a subpoena, Wachter proceeded to the University of California campus to organize student demonstrators . . . ." (The report tells how other Communists contacted student groups at Santa Rosa Junior College, San Francisco State College, and others) . . . .

"The Party line on the hearings and the general plan of attack were outlined and distributed early in May to all Party members in the area .... rank and file Party members quickly responded. Members of the San Jose Club of the Santa Clara County Communist Party circulated petitions and arranged for the publishing of a protest advertisement in the local San Jose newspapers. Oakland Communist Party members arranged for radio broadcasts and publications of protest ads. Fund drives were initiated in the various clubs to provide financial support for the attack.

"Mickey Lima, chairman of the Northern California District of the Communist Party, (stated to fellow Reds) that activities on the campus of the University of California and the other campuses had begun to pay dividends - students were begnning to call for demonstrations and picket lines to greet the HCUA .... A telephone campaign was conducted by Party members to solidify opposition to the HCUA and designed specifically to reach 1,000 people.

"As the scheduled time for hearings neared, Communists stepped up their efforts to assure a big turnout. Communist leaders in Berkeley arranged transportation from Berkeley to San Francisco for youths .... meetings were held; leaflets appeared on campuses; and telephone calls were made with increasing urgency .... Placards and posters were also prepared .... nothing was overlooked, even to arrangements .. to have the demonstrators join a Party-sponsored 'Peace March' .... at the conclusion of the hearings.

"When the day arrived for the hearings to begin, the Party was set (for) its second objective of inciting the mob. A few key Party members were to play major roles as agitators," (to incite violence inside and outside the courtroom.)

As planned, the Communists threw the hearings into near panic. Policemen were attacked; the mobs of Communist-led students outside stormed the hearing room doors. Fire hose had to be brought into play, and finally police clubs. For three days the Communist-controlled mobs ran amuck making a shambles of the hearings. Finally, the danger to the Committee itself became so acute, members and staff had to be taken out rear doors by police and whisked away under guard. The hearings were called off.

Riot charges were lodged against 62 persons. But Judge Albert A. Axelrod dismissed the charges declaring that most of the defendants were "clean-cut American college students" merely incited by agitators. Yet 58 of the 62 "clean-cut American college students" thereupon signed a statement of defiance: "Nobody incited us," it said. "Nobody misguided us. We were led by our own convictions."

Mr. Hoover said in his report: "Particularly unfortunate is the fact that many youth and student groups in our Nation today are totally unaware of the extent to which they can be victimized and exploited by Communists."

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

A SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER'S REWARD

A School Board Member knocked at the Pearly Gates,
His face was scared and cold;
He stood before the man of fate
For admission to the Fold.
What have you done, St. Peter asked,
To gain admission here?
I've been a board member, sir, he said,
For many and many a year.
The Pearly Gates swung open wide,
St. Peter touched the bell.
Come in, he said, and choose your harp,
You've had your share of hell.

—from the Hoosier School Board Journal, passed along by Wayne Benninghoff.

SILLY QUESTION DEPARTMENT (cont'd)

Trying to answer all silly questions for the year in advance, Bob Wright, editor of the Montello (Wisc.) Tribune, recently ran a column of questions and answers, part of which were presented here recently, the remainder following herewith:

Q. Why do you devote space to such trivialities as "Joe Smith is feeling poorly this week?
A. Because good old Joe has many pals who are concerned over his health, even if you are not. Who knows, somebody might read the item and send Joe a bottle of sympathy.

Q. Why don't you run a column of excerpts from Tribunes of years gone by?
A. We used to. But once we published an item from forty years back about a baby girl being born to Mr. and Mrs. Blank. Trouble was this baby girl had been telling everyone she was only 34. Her lecture curled the wallpaper off the Tribune walls.

Q. What would you give me for writing a weekly column of moral homespun philosophy?
A. A poke in the eye with a sharp stick.

Q. Last week I brought you in a detailed obituary about Homer in California. You only printed one short paragraph and stuck it on the bottom of an inside page. How come?
A. Uncle Homer hadn't visited Montello since the spring of '06. Nobody but you ever heard of Uncle Homer. Uncle Homer had been dead eight weeks when you brought the obituary in. The main reason we cut the length of it was that we lacked the courage to throw all of it in the wastebasket.

Q. How come you're such a jerk?
A. Just lucky, I guess.

Q. How come you write so much about your kids?
A. They're defenseless children.

Q. Why don't you write an editorial and tell those guys on the city council what they can do to improve the town?
A. Why don't you go down to the next meeting and tell 'em yourself?

Q. Why don't you print more letters to the editor?
A. Why don't you write me one? And sign it with your name - please - don't be chicken.

Q. Why didn't you print the little item I sent you that "Joe Blank spent last week as a guest of Sheriff and Mrs. Atkinson? That woulda been a good joke on Joe. Ha ha ha! Everybody knew he was in jail.
A. Get outa here, ya bum—

Q. Your paper's got too much advertising. How come?
A. Little envelopes with windows in them.

Q. Why don't we go have a cup of coffee?
A. Why not?

125 Hear Judge Stump Score Attitudes Of Adults, Youth

Judge Harold Stump pulled no punches in a speech Tuesday night, decrying the present day attitude of reliance upon legalism to define and control "juvenile delinquency" which has taken the place of the parent's and the family's determination of delinquency accented by the use of a paddle.

In a talk delivered before a crowd of 125 persons, Judge Stump addressed the Riverdale P.T.A. and pointed out the deterioration of juvenile respect for the law and the right and proper things to do, this disrespect fostered by parental protection. Citing what he called a typical court case, Judge Stump gave an illustration of a boy being arrested and brought to court because of a traffc violation. But the father shields the boy with the assurance, "Don't say anything, I'll get you a lawyer." Thus the young man is faced with the knowledge that his traffic violation can be nullified by manipulation of legal processes: "Though he knows he did wrong, though his father knows he did wrong, he is yet told in effect that he will not be punished," Judge Stump pointed out.

The automobile was summarized as the greatest contributor to delinquency cases. Three out of four cases involving juveniles in trouble in DeKalb County during the year of 1959 involved an automobile, either as a means of transportation to the place where the act of delinquency was committeed, or as the object directly involved in the act for which the juvenile is apprehended. "Though drivers in the age group from 16 years to 25 years constitute only one-ninth of the total number of drivers, this group is responsible for one-half the traffic arrests," he said. Also included in the statistical data was the increase in social disease in the teen-age group.

The judge reminded his audience that the present attitude of the younger generation has become "what are you gonna give me," a trick-or-treat approach to the adult world. There has been an accompanying lack of fulfilling obligations. Stressing the matter of automobiles in delinquency, Judge Stump indicated he could be considered a crusader, recommending raising of driving-eligibility age considerabily. "We say they are too young to vote at 16, then we give them the keys to 300 horsepower automobiles."

Observations given by the speaker came from his experience as judge of Auburn City Court and as judge of the DeKalb County Circuit Court, the latter position held for the past two years.

Business conducted at the meeting included announcement of committee appointments as follows:

Building and Property— Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fish, and the principals, Joe Smith and Howard Hill.

Representatives to School Board—Mr. and Mrs. Hal Elzea, Mr. and Mrs. Max Doub, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Hudson.

Thursday, October 20.
Read II Corinthians 1:1-7.

Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. (II Corinthians 1:2)

It was a stormy November day in a town in northern Norway. I made my way toward the hospital to make my regular calls upon the patients and to hold the preaching there. In the hospital I found the usual silence - and the usual hurry.

Before the service, an anxious mother asked me to see her son who was seriously ill. She told me he was 18 and wanted to talk to a minister. As I went into his room, the boy's mother left, closing the door behind her. He and I were alone.

I did not know him, but was about to begin speaking when something unexpected happened. The boy turned his face toward me. He smiled and said, "Peace from the Lord." This dying boy, with faith in the Lord, wanted to share with a minister the peace that Jesus Christ had given him.

On a stormy day, in a house of pain and uneasiness, the boy knew the comfort and leavening power of Christ's peace. He passed on to me a feeling of peace, which I carried with me into many experiences.

PRAYER: O God of Love, we thank Thee for Christ's peace. Help us to share Thy peace with those we meet, that it may be the leaven of life to them. In Christ's name. Amen.

Thought for the day: In all circumstances, Christ's peace leavens life.

—Leif Sevre (Norway).

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

On October 3 the Concord Junior Home Demonstration Club entertained the Saint Joe Valley Club at the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Ellen Fetters, vice president, opened the meeting and all repeated the club collect. Anne Beebe read a chapter of the Book of Psalms for devotions.

"O Mary, Don't You Weep," the song of the month, was given by Marcelle Storer. The lesson, you and your heart, was presented by Hazel Schrader and Edna Perkins.

Guests and members answered roll call telling of "my most fearful moment." Among these were many sad and funny experiences.

The prayer song closed the meeting.

The social hour consisted of playing Proverbs. 27 guests and members were seated at beautifully decorated tables. Delicious refreshments were served.

The committee for the evening was Katie Crow, Marvella Dilley, Betty Rediger and Harriet Baker.

Prepared by National 4-H Service Committee, Inc.

The nearly four million projects completed by 2,300,000 4-H Club boys and girls in a single year is further proof that the "learn by doing" system is keeping young minds and hands busy. As a matter of fact, youth specialists say that the hundred or so categories of 4-H projects are the very backbone of the organization which has grown steadily for more than a half century.

During the past three decades the number of girls enrolled in 4-H has topped the boys in just about the same proportion, according to figures supplied by the USDA. There are presently some 300,000 more girls than boys in club work. Ages range from 10 to 21 years.

Originally planned to help farm youngsters, the voluntary educational program now claims nearly half its membership from city and non-farm rural homes. Apparently "pride of accomplishment" is a key factor in the success of this particular brand of youth organization.

Right from the very beginning of 4-H, interested parties have donated awards in recognition of top performance in citizenship, leadership and project achievement. This fall more than a thousand expense-paid trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago will be given to state, sectional and national 4-H award winners. In addition about 200 teenagers will receive college scholarships, and one out of 15 members will win medals in local competition.

Six persons now engaged in Extension work and who are former 4-H'ers will share $18,000 in educational grants to be used in graduate study.

Business firms that sponsor programs and awards include: Ford Motors, achievement; Olin Mathieson Chemical, alumni recognition; E. I. du Pont de Nemours, beef; Standard Brands, bread demonstration; Oliver, dairy; Carnation, dairy foods demonstration; Simplicity Pattern, dress review; Hercules Powder, entomology; Arcadian Products Dept. of Allied Chemical, field crops; Betty Crocker of General Mills, food preparation.

Also, American Forest Products Industries, forestry; Whirlpool, frozen foods; Eli Lilly, health; John Deere, recreation; Moorman Mfg., swine; Singer Sewing Machine, clothing leader training; Wm. Wrigley Jr., community relations; Ralston Purina, dog care and training; Pure Oil, public speaking; Chicago Board of Trade, grain marketing.

College scholarships and fellowships in amounts from $800 to $3000 each are provided by: California Spray-Chemical, Homelite Division of Textron, Sperry and Hutchinson, Massey-Ferguson and the National 4-H Service Committee.

CULTURE CLUB
Barbara Wagner, Rep.

The Saint Joe Culture Club held its first meeting Wednesday, October 5, at the home of Barbara Bishop.

The meeting was called to order with all repeating the club collect. Then all said the pledge to the flag. The First Psalm was given for devotions by the hostess.

Barbara Wagner gave the lesson on the sewing lessons she took this summer. Roll call was answered by eight members telling an outing they took this summer. The secretary's report was read and approved.

The president, Ruth Fetters, then gave a report on the council meeting she attended. The Twelfth District Federation of Women's Club Convention will be held October 21 at the Presbyterian Church in Auburn. Registration starts at 9:30 a.m.

A discussion was then held on the lack of library facilities for Concord and Spencer townships.

It was announced that the Ladies Literary Club plans to entertain the Culture Club this year.

The meeting then closed with the club prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be October 22 at the home of Leanna Friend.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

In infant baptism.

And Lutherans believe it should be practiced because it reveals and emphasizes the grace of God.

When a child is baptized in infancy, it comes at a time when the child isn't even aware of the act, at a time when the child can't appreciate the act, at a time when the child can't even say thank you.

So, God comes to the child, at that point, and makes that child His child, giving to that child the promise of eternal life through Jesus Christ.

Later in life the child becomes aware of faith in Jesus Christ. As he looks back, he realizes that something or someone led him to this act of faith.

Finally, he comes to the conclusion that it all began back there in baptism when God came to him, asking for nothing.

Thus, God comes before it's convenient for the receiver to do anything in return—and that's indicative of the person of God, who is always doing that sort of thing.

Lutherans believe that God approaches man before man can ever approach God. Infant baptism is but one significant expression of this wooing of God.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I continue to wonder about the postal system. We received a post card last week, mailed October 15 and received October 21, six days from New Hampshire to Indiana.

We received another post card last week, mailed October 19, received October 22 — three days from Honolulu to Indiana.

??????

Such an embarrassing situation - me a stickler for proper spelling and then I headline that story about pheasants and quail with the word "foul" instead of "fowl."

Another embarrassing situation which merits an apology. That is the omission of the name of James Angelone, Saint Joe town attorney, in the write-up about the town's proposed curb project. Mr. Angelone is an important cog in the business of the town.

A gentleman from Auburn asked me a question recently that makes me wonder. He asked: "Are you still working part-time in Fort Wayne?"

One of our local residents commented recently that, oh, she had heard I was working elsewhere, in addition to publishing the local paper.

So where does this part-time deal come in? Maybe it's because I'm in and out of the News Office so much. But anyhow, that "part-time" story aint so. I don't know how it got started.

—Small town gossip which brings the observation that a fella can't be two places at once.

You know, it may not be "legally" necessary, but I would just as soon see the school corporation return $650 to the Spencerville Community Club as a gesture of good will. After all the hassle over that community building, a hassle which caused the cost to the club to go from an understood $25 to an actual $1,000, I am not too pleased over the presence of that extra money in the school till.

There are a lot of details involved. But the end result is that the affair hasn't helped relations between the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities. Some ill-advised remarks and changed minds transformed a technical matter of transfer of ownership for a $25 bid into a costly settlement of $1,100.

Back of it all is the warning that, to be on the safe side, put verbal agreements on paper. And make sure who owns what.

—And I'd still like to see $650 go back to the club.

Hallowe'n Parties Next Monday

Community Halloween Parties are scheduled next Monday night at Saint Joe and Spencerville.

The party at Saint Joe, sponsored by the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department, will begin with a parade from downtown to the high school gym at 7:30 p.m. The Riverdale band will lead the parade with firemen supervising the procession.

At the gym there will be judging of costumes with adults particularly invited to participate in the costumed fun. Entertainment will be provided in addition to prizes for adults and children with winning costumes.

The Fire Department Auxiliary will have a lunch stand in operation to serve plenty of eats and drinks.

At Spencerville the party is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Community Building. Prizes will be awarded for best costumes with games and refreshments to be provided.

The invitation says "everything free except the hot dogs"!

Carnival, Ham Supper Plans Get Underway

The finance committee of the Riverdale P.T.A. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn Tuesday evening.

Principal item of business was the matter of raising money for books for the elementary and upper grades, a project suggested by the officers of the P.T.A. The committee decided to sponsor a carnival and ham supper with a date to be cleared with the school calendar.

Virgil Smith and Walter Reinhart volunteered to serve as co-chairman for the fund-raising project.

Another meeting of the committee will be held Thursday, November 10, at which time further appointments for the carnival and supper will be made.

The finance committee is as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Rediger, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Storer, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Musser, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reinhart and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Loy.

Adult Class Deadline Moved

The deadline for enrollment in the winter adult-education courses at Auburn has been extended to Monday, October 31, according to Ross Tipton, superintendent of the Auburn city schools.

Only about 100 persons, approximately one-half of whom came from communities outside Auburn, appeared at the organization meeting last Monday night. A minimum of 20 persons is needed for each class to warrant instruction in a course. Sufficient interest was shown in only four courses: beginning typing, human relations, algebra and beginning shorthand.

Dates for first classes have not been set but tentative class hours have been announced. All classes meet once a week for 18 weeks. Typing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, human relations 8 p.m. Monday, algebra 8 p.m. Monday with no date set for the shorthand class.

The algebra course will start with arithmetic with algebra to follow.

Times for the classes were set by the class members.

Adults from Butler, Corunna, Kendallville, Cedar Shores, Waterloo and Garrett were present Monday night.

Response was light in other courses offered, including business English, industrial arts, general crafts, blueprint reading, speech, general accounting, today's "isms" and auto mechanics.

Chili Suppers

On election night, November 8, the Queen Esther Circle of the WSCS of the Methodist Church will hold a Chili Supper for the public in the church basement.

The menu includes chili, vegetable soup, cole slaw, pie, coffee, kool ade and will be served for $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children with all the chili you want.

Tickets can be purchased from any of the members of the circle, Mrs. Pat Melchi, chairman.

The Tri Mu Class of St. Mark Lutheran Church will again sponsor an election night chili supper in the basement of the church. Serving will begin at 5:00 on November 8, Tuesday night.

Voters are invited to "eat out" that night, casting their vote, then enjoying a menu which usually includes chili and vegetable soup, chicken and sloppy joe sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, coffee, milk, pie and cake.

Property Dispute Requires $1100 Settlement

In an out-of-court settlement transacted while several persons waited to testify and some just to listen, the Spencerville Community Club agreed to pay Argil Richmond of Saint Joe $1,100 for title to the Spencerville Community Building and for repairs and improvements made to the building. Mr. Richmond had paid the Riverdale School Corporation $675 in 1958 for title to the property after the board advertised the propriety for sale with no guarantee of title.

The settlement was made Monday morning.

At the time of the sale, sealed bids were requested with two bids made originally; one was from the Community Club in the amount of $25, the other from Dan Ransom for $300.

However, Mr. Ransom indicated his desire to withdraw his bid prior to the advertised meeting date. While Community Club members absented themselves to bring Mr. Ransom to the meeting, the board decided to receive bids at a later date. It has been reported by several sources that the club understood its bid for the building would be accepted to fulfill legal requirements on the sale of property.

At a later date a total of five bids were received, all of which were reportedly rejected by the board, and the property was then "auctioned."

The Community Club then began its fight to regain possession of the property thru the old Spencerville Town Hall Co. which built the building about 40 years ago.

About a year ago the club regained use of the building thru a court order and had been sponsoring community activities in the building for the past year or so.

Difficulties arose in the matter because of lack of records to prove reported "agreements" between the Town Hall Company and the township trustee concerning rental and use of the building for school purposes. It had in time become a part of the school system, maintained and used for the benefit of Spencer Township schools and later the Concord-Spencer and Riverdale consolidations.

Benefit Bake Sale Saturday

The American Legion Post of Saint Joe will hold a benefit bake sale this coming Saturday, November 5, for the Richard Woodring family of Saint Joe, according to information given by Leon Kees of the local post. The sale will be held in the News Office at Saint Joe Saturday morning.

Funds will be given to the Woodring family who have found themselves in financial difficulty due to a back injury suffered by Mr. Woodring while he was in service. The injury has bothered him in recent months causing him to be out of work. It is reported that he will undergo an operation at the VA Hospital in Fort Wayne sometime in the future. Meanwhile the Legion Post is attempting to assist the family financially by means of Saturday's bake sale.

Season Tickets

Season tickets for home games of the Riverdale Comets are now available at the principal's office at the high school in Saint Joe.

Mr. Joe Smith has announced that season tickets will sell for $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for students. There are eight games on the "home" schedule which means that season ticket purchasers get eight games for the price of seven.

"Home" games include Wolf Lake at Waterloo on November 11; Leo at Harlan November 23; Edon, Ohio, at Hamilton January 7; Ashley at Waterloo January 13; Bishop Leurs at Leo January 14; Avilla at Auburn January 20; Antwerp at Leo January 28; and Wolcottville at Ashley February 10.

Wanted: Voices

While the Chistmas Choir Festival has gotten off to a good start, it needs more voices to bring the caliber of the presentation up to expectations. Thus, Mrs. Omer Hansen, director of the festival, has issued a call for more singers, especially men (as is usually the case) to be present next Monday evening, November 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the community building at Spencerville.

The change in rehearsal night was made due to the election Tuesday. After next week rehearsals will be held on Tuesdays.

Once again, singers come one, come all, to help prepare for the Christmas Choir Festival in December. Time is flying.

Elementary Open House

Howard Hill, principal of Riverdale Elementary School at Spencerville, has announced that the school will hold an open house next Wednesday, November 9, for the benefit of patrons and parents who may wish to visit the school and discuss particular problems with the teachers.

The open house will be held from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

Teachers in the six elementary grades extend a cordial invitation to patrons and particularly to parents of grade school students to come to the school with their questions and suggestions. The faculty is always eager to cooperate with parents to foster a good atmosphere in the school for the mutual benefit of students, parents and teachers.

Band To Sell Booster Ribbons

The Riverdale band will conduct a Booster Ribbon Sale Saturday, November 5.

Funds raised from sale of the ribbons will be put in the band treasury for purchase of new uniforms. The increase in numbers, plus the increase in the size of the members themselves, necessitates acquisition of new uniforms.

Band members will be selling ribbons door to door and will solicit donations thru the day in various business establishments.

Chili Suppers

On election night, November 8, the Queen Esther Circle of the WSCS of the Methodist Church will hold a Chili Supper for the public in the church basement.

The menu includes chili, vegetable soup, cole slaw, pie, coffee, kool ade and will be served for $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for children with all the chili you want.

Tickets can be purchased from any of the members the circle, Mrs. Pat Melchi, chairman.

The Tri Mu Class of St. Mark Lutheran Church will again sponsor an election night chili supper in the basement of the church. Serving will begin at 5:00 on November 8, Tuesday night.

Voters are invited to "eat out" that night, casting their vote, then enjoying a menu which usually includes chili and vegetable soup, chicken and sloppy joe sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, coffee, milk, pie and cake.

The Better Of Two

Only a few more days until the doubts held in the minds of most of us will be dispelled, because we will have elected a new President of the United States. There are good reasons for the doubts in our minds. One of them is that there are not too many Kennedy or Nixon stickers seen on automobiles nor in their windows. This is either because somebody hasn't been doing much promoting or else most people are afraid to let their neighbors know whom they are for. Perhaps this is a good thing, in one sense: it makes election day that much more interesting and it emphasizes the importance of fulfilling our individual responsibility to vote for the man or men whom we think are best prepared to fill the jobs in government.

As far as I am concerned Mr. Kennedy has one big thing against him - he's too young to be President of the United States. Of course, Mr. Nixon is not an old man by any measure; in fact, he may be too young to be president, too. But of the two (and next Tuesday we make a choice of two men) Mr. Nixon gets my vote because he is older. I think age brings wisdom particularly when you are working in the affairs of our national government.

Another reason why Mr. Nixon gets my vote is that he has had the experience gained from the vice-presidency during years in which that office has become increasingly important. The traveling he has done as vice-president, plus the duties that have been his as vice-president, to me fill the desirable requirement (which some seek to fulfill thru a school offering governmental and diplomatic training) of knowing what is involved in being president of this country. I am not taking anything away from Mr. Kennedy as far as his understanding of the importance of the job that is the presidency; his experience as a United States Senator gives him experience in the affairs of government. But Mr. Nixon has had a better opportunity to be on the "inside," as you might put it. And so, in making a choice of the more qualified candidate, Mr. Nixon gets my vote.

Aside from individuals and their qualifications, I would be inclined to vote for the Republican candidate because he has expressed his faith in the ability of free enterprise to cure its ills with perhaps some limited assistance from the government when there are particularly pressing matters causing national distress. The attitude of the Democratic candidate, and that of his party, appears to include a lack of confidence in individuals and a greater trust in governmental control of whatever might be caught in distressing moments. While both Democrats AND Republicans are responsible for much of the trend toward government doing this and that for everyone, I must go with the man who expresses himself in terms in individualism first with the government serving as a temporary "crutch" when necessary.

While there hasn't been much for Republicans to get enthused about in recent years, with candidates apparently only mildly inclined toward traditionally conservative Republicanism, there is much to get enthused about in opposition to the philosophies expounded by their Democratic opponents. To me the Democratic Party appeals to a person's selfish interests, not that Democrats are selfish, but their candidates appeal to the selfishness in all citizens. Any minority group of any size has for the most part found support from the Democratic Party. This is borne out by results of polls which indicate that the majority of citizens think the Democratic Party best represents the interests of "the people." This is fine, except that the goals sought by minority groups, of which you and I are often members, are often contrary to best interests of other individuals and therefore of the nation. Mr. Kennedy has said that whatever labor is for he is for. Such a statement is made only for and accepted by selfish interests. It is a statement not made by a man who puts principles first and personal welfare second.

At first I couldn't build up much enthusiasm for Mr. Nixon. But in recent weeks, after viewing the "debates" and reading the remarks the candidates have made, noting the general atmosphere about the two candidates, I now possess a good head of steam and have no doubts as to where to put the "X" come election day. We are to vote for the man best qualified to be President of the United States for the next four years. Mr. Nixon gets my vote.

Patrons' Opportunity

This is just a little note to urge patrons of Riverdale, particularly parents of students in the elementary grades, to visit the elementary building next Wednesday, November 9.

There are always questions arising in the minds of parents about the welfare of their children, how they are getting along socially and academically, and so on, plus the instances when questions arise about school administration or misunderstandings arise over school policies. This open house is an excellent opportunity to clear doubts and misunderstanding.

Then there is the purely social accomplishment in meeting the teachers and getting to know them. Such gatherings are sure things when it comes to promoting good will and understanding between parents and teachers.

There is just one thing—you must GO to the meeting or there will be no benefits.

Others say . . . .

WHY CAN'T I FILL THAT CHAIR?

Say, Daddy, won't you tell me
The terrible news I heard?
I scarcely can believe it,
Each cold and cruel word.
They say because I worship Christ
And Catholic doctrines share,
I never can be President
Or hope to fill that chair.

You fought beneath Old Glory
In the late and terrible war,
And the shot and shell that rose and fell
Some Catholic hearts it tore.
Both pain and desolation
The Catholic home did share;
And if I serve my country, Dad,
Why can't I fill that chair?

You often spoke of Grandpa
Who fought in sixty-three;
You have followed in his footsteps
And expect the same of me.
I promise to follow Old Glory
And my country's troubles share,
And serving both God and Nation, Dad,
Why can't I fill that chair?

And far away in Europe, Dad,
In many a silent grave
There rests the form of a Catholic boy
So noble, true, and brave;
And they didn't tell him, Daddy,
As he started "over there,"
He was only fit to fight and die
And not to fill that chair.

O Glorious Flag of Freedom,
O Flag of our native land,
Uphold the Constitution
And by its doctrine stand.

GOOD EVENING

There isn't much at this stage of the game that Senator Jack Kennedy hasn't promised to give the people of the United States, if he is elected President.

His latest promises are 82 million jobs and a temporary tax cut to everyone.

Very obviously, Mr. Kennedy with his father's vast wealth behind him intends to leave nothing undone that may help to realize his almost single-minded ambition to attain the Presidency of this country. If elected, it is probable that he will begin where Franklin Delano Roosevelt left off in giving the country more of the revolutionary political philosophy that government shall be the "Big Brother" of everyone.

The most unconscionable feature of Senator Kennedy's strategy to put himself in the White House has been his deliberate effort from the start to create in this country a religious voting bloc, which does an injury to the political traditions of the United States and a distinct disservice to his church. No one with any sense of the fitness would ever permit himself to capitalize politically on sacred things, regardless of creed.

There is without question a voting bloc in this country made up of those who confuse hating Catholics with worshipping God, nevertheless any voting bloc made up of persons who politically support somepne only because of his race, color or creed is equally objectionable.

It has been apparent ever since the Democratic convention, when Kennedy's machine with its vast fortune behind it ran roughshod over all Democratic opposition, that Mr. Kennedy is one who will make any alliance within or without his party that will get him what he wants.

No man could make peace with all the dissident elements in the Democratic Party from Lyndon Johnson to Harry S. Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt, as he has done, without attaching little importance to the matter of liens on one's conscience.

Kennedy's approach to all the problems that confront the United States has been purely on a vote-getting basis. The Quemoy-Matsu problem was approached not from the angle of what may be best for the United States, but upon the basis of what may be best for Kennedy in getting the votes of those who fear war. But then with an inconsistency that advertised itself loudly, Mr. Kennedy almost asked a declaration of war on Cuba, as a sop to those whose over-eagerness for force places them at the other extreme from the rank pacifists.

Mr. Nixon is more than just a candidate seeking the Presidency of the United States. He is also the Vice-President of the United States, who has a great responsibility for what he says because he is a high official of the government of the United States.

He can't be careless in what he says, he can't promise everyone everything, because the difference between him and Kennedy is the difference between a quarterback actually playing in an important football contest and a second-guessing quarterback sitting high up in the bleachers.

It is possible that Mr. Kennedy will be elected, as it is also possible that Mr. Nixon will be elected. It is also possible that if Mr. Kennedy is elected, this country may get a President who will shape his daily thoughts and his daily actions not in accordance with what seems right to him, but in keeping with what he thinks is the most expedient thing to do. Expediency is the door that opens to political, moral and economic chaos.

ONCE PAST THIS POINT

The point of diminishing returns is something that all businessmen watch and watch very carefully. In its simplest terms this means that a business can obtain increased production and often increased efficiency by adding men and machines UP TO A POINT and that point is where diminishing returns sets in. After that point, no matter how many men and machines or how much money might be poured into a business, the returns in production and efficiency is practically nil. Efficiency of operation disappears.

For instance, take a look at this growing enterprise:

Number of workers—8 million.
Payroll—$33 billion.
Number of workers estimated for 1970—10 million.
Payroll—astronomical.

Yes, this is the number of government workers: 2.3 million in federal jobs and 5.8 million in state and local jobs.

It does not follow nor is it reasonable that a group of this proportion can operate effectively, if at all in some cases. THIS IS EQUAL TO THE NUMBER OF PEOPLE EMPLOYED BY THE 500 LARGEST COMPANIES IN THE U.S. Think of this, one in every seven employes is a government worker. And many of the 500 largest companies are continually looking at their justification for the number of persons employed.

But even the cost of this operation doesn't tell the whole story. The cost and resultant burden on each American family by this colossus of government may not be the most dangerous aspect of the situation. The tendency in recent years has been toward involvement in areas too minor for national concern.

Is it not time for the electorate to once again take hold and demand that the federal government give back to the states and local governement those things which they can better administrate and for the electorate to take away from all government those things which still belong solely to the individual?

The point of diminishing returns has been passed. The burden of taxes and endless bureaus of government testify to its passing. No matter whom you elect in November, make sure that he receives the message. Tell him, write him, show him by the only really effective method — YOUR INTEREST AND CONCERN — that you mean to have efficient government!

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

DEFORMITIES CAN BE CORRECTED

Correcting a deformity in childhood can be a dramatic and rewarding accomplishment. Children are sometimes born with deformities which, if not corrected, make life a long-drawn-out series of unfortunate episodes.

Orthopedics is that branch of medicine which deals with the science of the correction of deformities. Hippocrates, in the 4th century B.C. knew about orthopedics and did what he could to ameliorate crippling. He used traction, applied splints in fractures, corrected club feet and certain spinal deformities.

Orthopedic surgery received great impetus during World Wars I and II when many of the outstanding orthopedic surgeons in this country were called into service to aid in correcting injuries received by the fighting forces.

The orthopedist is primarily a medical mechanic and carpenter with complete understanding of anatomy, surgery, the nature of deformity and how nature itself may be utilized in correcting defects.

The orthopedic surgeon is called upon to prevent crippling when anticipated, and also to overcome the effects of crippling when it has already occurred. Although he is a surgeon, the orthopedist does not treat all of his cases with surgery. He frequently makes use of such mechanical features as braces and such physical methods of treatment as manipulation and electric current.

If a limb or part is lost, the orthopedist arranges a substitute of metal, plastic, or fiber, with the purpose to function as perfectly as possible in place of the lost member.

For the deformed person, the orthopedist endeavors to restore a normal state of being.

Today's MEDITATION
from
The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room
© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Read II Corinthians 5:12-18.

If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. (II Corinthians 5:17.)

Fred was a student in high school. One day, unnoticed, he cheated in his chemistry test. A few days later he attended a religious meeting where he made a decision for Christ.

As he thought of his old life, he decided to correct what could be corrected in it. He soon remembered his cheating. He went to meet his teacher and said, "I deserve a zero in my chemistry test because I cheated."

The teacher was astonished, but Fred explained that he had given his life to Christ.

"I will give you a zero," the teacher said, "but it will be a noble zero."

Fred's decision was a blessing to his teacher as well as to his fellow students, for many of them came to know Christ as their personal Saviour.

Prayer: Help me, O God, to show my faith in what I do wherever this may be. I gladly surrender all that I have into Thy hands that my faith may manifest itself for Thy glory. In the name of Jesus, who taught us to pray, "Our Father, who are in heaven. . . . . Amen."

Thought for the day: Today I will do only what manifests my faith.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

In two sacraments.

At the outset, it must be clear that a sacrament is a sacred act. It's an act of God upon man.

In order that an act be considered a sacrament in the Lutheran Church, it must possess three things—a command of Christ, a heavenly promise, an earthly element connected with His Word.

Therefore, only two acts fall into the category of a sacrament, namely, baptism and holy communion.

Baptism was commanded by Christ when He said, "Go ye into all the world, baptising . . ." It has a heavenly promise in that the Bible declares, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And the earthly element, of course, is water.

Holy communion sometimes is called the Lord's Supper, the Sacrament of the Altar, the Eucharist.

It was commanded by Christ on the night in which He was betrayed, when He instituted it and said, "This do . . ." The promise also comes from His lips—"This is My Body . . . My Blood . . . for the remission of sins." Obviously, the earthly elements are bread and wine.

Lutherans believe that God Himself acts upon them in baptism and holy communion.

14-State Vote On Survival Proposal Set

Voters of 14 States, going to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 8, for the presidential election, also will vote on State constitutional amendments designed to insure that government will be able to function in event of enemy attack.

Proposals for amending the 14 State constitutions are non-partisan. They have been endorsed by leaders of both political parties. They involve no expenditures.

States voting on such amendments are: Idaho, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, South Carolina and West Virginia.

Under provisions of the amendment, the States would have authority to provide lines of succession and other measures necessary to insure post-attack continuance of civil government.

• • •

APPROVAL of the proposal would enable the State legislatures to take steps to:

- Continue leadership and government authority in executive, legislative and judicial positions, through pre-designated lines of succession.
- Minimize unlawful assumption of emergency authority.
- Assure effective State and local government in emergency.
- Preserve civil government.

The proposal, developed by the Council of State Governments, has been endorsed by leading civic, government, fraternal, veteran, labor and women's organizations.

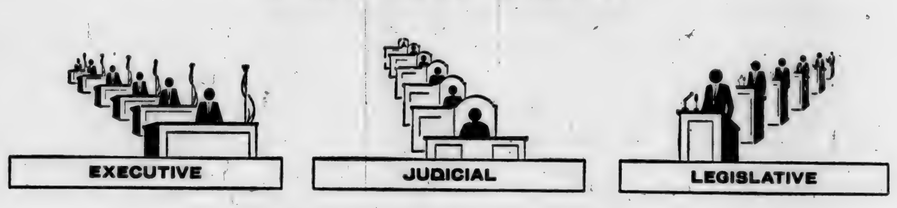
4-Point Preparedness Program Emphasized

The Continuity of Government Program at National, State and local levels stresses government readiness in four ways to meet a nuclear attack on this country:

1. To designate legal successors for each key official in case he is killed or disabled.
2. To protect essential records.
3. To establish blast or fallout-protected control centers.
4. To provide for maximum use of government personnel, resources and equipment.

Emergency Successors for Top Officials

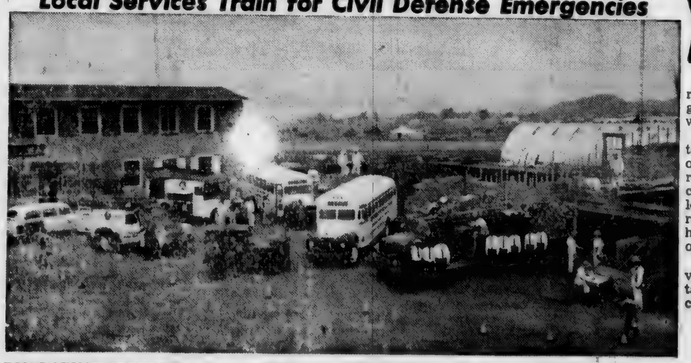
STATE GOVERNMENT



LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Successors for each key official in State and local governments are essential in extreme emergencies to assure that representative government would survive a massive attack and be able to function effectively, "Continuity of government legislation," Director Leo A. Hoegh, of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, declares, "is essential to insure survival, recovery and victory." Many States already have provided for lines of automatic succession in proper depth for key executive ...ials, legislators and the judiciary. Fourteen States will be v... n emergency power constitutional amendments during the N... ...esidential election.

Local Services Train for Civil Defense Emergencies



EMERGENCY SERVICES of government are an integral part of the N...n's nonmilitary defense. In many areas, such ... San Diego County, Calif., the same local gover...ment services now train for civil defense emergencies as are assigned to duty in natural disasters or lesser emergencies. Among units shown at the San Diego County Civil Defense training center at Gillespie Field near San Diego are (left to right): El Cajon, Calif., police (truck at left foreground and jeep); San Diego County Civil Defense rescue and communications teams (near truck and bus at left center background); San Diego County Sheriff's Reserves (bus in center); Santee, Calif., firemen, and County Civil Defense Radiological Defense Teams. Vital Papers Seen A Key to Survival

Suppose a great many vital records, including those safeguarding your property title, were suddenly lost.

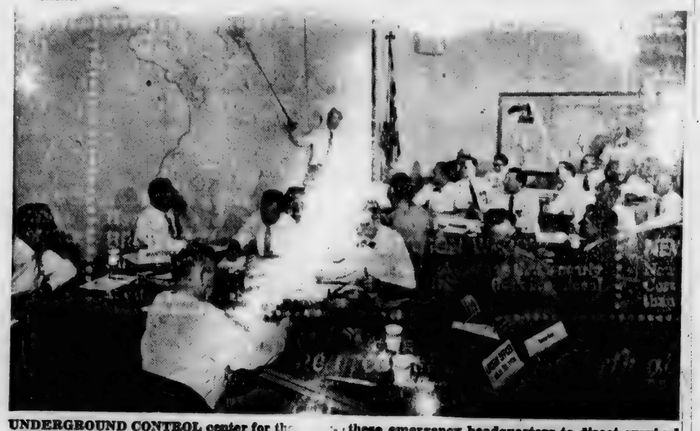
It could happen in the destruction caused by a nuclear attack on the United States. The vital records of many States and localities could be wiped out. The loss of records would hamper recovery. Many persons would have trouble proving ownership of property.

To guard against such loss of vital records, governments must take steps to preserve two classes of records:

Those essential for emergency operations — succession lists, personal and material inventories.

Those essential to protect the rights and interests of individuals—vital statistics (birth records), property deeds, voting records, constitutions or charters.

Governments which prepare now to preserve their records could reorganize faster and serve their citizens after attack.



UNDERGROUND CONTROL center for th... land Civil Defense Agency at Pikesville, ... protected against fallout and could ... nearby nuclear bo... strikes. It is ty... growing number of protected emergency operating centers for government at all levels in the Nation. Key government officials are ass...ed to these emergency headquarters to direct survival and recovery efforts following enemy attack. Director Leo A. Hoegh of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization calls these emergency preparations "a vital element of our total defense." This self-contained center could accommodate 100 persons for 14 days or more. (OCDM Photo)

UNDERGROUND STORAGE of vital government and public records is a step recommended by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization to insure that civil government and the economy could survive a massive attack. Storing vital papers through microfilm or other means also would protect the individual's legal rights, such as proof of birth or property ownership. This storage area, 650 feet down in a salt mine, is typical of similar facilities scattered across the Nation where vital records are preserved. Around the Town

With the Editor

I'm just glad I didn't make any peanut-rolling-down- the-main-street election bets with anybody or I'd have a sore proboscis right now. All the indications were that Mr. Nixon was going to get it by a good margin (or was it just wishful thinking?). And I had it from a very reliable source that Nixon had it. The source, from down Cincinnati way, a nephew by name of Craig Hauke, said it was sure thing. His kindergarten had elected Nixon a couple of weeks ago in a class poll. So I figured it was a sure thing.

Oh well, that's the way it goes.

Now that the rain has come in the past two weeks we don't have the fire hazard which was present as the leaves fell from the trees and everything was pretty dry. But the other day we had an experience at home that gives a warning as to how a fire can smolder for hours undetected and be a cause for serious damage if it has the opportunity to burst into open flame.

I had pulled a couple of clinkers from the furnace at lunch time, then returning to the shop to work. Esther called later and said she smelled wood burning. Upon investigation it seemed that perhaps a chunk of wood might have been shoveled into the stoker hopper along with the coal, causing the wood smell. But the odor still didn't seem to be coming from the furnace itself but it hovered all around. I looked in a corner and there was a broom with a six-inch area burned out and the edges still smoldering. And the small rug upon which the broom had been placed was also being slowly consumed by the creeping red fringe that could have become an open flame. And this was two hours after I had taken the clinkers from the furnace!

What happened was some sparks fell from the clinkers onto the broom and rug just heavy enough to start the latter burning.

So, sometimes when it just isn't possible for a fire to start, it IS possible.

I understand that the election fever got Pete Timmerman so enthused that there was a sign on the front of his house last week - "Kennedy's the remedy!"

Now - - - I didn't say HE put the sign up.

Loretta Musser has the ability to keep a conversation going within a group of people and enhance the feeling of fellowship, when otherwise everyone might sit around like mummies and have to rely on "the weather" as a last resort.

But I kinda think she was putting Harvey Hull on a little bit Saturday when the benefit bake sale had a lag and there was nothing to do. Loretta approached Harvey with, "Well, Harvey who shall we talk about?"

With all the taxes we pay it makes you feel good when you are on the receiving end rather than the paying end when it comes to the government. So last week when I was running off some post cards to be mailed out for the conservation club's shoot this month, you can imagine my elation when the packet of post cards which was supposed to contain 50 post cards actually had 53 in it. However, my joy turned to sadness because the next packet of 50 contained only 47 and everything was all square.

—You just can't beat the government, I guess.

Garrett Hospital Again Active

The "now you have it, now you don't" situation with regard to the Garrett Hospital has been restored to the "now you have it"status as the Indiana Hospital Regulation and Licensing Council has reversed its decision regarding the restriction which was to have been placed on the license for reopening Sacred Heart Hospital. The restriction would have required closing of the Garrett hospital when a new hospital was available for use in the county. A county memorial hospital is in the planning stage at the present time.

The change in the council's decision came when council members were polled to determine their attitude, at the request of Gov. Harold Handley's executive secretary, Robert Fink. The vote was 5 to 2 to eliminate the restrictive clause.

Other requirements were not removed and improvements are yet necessary to fulfill minimum requirements for a license.

The result of the council's reversal is that the Garrett non-profit hospital corporation is again functioning and is preparing to accept donations and pledges to finance opening of the hospital.

This action comes concurrent with the organizing of the DeKalb County Memorial Hospital Foundation's fund drive to build the proposed memorial hospital to serve the entire county.

Comets Nipped 42-39 By Waterloo In Overtime

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets fought a hard battle but lost in overtime 42-39 to the defending sectional champions, the Waterloo Wildcats, Friday night at Waterloo.

For four periods it looked like the Comets would pull an upset, but in the overtime everything went wrong. It was 37-all at the end of four periods so a 3 minute overtime period was added on. Riverdale went into a stall at the start and then lost the ball. Waterloo took possession and scored three points right away on a field goal and a foul shot. That made it 40 to 37 Waterloo. With 33 seconds left to play Jerry Dowden fouled out and Aubrey Griggs took his place. The score was 42-37. Riverdale got the ball a little later and Ronnie Smith made a field goal just before the buzzer sounded for the end of the game.

At the end of the first period it was tied up at 10-all with Tom McKown, Paul Friend and Jerry Dowden getting two points apiece and Ronnie Smith four.

At half time it was Waterloo 26 Riverdale 22. At the end of the third period the Comets were ahead 33 to 32.

In the fourth period the Comets got the tipoff and stalled for 45 seconds. Waterloo made a foul shot but the Comets came back with Orval Wallace getting a field goal. With 3:54 left Dowden fouled and Waterloo made the foul shot. Paul Friend then made a field goal with 1:35 left and the score was Comets 37 Wildcats 36. Waterloo later made a foul shot and the period ended at 37-all.

The "B" team left the Comets with some consolation by winning 29-26 in a thriller.

The Comets were behind 5-3 at the end of the first period. It was Riverdale 12 Waterloo 7 at the half, it was tied at 14 apiece at the end of three periods.

Steve Faehnrich led the "B" team in scoring.

COMET TALES—Some of the Riverdale firsts were: first points, Tom McKown; first rebound, Tom McKown. For the "B" team Jerry Munsey scored the first point. — The "B" team looked rusty at some times, at one time everyone went for a rebound about three times before anyone anyone could get it.—In the third period of the "B" game a referee went to blow his by the Asst. Sports Rep.

The Riverdale Comets blew a chance to win an overtime victory from Waterloo last Friday night. They controlled the ball for the last minute, had time to set themselves up for a scoring play in two time-out periods, then couldn't get anyone set for a good shot with 8 seconds to go. Waterloo then outscored the Comets 5 to 2 in the overtime to win 42-39.

The score was tied 10-10 at the end of the first quarter. Tom McKown got the first Riverdale points on a field goal. The second period found both teams occasionally exhibiting good play making and teamwork, one of Riverdale's examples being a pass-off from Orval Wallace to Jerry Dowden for a fielder. The half score was 26-22 Waterloo.

The game tightened up in the third period with Riverdale finally tying it at 30-30 with 2:50 to go in the period. Dowden put Riverdale ahead at the three-quarter mark 33-32.

The score see-sawed in the final period and ended at 37-all when the Comets couldn't get a play set up. Waterloo got a basket and a foul and another basket while Riverdale could score only on a fielder by Ronnie Smith as the game ended at 42-39.

The Riverdale reserves won 29-26 with the difference between victory and defeat spelled F-A-E-H-N-R-I-C-H. Steve Faehnrich entered the game in the second quarter with Riverdale trailing and his height quickly put the Comets in front. Until that time the Waterloo reserves were able to control rebounding with their hefty boys.

COMET C'NIPTIONS — The Waterloo reserves could be called the "beef trust." Three of their boys were about "five by five" and knew how to throw their weight around. — When it came time to bring on the varsity squads, the Waterloo rooters had a nice little presentation planned with the lights doused and the players to come thru a big hoop as they were introduced in the spotlight. But when the lights went out, so did the P.A. system and the gentleman who was the announcer had to give his lungs a good workout. — Some of the most anxious moments of the varsity game came just before the third period started when little Denny Miller came up

THE WILL TO LIVE

THE will to live is often a very real factor in recovery from serious illness.

Tenuous and ill-defined as it may appear, this will to live is recognized by physicians as a potent force.

All physicians grant that emotional factors are capable of altering body function resulting in changes of body tone, secretion, and blood vessels. These changes, if they persist, are bound to bring on structural changes in the organs.

It is reasonable to assume that an emotion can alter structure to the point where the organ ceases to function and death results. There are many phenomena to substantiate this belief. A man picks up a perfect hand of bridge or a royal flush in poker and falls dead. The physician correctly calls it cerebral hemorrhage, or he may give it the explicit and scientific name of hypertensive cardiovascular disease. Explanatory medical terms do not deny the man died of excitement of such intensity that his arteries, hardened and brittle with high blood pressure, burst and caused his death.

There are many tales having to do with the death of one member of an old and loving couple followed soon after by the death of the other. The popular conception is that the survivor died of a broken heart. This surmise is logical if not literal. It may be true that the surviving partner's will to live had ceased. Probably also, both individuals were reaching the end of their allotted span of life.

Rage, fear, fright, frustration, and the loss of the will to live are threats to peace of mind and potentially to life itself.

Indiana State Library

Library Facilities Subject Of County Study

At the invitation of the Board of Trustees of the Eckhart Public Library in Auburn, 15 library trustees and libarians, representing the four public libraries of DeKalb County, met at the library in Auburn October 17 to confer on common problems and to review the status of library service in the county as a whole.

Harold Stump, president of the Auburn Board, welcomed guests from Garrett, Butler and Waterloo, and after stating the purpose of the conference, called on Mrs. William Cooper to suggest a plan of procedure and lead an informal discussion.

Among the subjects brought up for discussion were: the relationship of school libraries to public libraries, cooperation between teachers and library staffs, the place of the township trustee in relation to library service, and the responsibilities of library trustees in promoting a more aggressive program.

Inherent in these various topics, as discussion progressed, was consideration of a library service map of Indiana as it relates to DeKalb County. This map was made several years ago following a state survey, and showed what was considered to be the unserviced townships all over the state.

The map showed six townships in DeKalb County, unserviced as far as library facilities are concerned. The six are Concord, Fairfield, Franklin, Richland, Smithfield and Spencer.

Although this conference had been under consideration for several months and specific plans for it were begun in September, it was noted that Federated Club Women of Saint Joe had recently been expressing similar concern for their own community. This was regarded as a promising and necessary step, for the reason that until citizens - parents, teachers, students, township trustees - in unserviced areas indicate a desire for better library service, the existing libraries are powerless to extend proper assistance.

DeKalb County, it was suggested, does not lend itself to a County Library Unit. Therefore, the alternatives were listed and considered. Inasmuch as there is no such thing as free library service, the relative merits of subscription fees and a tax levy were compared and the burden of choice was considered to be on the citizens of the townships needing and wanting the extended service.

By law the minimum levy is two cents, but costs indicate that no library can break even in such extension for less than a five cent levy. At present no township in the county pays more than a three cent rate, whereas the four towns and cities are taxed from a low of 16 cents to a high of 27 cents.

Further discussion on the point of subscriptions indicated that many families are not aware that the existing libraries offer service in untaxed areas for an annual fee ranging from one to four dollars.

The conferees decided that a strong and broad library promotion plan be implemented in DeKalb County and that citizens be asked to address inqulries and comments about the library situation to the librarians or trustees in care of any one of the four public libraries in the county.

A second county-wide conference will be held in January.

Ralph and Sue Waggoner returned recently from Los Angeles, California. They spent four weeks visiting his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Miller, and daughter, Madge, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Schemmer and son and the John Cook family.

The Spencerville Community Club met Thursday evening, November 10, at 7:30 p. m. at the Community Building. It was decided to extend the "donation" drive until December 8. On that evening at 7 o'clock a Christmas tree lighting will take place with children singing Christmas carols by the tree. This will be followed by a meeting of the club and a Christmas program in the hall. At the meeting last week the original committee of the hall, L. B. Fisher, William B. Erick, George B. Hart, Ernest Steward, Clifford VanZile, Merwood Rhoades, Elmer Smith, Vernon Kline, Melvin Howey and Charles High, were voted honorary membership in the Spencerville Community Club.

Saturday morning Miss Kathy Trout, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Rod Trout, had minor surgery at Defiance Hospital.

Miss Flora Renn who lived east of Spencerville for many years died last Saturday. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Ivan O. Miller with burial in White City Cemetery.

Mrs. Davey Doll submitted to surgery at Souder Hospital this week.

Mrs. Glenn J. Brendel and Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hollabaugh and Parks attended the funeral of Don Long Thursday of last week in Peru. Mr. Long was a former coach and science teacher in the Spencerville school.

DOG OWNERS, ATTENTION

Town Board Adopts Ordinance To Control Strays

In a move to protect the health and property of local citizens, the Town Board last week passed an ordinance providing for the elimination of stray and unattended dogs in the limits of the town of Saint Joe.

With the ever-present danger of the spread of rabies and infection of both human beings and pets belonging to the residents of the town, it was deemed necessary for public safety to provide facilities to take care of the problem.

A duly appointed officer will be incharge of carrying out the provisions of the ordinance which gives the officer the authority to "pick up and hold said (stray or unattended) dog and securely keep him or her as the case may be in a suitable box, kennel or place for the period of three days. After such roaming dog has been placed in said kennel, or box or other place for the keeping of such dogs, and within twelve (12) hours, a notice of the taking up of such dog shall be posted at the door of the Town Hall in the town of Saint Joe, Indiana, which notice shall reasonably describe such dog, when picked up, and when said dog will be disposed of if not taken up by its owner as hereinafter provided."

The ordinance provides that the owner of the dog has three days in which to claim his or her pet with a fee of $3.00 to be paid to the town clerk-treasurer. Subsequent pick ups of the same dog provide for the same procedure, posting of description, three days to claim, but the penalty then becomes $5.00 "after the first such taking up by the duly appointed officer."

The ordinance applies to dogs "of any kind roaming over the streets, alleys, or sidewalks of said town, or roaming over the property of any person not the owner of said dog." Dogs should, therefore, either be confined within the limits of the owners property or be under the owner's control when off the owner's property.

Further provisions of the ordinance give the officer the duty of disposing of unclaimed dogs "in any humane manner, proper and expedient, and the owner or claimant of such dog or dogs shall have no further rights in or to said dog or dogs."

Section 3 of the ordinance states: "It is hereby expressly ordained that the purpose of this ordinance is to eliminate the running at large of dogs within the Town of Saint Joe, Indiana, and more particularly to protect the lives of the citizens of said town and the private property within the town. This ordinance shall be carried out to that end and with as little expense to all parties concerned as possible."

A few years ago when at least one Saint Joe resident required medical care due to the threat of rabies, Saint Joe citizens cooperated in near perfect fashion and dogs were not seen roaming the streets as they had been. But as time has passed, the threat of disease and possible death has been forgotten to some extent. Thru this ordinance it is intended to keep a constant check on the possibility of a rabid dog entering the community and causing tragedy. The town board expresses its hope that townspeople will cooperate in this instance of protecting the public health and property.

Facilities are being provided for holding of stray dogs. The ordinance is now in effect.

TV - Bad Exposure

The other night I happened to see something on television which made me sick. Fortunately the "show" was presented at a late hour so the younger generation didn't view it in any great number (I hope). I am talking about a wrestling "show" involving a tag team match. "Bigtime Wrestling" they call it.

What made me sick was the sadistic satisfaction viewers were evidently supposed to enjoy at seeing not only the "villains" defeated by the "heroes" but also the continued pummeling, kicking, pounding, etc., which the "villains" received after they were obviously out of commission. The whole thing ended up with the supposed winning team arguing with the ring announcer about the decision, which was in doubt as far as I was concerned since I couldn't hear the sound. But it had appeared that the "heroes" had soundly trounced the bad boys.

Today's wrestling is for the most part taken as a big show by most people, though there appears to be some rather serious followers of the groaners. The faking that is done in today's wrestling matches can be seen many times by anyone with normal eyesight. And if we take it as a show and recognize the entertainment status the "sport" should hold, I don't imagine anyone is any the worse for watching such entertainment. But the younger generation gets ideas from wrestling shows just as they get ideas from westerns and dectective stories and murder mysteries. And they sometimes try what they have seen on television on their friends or brothers and sisters without realizing the dangers involved.

This isn't the only thing that is disturbing. Such sadistic beating up of even "villains" doesn't do the adult mind any good. We have a hard enough time keeping level heads as it is in this world without experiencing a sort of justified satisfaction at seeing a villainous, but helpless, human being (or at least a human being who is acting helpless) get kicked, slugged, beaten, thrown to the canvas, slugged, kicked, thrown to the canvas, etc., etc., etc., under the heading of "sport" and "entertainment."

With the memory that in the past year or so, in this country a helpless human being (the villain) was taken from a jail by a mob (the hero) who sought to carry out justice as they saw fit, their self-righteous justice including beating and "puncturing" his body with something, maybe bullets, then dumping the body in a river, it makes me sick to realize that somebody is making a living off the visual and pretended punishment of human beings in the guise of "entertainment," carrying with it at times the idea of administering "justice." Today we think "Tsk, tsk, how terrible" when remembering the days centuries ago when helpless human beings were thrown to the lions or when prisoners were forced to fight one another with swords to the death of one or the other at the whim of the crowd (thumbs up or thumbs down), for the satisfaction of the people of that time. What kind of bloodthirsty inhuman animals are we that physical punishment, real or implied, of any human beings can be justified by calling it "entertainment"?

The whole thing makes me sick.

Others say . . . .

NO LABELS PROTECT BUYER OF POLITICAL IDEAS

"The law," says a recent publication of the Small Business Administration, "recognizes the right of a buyer to know what he is getting for his money. It seeks to protect him from false and deceptive labeling and advertising."

The article from which this is quoted is entitled: "Are Your Textile Labels Legal?" It is written by a high official of the Federal Trade Commission with particular reference to the new Textile Fiber Products Identification Act, which "picks up where the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939 leaves off." The two together, it is emphasized, make very precise labeling mandatory for the entire field of textile products. The chairman of the FTC has announced that from now on, in this matter of labeling, "fraud and deliberate misrepresentation will not be tolerated at any stage."

Public acceptance of this further extension of governmental police power may be assumed. It certainly makes hay out of the common law doctrine of "caveat emptor" — "let the buyer beware." It is the seller who must now inform those innocent consumers who know nothing of the fibrous differences between, say, olefin and spandex. If headaches are multiplied for both manufacturers and merchandisers, that is scarcely more than both groups have by this time come to expect.

Possibly, even, some would argue for expansion of "the right of a buyer to know what he is getting for his money." If government is concerned with the ingredients in the shirt on your back, it might also claim to have an interest in the character of ideas in your head. There seems no good reason why the composition of textiles alone should be so closely scrutinized by officials. Why not also the synthetic elements in those political platforms between which the voters are now called upon to choose?

Under the new law, the FTC explains, "you may not describe a ladies blouse as being made of 65 per cent Dacron and 35 per cent cotton." The producer must insert the "generic name" for Dacron, which is a scientific accuracy impossible in the case of mental and moral characteristics. But that does not prevent dictatorial governments from labeling people as privileged or pariah solely on the basis of their submissiveness to those in power. So it is not at all fantastic to be somewhat apprehensive about the possible extension of our own labeling laws. Such anxiety is justified when one notes that officials empowered to crack down on misrepresentation in commerce are themselves not infrequently prone to promote a parallel misrepresentation in the field of politics.

Take, for illustration, the word "democracy," which official Washington so constantly yet wrongly uses to describe our form of government. As a political term, the noun signifies a governmental system in which there is no calculated obstruction to the triumph of the majority will, as expressed by freely elected representatives. In a democracy the majority will is assumed to be desirable and is therefore unimpeded by constitutional restraints.

Whether such a system is deemed good or bad, it is certainly not the one established for the United States. For in at least three major respects the power of the national legislature is, with us, intentionally circumscribed and limited.

In the first place, there are certain areas in which the Constitution specifically prohibits legislative action of any kind: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press. . ." Also, the Constitution limits the right of Congress to intervene in matters of strictly local concern: "The powers not delegated to the United States . . . are reserved to the states respectively. . ."Then the President is given a veto power over all legislation passed by Congress, requiring a two-thirds vote of both Houses to override.

It may further be noted that under our very undemocratic electoral system we have three times excluded from the Presidency the candidate who received the greatest number of popular votes.

These and other restrictions on the majority will are deliberate and intentional. The clearly expressed purpose of the founding fathers was to protect individual freedom and local self-government against the always potential tyranny of a national majority. So, while admitting that democracy is a seductive word, our early statesmen continually warned against use of that misnomer for the United States. In the words of President John Adams: "There never was a democracy that did not commit suicide."

Of course a federal republic cannot in fact be a political democracy because, by its very nature, a federation must keep local matters under control, regardless of national opinion on a controversial issue. Nevertheless it is now commonplace for government officials, sworn to uphold the Constitution, to describe the United States not only as socially democratic, which it happily is, but also as politically democratic, which it certainly is not. How can one properly use that term to describe a Senate that gives exactly equal representation to Nevada and New York, although the latter has some 60 times the population of the former?

NOVEMBER

0655

Even less democratic is the arrangement whereby the electoral vote, in this presidential election, will follow the unit rule, suggesting that some states are unanimously for Nixon and others the same for Kennedy.

So there is inconsistency, to say the least, between the punishment of misrepresentatioin in terms of products and the encouragement of it in terms of politics. The one form of falsehood is surely as injurious as the other. If officials are authorized to crack down on deception in the one case, they should be doubly careful not to practice deception themselves in the other. For explanation of the anomaly one must focus on the adjective "deliberate."

It is only against "deliberate misrepresentation" in the labeling of textiles that the FTC is at present moving. The parallel misrepresentation in calling our federal republic a democracy is seldom deliberate. Because power is most easily centralized and taken from the states in a democracy, some bureaucrats use the word with hopeful expectation that what we say we are we will eventually become. But for the most part the false label is carelessly attached, because it reads pleasantly and is mistakenly assumed to mean the opposite of dictatorship.

Inadequate schooling must be held responsible for the widespread acceptance of misrepresentation as to the nature of our governmental system. To read the American history textbooks now used in our schools is to realize that, for the most part, they pay almost no attention to the Constitution. The fact that one was adopted, at Philadelphia in 1787, is mentioned. But the student will look in vain for any adequate analysis of what was there argued and decided, or of the course of constitutional evolution since then.

There is an unconfirmable legend' that when the convention had finally completed its labors, old Benjamin Franklin, on leaving Independence Hall, was asked what form of government had been designed. To this the elder statesman is said to have replied: "A republic, if you can keep it."

What we know he said on that closing day, because it is in the convention records, was that the republic "can only end in despotism, as other forms have done before it, when the people have become so corrupt as to need despotic government."

Labeling laws arouse an uneasy feeling because they assume the corruption that brings despotic government. And these laws further enlarge the police power of officials who too often show themselves wholly ignorant of that principle of self-government which underlies the great achievements of the United States.

—Felix Morley ini "Nation's Business," November 1960.

SOCIAL DRINKING IS O.K.?

Dear Preacher:

You are so busy trying to tell other people how to live that you seem to forget that we live in a free country. You preach against social drinking, in which I see nothing wrong. In fact, as I write this letter I have before me a fifth of Scotch and I intend drinking a little during the course of this indictment. I'm here in the privacy of my own home, and I see nothing wrong in my drinking a little now and then. As I take my first drink, I feel better already. Nothing picks me up and settles my nerves more than a good drink of Scotch.

You preachers are always complaining about something and seem to delight in picking on the "social drinker." I just had my second drink of Skitch and I'm feeling better.

You would classify a decent citisen as a bum just because he will take a little drink now and then. Just to prove to you that I'm not a bum, I'm now goig to take another drink. My grandfather always kept a little whiskey around the old house. It neverrer humed himm. Are you trying to tell me that a gardson ough be better than his gunfather? I just took another won and I feleel better than my grofattherre ever felt.

I hop the days comes when all you preachers wake upp to the fack that lettle drink neverr hurps any body. And if you8ll quuit harppen on the soskial droncers you do a lot betterter for the chirch and commoonity. NEW APPROACH NEEDED

America today is facing tremendous economic problems. She is approaching her greatest crisis. Millions of American jobs are involved. The balance in foreign trade is involved. A balanced budget is involved. Our ability to continue to pay our high taxes is involved. In fact, the future of the nation is at stake in this grave internal problem. Yet it could be solved with the application of fairness and farsighted judgment within the industrial team—labor and management.

For many years America has been an exporting nation in steel, automobiles, sewing machines, clothing and so forth. In the past 40 years America has probably used more coal, oil, iron and gas than all mankind used in all the previous history of the world. While using these raw materials at this rapid rate America has probably created more liquid wealth than all mankind had created in all previous centuries. During the past decade our nation has created approximately 45 per cent of the world's total wealth.

But suddenly America finds herself in tremendous difficulties. For 30 years labor unions have continued to grow and to gain more and more strength, and some labor leaders have become tremendously powerflu. Labor unions during this time have been chiefly asking for one thing—higher wages and greater fringe benefits. Industry has worked hard to offset these raises in production costs by improving machinery. Today machines are doing about 95 per cent of all the work done in American industry—but now we seem to have reached a ceiling, and each wage boost pushes up the price of the products, making it harder and harder for our products to compete in the market place.

We find that our American industry today is unable to compete on the world markets in the very areas where we formerly had our greatest strength. We now are importing more steel than we export. We import four automobiles for every one we export. Approximately 80 per cent of barbed wire used in the nation now is imported. Our stores are stocked with a greater amount of foreign-made men's and women's clothing than American factories are exporting to the rest of the world.

The problem is getting worse. Foreign nations are beginning to realize they can invade our markets, all over the world and even right here in our own country. They are going after the business. If American labor and American industry can get together and understand one another and work with genunine cooperation and goodwill, this situation can be overcome. Many people, in good position to understand the facts, are certain that to cope with the situation, these actions are necessary:

1. Wholehearted cooperation between employers and employees.

2. A genuine desire on both sides to eliminate waste, to eliminate featherbedding, to obtain maximum production from existing machinery.

If these two key actions were taken, American industrial productivity, with the present work-force and present hours of work, would probably increase by 20 per cent over a two or three year period. This would mean we could regain home markets and world markets. It would mean we could provide adequate jobs for our American people. It would mean we could maintain the necessary trade balance to stop the exporting of American gold—which has become a very serious danger to our monetary stability. It would mean adequate prosperity to meet our high budget and our high taxes.

When one thinks of the 114-day strike in the steel industry last year, the recent railroad strike in Pennsylvania, one wonders if we are making any progress toward an understanding in this area. Our steel plants are operating at 50 per cent capacity. Our railroads are in real trouble. We must realize that America belongs to us all and our interests are wrapped up in maintaining our markets and keeping our industries going, and that good understanding between employers and employees is essential to this achievement.

Can we promote the new approach which will seek the general welfare of the whole nation and the productivity essential to maintain our markets thereby benefitting every segment of our population?

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

Basketball Round-up

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets lost to the Wolf Lake Wolves Friday 55 to 49 in a thrilling basketball game. Going into the last period it was 41 to 38 in favor of the Comets. Then the Wolves quickly tied it up and the Comets lost the game in the last period on bad passing.

In the first period the Comets were tied with Wolf Lake at 15 to 15 with Orval Wallace getting 5 points, Ronnie Smith 6 points and Jerry Dowden and Roger Cook 2 each.

At the half it was Riverdale 31 Wolf Lake 30 with Ronnie Smith and Jerry Dowden leading the attack. Ronnie and Jerry also led scoring in the third period. Dowden finished with 18 points and Smith had 21.

The reserves again gave the Comet fans some joy by winning 25 to 22 in a very close game. It was tied up at 8 all at the end of the first period. Steve Faehinrich came in in the second period and again meant the difference between victory and defeat although he was a little rusty. He led the team to a half time lead of 18 to 12. Wolf Lake battled back for a tie at the end of the third period. But the Comets scored some quick points and stalled near the end for the win.

COMET TALES— When Tom McKown gets out of school he can always get a job with a circus as a tumbler. He made a few backward somersaults and was on the floor a lot.— The main trouble with the varsity was that one man was frequently open under the basket for Wolf Lake with no Riverdale player around him. Another problem was passing. —Wolf Lake had a small cheering section but they had plenty of volume. — There were a lot of Riverdale fans at the game, and the school band played between games and at half time of the varsity game.

On Tuesday of last week the Comets were defeated by Churubusco at the Eagles' court, the varsity losing 65-44 with the reserves dropping a 49-24 decision.

Paul Friend was the Riverdale leader not only in scoring but in all around play. He made 11 free throws. Tom McKown was another leader in all around play along with Ronnie Smith and Orval Wallace.

The varsity now has an 0-3 record and the "B" team is 2-1.

The Comets will try for their first victory Friday night playing Hamilton in the new Hamilton gym.

Box scores of all Comet games to date follow:

Small Crowd Hears Nurse

A sparse group was present at the Riverdale P.T.A. meeting held Tuesday at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

The meeting opened appropriately with the president asking for suggestions on getting parents and patrons to attend P.T.A. meetings with those present offering their ideas.

A report by Mrs. Robert Davis, membership chairman, showed approximately 115 families holding membership in the P.T.A. with memberships not as yet all reported.

The treasury contains approximately $360.

Mrs. Esther Nessel, DeKalb County School Nurse, spoke to the group briefly on instilling good health habits in children, then demonstrating the equipment used in testing eyes and ears of county students. Kathy Akey served as the student for the demonstration.

It was announced that the December meeting will be presented by Mrs. Margaret Bacon of the Riverdale elementary faculty, demonstrating equipment acquired recently, used in her work in remedial reading. She will also have information of the success and results of the program which appear to be quite revealing.

A 4-way basketball tourney in December, falling on December 20 and 21, will possibly bring a change of date for the December meeting. December 20 is the third Tuesday conflicting with regular meeting night of the P.T.A.

Gertrude Collins

Funeral services were conducted Sunday for Mrs. Gertrude Collins, 72, of Saint Joe who died at 9:45 p.m. Thursday at her home. She had been stricken with a paralytic stroke.

Mrs. Collins had been in failing health for the past several years and in poor health for one year. A native of Van Wert County, Ohio, she was born August 26, 1888, daughter of the late Aaron and Emma Taylor.

Survivors are the husband, Wilbur Collins, a retired farmer; a brother, Van Taylor, of Van Wert County; and two sisters, Hattie Collins and Nora Durflinger of Van Wert County.

MYSTERY QUICKIE

by HARRISON KINGSLEY, Associate Editor "Official Detective Stories".

The two deaths came just three days apart. Lieutenant Rossini had no interest in the first—it wasn't unusual for a man in his late 60's to have a coronary occlusion—but eight deep knife wounds made the widow's death murder. Occurring on the day of the husband's funeral added a macabre touch.

Her body, wearing only underclothes, a robe and slippers, was found in her husband's den by the Reverend James Best, who was to have officiated at the husband's funeral. The murder weapon was one of a collection of hunting knives belonging to her husband. Found by police under the leather-upholstered divan was a jeweled lipstick.

The Lieutenant questioned the large group of relatives who had been present for the private funeral, then wandered into the den to study his notes.

R. Ralph Robinson, 68, retired contractor, had died intestate in General Hospital Friday, June 3, at 10:20 a.m. after collapsing while examining a new setter in his kennels. His wife, Elizabeth, the murdered woman, had insisted he be driven to the hospital immediately rather than wait for an ambulance.

The murdered woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Faust Robinson, 42, had been married to Robinson for eight months after being employed as his secretary for three years following the death of her first husband. She could bring no dowry to the union. She had been killed some time between 1:30 a.m., when the last of the relatives retired, and nine o'clock when her body was found.

The Lieutenant studied the relatives' names. All were suspects. Robinson had two sons and two daughters surviving. Also one sister and a number of nieces and nephews. Elizabeth had no children of her own but did have three step-sons and a step-daughter by her first marriage. Lieutenant Rossini frowned. All of Elizabeth's step-children had been adopted.

Robinson's blood relatives had assumed, perhaps naturally, that they would receive the bulk of the estate. No one had said this, but the Lieutenant knew it. Had Robinson not remarried there would have been no question of this. Now they could not be sure.

The Lieutenant looked at the spot where Elizabeth's body had been found with six stab wounds in the back and two in the breast. Obviously the wounds in the breast—one of which, according to the coroner, penetrated the heart—were enough to cause immediate death. The others had been inflicted afterwards—indicating an unusual degree of passion. To the Lieutenant such passion meant only one thing: the murder had been committed by a woman. The unnecessary viciousness was typical of a female killer. The lipstick found under the divan lent credence to this theory.

But which woman was the killer?

In addition to Robinson's sister and two daughters and Elizabeth's step-daughter, four of his nieces had been present for the funeral. That meant eight suspects, for all had opportunity to commit the crime.

Lieutenant Rossini studied the eight names for long minutes. Finally, he made a check beside one. He rose and looked into the hall where a patrolman waited.

"Find Mrs. Karen McDaniel," he said. "She's the murdered woman's step-daughter. Notify her she's under arrest for murder and will have to go to Headquarters with us."

Of the eight women who might have murdered Elizabeth Robinson, why was Lieutenant Rossini certain her step-daughter was the guilty one? Solution can be found elsewhere in this paper.

Letters to the Editor

303-3 Chome, Hyakunin Machi
Shinjuku Ku, Tokyo, Japan

October 24, 1960

Dear Ted,

The Saint Joe News arrived with the short note about Mom and Dad getting mixed up in Chicago traffic while coming to see us off at O'Hare Field. The sequel to that story is not too encouraging for those who try to meet tight schedules on the "scheduled" airlines. (But not so bad for those coming to see us off.)

The flight we took from Chicago to Phoenix was the only one of three that actually got off the ground according to schedule. From Phoenix to Los Angeles we had only one hour between flights to get on our plane for Japan. The plane developed a flat tire and we were delayed for a full hour. That situation looked pretty bad so we had American Airlines wire Japan Air Lines that we would be making a dash to catch our International Flight. As soon as we arrived in Los Angeles we contacted JAL only to find that their plane was still in Honolulu and was not expected in Los Angeles until sometime in the middle of the night. The AA clerk just laughed and said, "And everyone complains when we are a half-hour late." Japan Air Lines put us in a motel near the airport and finally got us on the plane 18 hours after the time we were to depart. We were to arrive in Tokyo at about 9:30 PM on Sept. 8 and did not actually get here until 3:30 PM on Sept. 9. So it goes. Just as we were putting down at Haneda in Tokyo the pilot announced quite proudly that we had just broken the speed record between Honolulu and Tokyo-7 hours and 11 minutes compared with 7 hours and 18 minutes, the record of a few days previous. Total flying time from Los Angeles was actually only 12 hours and 26 minutes--great, but what does it mean if you had an appointment on a very close scehdule? We did not! This was our destination, but many of the other passengers complained the whole trip through. I guess the conclusion one might reach is that 2 out of 3 times one could be late and still see the person he came to see off at the airport. The folks got in on the wrong end of the law of averages.

There are still some fellows from around home that get in and out of Japan with the U. S. Armed Forces. We have an open door and invitation for any of them who might have the inclination to come and visit us here. Anyone coming into the Tokyo area could call us at this number: 361-2419, and I will make arrangements to meet them; or direct them to our home.

It will cost a bit to send the News out this way, enclosed find enough to cover postage for a year, will send more later.

Greetings to the family from all of us.

Sincerely,
Bill and Doris
(Rev. and Mrs. William Billow)

ELECTRICITY helps create life's most treasured moments

Here's one of the prized pictures in the family album! Even in dreamland it looks as if Susie is enjoying the wonders of Hans Christian Andersen. The end of a perfect day, and electricity helped make it so. The lights, the cozy warmth, the good food, the clean clothes were just part of electricity's contribution. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

SOLUTION TO OFFICIAL DETECTIVE MYSTERY QUICKIE

Of all the relatives concerned, those on Robinson's side had nothing to gain by Elizabeth's death. The moment Robinson died intestate, Elizabeth inherited the widow's share of the estate. Her death would benefit only her step-children. Since the crime had almost certainly been committed by a woman, and there was only one step-daughter, Lieutenant Rossini had a simple choice.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our thanks and gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kees and the American Legion Post, also to others who helped us during Mr. Woodring's stay in the hospital. Our thanks, too, to Pastor Miller for spiritual and moral guidance.

Memorial Hospital Fund Boosted By Initial Pledges Totaling Over $350,000

Pledges totalling more than $350,000 in support of a campaign for the construction of a new 70-bed memorial hospital to serve residents of the DeKalb County hospital service area were announced this week by C. J. Maxton, general campaign chairman.

Sponsors of the three gifts which give a good start to the general fund-raising campaign are: William H. Willennar, $225,000 or more; the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Rieke, founders of the Rieke Metal Products Corporation (including Irvin H. Rieke, Glenn T. Rieke, Mahlon Rieke and Mrs. Ruth Kelly), $75,000; and the widow and family of the late Burr O. Fink, founder and former president of the Auburn Foundry (including Mrs. Burr O. Fink, Richard A. Fink, and Mrs. David Meeks), $75,000.

Mr. Willennar is a former Auburn industrialist and current chairman of the board of the Auburn State Bank. The Rieke family controls the Rieke Metal Products company while the Fink family is yet operating Auburn Foundry.

Mr. Maxton stated that more gifts of great significance to the campaign effort will be announced in the near future. The intensive area-wide visitations in the hospital building fund campaign are scheduled for January 9 thru 26. Organization of soliciting teams is now being carried out in preparation for the solicitation.

State authoritites have recommended that as much as $610,000 be provided for the project from a grant-in-aid from Hill-Burton funds to meet the estimated cost of $1.6 million.

A New hospital proposed for DeKalb County is pictured above in an architect's concept of a new voluntary non-profit 70-bed general hospital proposed for early completion following a building fund campaign now being organized to secure two-thirds of the $1.6 million minimum estimated cost for the new facility. One-third of the cost up to $610,000 is expected from Hill-Burton funds, according to area building and campaign program leaders.

Comets Drop 4th In Row

The Riverdale Comets lost their fourth straight game Friday night, losing to the Hamilton Marines 50 to 40.

The Comets took an early lead in the first period and it looked like maybe the Comets could win their first game of the season. But Hamilton had different plans.

Riverdale led by 12 to 9 at the end of one period with Ronnie Smith getting 4 points, Paul Friend 4, Jack Scott 2 and Jerry Dowden 2.

At the half it was tied up at 23 apiece.

Hamilton, with a height advantage, then began pulling away from the Comets with the score 39 to 34 Hamilton at the end of the third period.

In the fourth period the Comets managed only 6 points against 11 for Hamilton.

With 1 minute and 43 seconds left in the game Ronnie Smith fouled out and it was easy to see Hamilton had the game.

The reserve team lost in a thrilling game 29 to 27. They were behind 29-23 with the period about half over, but a lay-up by Jim Norris and a side shot by Aubrey Griggs made it 29 to 27 in favor of Hamilton and it stayed that way.

5 foot 8 inch Roger Smith had everybody talking about his long range shooting, one about a 40 footer or so just as the buzzer sounded at the end of the first half.

COMET TALES—Mr. Brookfield had 2 new starters for the Hamilton game, Norm Lothamer and Jack Scott. — A sign by the concession stand said that you could not take pop into the gym. This kind of spoiled the game, when you couldn't drink a coke and watch the game at the same time. But who would want to mess up that new gym with spilled cokes? — The Riverdale cheering section wasn't any too loud and mostly elementary students were in it at the end of the game. — Ronnie Smith was deadly with his jump shot and Paul Friend was shooting pretty good also. — Hamilton made a foul just as the buzzer sounded to end the game and Paul Friend had 2 shots coming. You would be surprised to see how many people stayed to watch him shoot them, although it made no difference as far as the winner was concerned. He made the second shot.

On This Day

(Permit me, please, to bring you something I wrote three years ago; I think it yet holds true, and ever shall.)

The turkey on the table, the bright and perhaps new clothes worn by members of the family as they gather around the table to enjoy the Thanksgiving dinner, the bright and perhaps also new autos parked outside the family home of Mom and Dad, the comforts and conveniences and luxuries which all enjoy as they gather together on a festive occasion, all these things themselves, each one, are reasons for Americans to be especially thankful. With the revelations of the past few weeks concerning exploration of the universe, indicating the progress of science, the frequent revelations of improved ways of doing things, the general advance in man's seeking out greater knowledge in all things, it is necessary to be thankful ever more and at the same time to be conscious of a greater need for wise use of this expanding book of knowledge called living.

It would be perhaps more convincing to the Almighty if men were more consistent in their thankfulness with more than a day's enjoyment of a big dinner and a bowed head to give brief thanks. These short times of reverent prayer, these special days which have come to be so signficant, actually become less significant in the light of our use of the things which have been placed in our hands. A highly spiritual life is not one which uses one day a week to be more thoughtful of Godly revelations, nor one which uses a few occasions throughout the year to be particularly reverent. A truly spiritual life is one which utilizes every living moment, as much as is humanly possible, to be an example of those high standards which have been given to man as representative of a God-fearing and God-loving individual.

If men and women, young and old, of this nation are really sincere in their thanksgiving, they will also use Sunday worship as a means of thanksgiving. They will use seven days a week as a means of thanksgiving. They will live as a means of thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving Food

The Pilgrim homemaker boiled and toiled for days to prepare for the first Thanksgiving dinner in 1621. But, thanks to methods of food preservation she never dreamed of, her modern sister can put a similar feast on the table in a matter of hours.

It was almost 200 years after Governor William Bradford decreed a day of thanksgiving that canning was invented. A candymaker named Nicolas Appert published the report of his invention in 1810, after collecting the prize of 12,000 francs that the French Government had offered for a method of preserving food for its troops.

Now the housewife can simply open a can of mincemeat, pumpkin or cranberry sauce - or any of the other foods that bring the yearly retail value of canned foods to approximately $4.5 billion.

Or, she can roast a frozen turkey and open a package of frozen corn, part of the $2 billion worth of frozen food that is produced annually, according to World Book Encyclopedia. The Pilgrims probably kept some foods on ice, but it was the mechanical refrigeration developed in the late 1800's and the quick-freezing process of Clarence Birdseye developed in the 1920's that made freezing an important means of food preservation.

In Thanksgiving dinners yet to come, the housewife may serve a freeze-dried turkey, one that has been quick-frozen and the moisture removed. Freeze-drying was used in the days of the Pilgrims but only for preserving biological specimens in the laboratory. Just a few decades ago, scientists began to apply this method to food. A shipment of freeze-dried food currently is nourishing the World Book Encyclopedia Scientific Expedition to the Himalaya, led by Sid Edmund Hillary.

Recently scientists have been experimenting with irradiation as a method of preserving food. If further experiments are successful, tomorrow's turkey dinner may be chock full of gamma rays.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Anyone know who belongs to a large black and white long haired dog with a 6-foot leash? Dick Roberts picked up the dog Sunday night on what is probably his first official act as the town's official dog control officer. Unless the owner has already picked up the dog, it is still being kept at Dick's and the owner can claim it there.

As an act of consideration and courtesy, Dick is starting his duties with the idea of returning loose dogs to their owners with a word of warning that the next time will bring a $3.00 charge under the town's new dog ordinance. Until dog owners "get used" to the ordinance, he's going to cooperate with them on loose dogs.

Speaking of dogs—

You just never know when our furniture dealer may go hog wild and customers get in on a good thing.

A couple of weeks ago Ed Halt said, "Them dogs has gotta go!" and he cleaned out a bunch of lamps from the store.

There were some people who got some pretty good "dogs," walking out of the store with $12, $15, $20 and higher lamps which they got for $2 and $5.

—you just have to be there at the right time, that's all.

I looked out the window a week or so ago and saw the sign in the Saint Joe Market window for a "smoked sausage" special and it occurred to me—

If we just had "smoked" cigarettes nobody'd have to worry about lung cancer.

It was calling it pretty close but just before the snow flew this week, the old pro with the grader blade, Abie McCann, got the main street into good shape. He smoothed things over after Glen Kinsey got the ball rolling with cleaning up of the piles of leaves along the street.

And it was good to see the bunch of helping hands pitching in Saturday to improve the looks of the town.

During some drain work last week, the portable pump owned by the town was pressed into service. On it appears the manufacturer's name - "Jaeger." The name reminded me that I haven't told you of an unusual teaching assignment which my sister and brother-in-law are fulfilling - and enjoying - for the 1960-61 year. It reminded me because they are in company with the Mr. Yeager whose family-company built the town's portable water pump, among other pieces of machinery.

I'll tell you all about their round-the-world year of teaching next week.

Fiction—

Phyllis Richmond asked for a small box of detergent as she was shopping. Bill Voirol handed her a package marked "Large."

"I'm afraid you didn't understand," Mrs. Richmond said. "I asked for a small box."

"That's right," said Bill. "It comes in three sizes—Large, Giant and Super. I gave you the small box—Large."

Scouts Conduct Cookie Sale

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop is sponsoring a Homemade Cookie Sale now until Saturday, December 17. The Scouts, through the cooperation of their mothers who are doing the baking, are now taking orders for plates of homemade cookies, two dozen per plate for $1.00. Those who wish to order cookies may do so by calling Saint Joe 2563 or 2585.

Orders taken now will be delivered Saturday, December 17.

The Scouts will also conduct a house-to-house canvass for receiving cookie orders.

The following boys appeared before a Court of Honor November 17 at the Legion Home in Saint Joe for Second Class Advancement:

Robert Arnett, Mike Beebe, Nick Carr, Bruce Holtzberg, Larry Kinsey, Terry Loucks, Laune Mason, Dennie Miller, Bob Smith, Leslie Strong and Larry Faehnrich.

Three others, John Stiver, Mike Loy and Dannie Kessler, were not present but will appear before the Court of Honor at a later date.

The Riverdale Comets lost their fifth straight game Wednesday of last week to the Leo Lions 64 to 43.

Despite the final score it was a hard fought basketball game with the Comets rallying from a 36 to 16 half time lead by Leo.

Midway through the last period the Comets were only 11 points behind at 50 to 39. But Leo put on a heavy scoring attack and won by 21 points.

In the third period the Comets outscored the Lions by 13 to 7, but Leo was the top scorer in the other periods.

For the Comets there were different leaders in different periods. In the first period it was Orval Wallace and Ronnie Smith, in the second Paul Friend, in the third everyone that played, and in the fourth Jerry Dowden.

Period scores were 17-10, 35-16, 42-29 and the final 64-43.

The reserve team lost 57 to 31 in a game in which the Comets just didn't have it.

Period scores were 15-9, 32-18, 41-26 and 57-31.

The next game for the Comets is at Salem Center on December 2.

The seventh grade defeated Butler 36 to 24 and the eighth grade won by 22 to 15 Tuesday at the Saint Joe gym.

COMET TALES — Riverdale fans sholudn't be too sad about the varsity's record because after 5 games last year the team had won only 1 game and finished the season with 11 wins against 9 losses.—The Leo teams were deadly with foul shots, seldom missing. — The 5 freshmen finally got into a game in the closing minutes. —It seemed strange that Leo, which now has a 4-0 record, didn't have nearly as many fans as Riverdale which is now 0-5.—Some of the Riverdale fans couldn't think of any reason why the Comets were losing so they blamed the referees.

CARE Food Crusade In Full Swing

Thanksgiving marked the start of intensive deliveries in the annual CARE Food Crusade according to Norman Ross, member of the Midwest CARE Committee. "The 1960 appeal," he said, "aims to send 4,225,000 packages to the hungry in 20 countries as personal food-for-peace gifts from Americans. Each parcel will bear the name and address of donors who give $1 per package to CARE, 1 South State Street, Chicago 3, Illinois."

Foods are mainly flour, milk powder and corn meal from U.S. stockpiles. However, CARE buys meat, margarine, rice and other items needed in various areas, then balances contents and weights accordingly. Typical packages provide 432 half-pints of milk for school lunches, or 21 to 26 lbs. of assorted foods for a family.

CARE's staff abroad will channel the gifts to refugees, disaster victims, undernourished children, the aged, jobless and sick in critical areas of Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Middle East.

Though peaked from Thanksgiving through Christmas, deliveries continue monthly as part of a year-long plan to bring U.S. surpluses to 13 1-2 million people in 27 countries. Host governments cover much of the costs. The food crusade alone will help feed over 3 1-2 million people for one to 12 months in the 20 countries.

Hospital Fund Leaps To $500,000

Funds subscribed for the erection of a new 70 bed general hospital to serve residents of the DeKalb County area have passed the $400,000 mark with the announcement of new subscriptions totaling $50,000 from two Butler firms, according to C.J. Maxton, general chairman of the DeKalb Memorial Hospital campaign organization.

One gift of $20,00 came from Maxton Motors, Inc., while the other of $30,000 came from Universal Tool & Stamping Co., Inc.

It was stated later, after the official announcement was made of the Maxton and Universal contributions, that the fund has actually swelled to over $500,000. No official announcement has been made of the sources of further contributions, however.

Mr. Maxton stated that the announcement of these gifts paves the way for campaign leaders to work to surpass the campaign's minimum $1,067,000 goal and strive for a final total of as much as $1,250,000 by the January 26, 1961, date set for completion of the campaign. Such an oversubscription would allow adequate funds to be set aside for operation of the hospital as a non-tax supported institution and provide funds for erection of the hospital as planned.

The organization of the fund raising campaign continues to progress. A meeting was held Tuesday night at the Chamber of Commerce building in Auburn attended by committee leaders, area leaders, township chairmen, division leaders and team captains. The number of workers now exceeds 400 with the enlistment of some 1,000 more volunteers planned prior to the beginning of an intensive area-wide campaign on January 9, 1961.

The Hospital - America At Work

A little over a year ago I wrote an opinion here concerning the movement to build a hospital in DeKalb County which reflected an apprceiation of the need for a local hospital but disagreement on the apparent theory that the hospital, if it was to be obtained at all, would be a tax-supported unit. I think a lot of people who were skeptical of the "county hospital" as then talked about now have their fears dispelled by the evolvement of the private hospital campaign as undertaken in DeKalb County. I remember that the late Dr. Hathaway stopped in at the News Office to talk about the matter and left information about state regulations, etc., which govern the operation of a hospital in the state of Indiana. He was not too happy with the way which appeared the only way at the time, the establishment of a tax-supported institution; but, as he expressed it, "If that is the only way it can be done, then that is the way we must do it." I have a hunch he would be very happy with the situation as it now stands, the hospital now in sight as a project undertaken through the efforts of private citizens to be maintained as a non-profit self-supporting unit. And I think he would be particularly pleased with the sizeable contributions by a few of our county families which have served as a "kick-off" in the solicitation for funds.

A good many people are being asked to help in raising over a million dollars for the construction of the memorial hospital. Those large donations mentioned above are a big help in meeting the financial requirements. But it will still also come down to the average citizen in the county to give his support in as large an amount as possible in order to meet the obligations as they now stand. A third of the cost will be met by federal funds; but this leaves over a million dollars for us to raise locally in the county. It can be done and I think it will be done because the project is now underway in the manner in which most people wanted it in the first place.

It is generally agreed that we need modern facilities to meet the demands of modern medicine. We expect modern medicine to offer us as much help and protection as is available no matter where we live. A fulfillment of this county need will come at the successful conclusion of the campaign to raise money to pay for something which DeKalb County citizens know they need. And the location of the hospital leaves nothing to be desired as far as convenience for residents in the entire county.

So, that means we have our work cut out for us. Within the next several weeks, there will be a lot of doorbells ringing, in fact there have been already as the campaign committee and township chairmen and division leaders and team captains recruit citizens all over the county to assist in the campaign. And the campaign has been given an assist by the option of contributing through pledges of one to three years. We may give a monetary gift outright at the present time. But we may also be able to give a larger contribution by spreading it over the one to three year period. This "mutual agreement" thereby eases the load on you and me and at the same time puts the hospital closer to its financial goal.

To me, the hospital project is a prime example of how Americans should be doing things for themselves. To be sure, there are federal funds involved; but before these are available, you and I must show our desire by assuming the major portion of the financial burden. If we want the hospital, we must go out and work for it; that is the way we know it ought to be.

MANAGEMENT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

(Editor's note: an indication of the trend of America's thinking and the reasons for some of the country's troubles are found in numbers, preceded by a dollar sign. Note the following from Nation's Business, November 1960.)

Here's defense spending in perspective:
All national security cost taxpayers $45.6 billion in fiscal '60.
That's down from $46.4 billion in '59, up from $44.1 billion in '58.
Outlay during year ahead is expected to go slightly above $46 billion.
Further increases are indicated by five-year look ahead.
Annual rate of about $51 billion can be expected by '65.

Big government spending increases come in nondefense programs.
Average increase in spending for defense has been about three per cent a year for past five years.
Nondefense expenditures have been going up about seven per cent a year for the same period.

Figures to keep in mind:
Federal spending has been going up an average of $2.7 billion a year for five years.
Of that amount:
Defense has been rising an average of $1.1 billion a year while nondefense has been going up about $1.6 billion a year.
Nondefense programs cost the taxpayers $23.8 billion (budget dollars) in '55.
Cost in '60 was about $31 billion.
By '65 they're expected to soar above $40 billion.
These are minimum estimates.
Total budget in '65 could be as high as $100 billion or more.

Do high taxes stunt economic growth?
Here's way to see for yourself.
Personal taxes will take an estimated $50 billion from Americans this year.
That's $29 billion higher than 1950.
Personal taxes today are up 140 per cent in 10 years.
Total personal income during same time has gone up 77 per cent.

Personal taxes 10 years ago took about nine per cent of total income.
This year taxes will take more than 12 per cent.

One reason personal tares are higher:
Social Security taxes have tripled for many employes.
Maximum social security tax was $44 in 1950.
Now the maximum is $144.

Would you invest $1 for a return of $14.50?
Many Americans have done so.
Here are the facts:
Man retiring this year at age 65 who has paid maximum social security since program began has paid $1,290 total tax.
He's expected to live 13 more years, collect benefits totaling $18,720.

Social Security taxes exceed income taxes for many families.
Worker with wife and two children and $3,150 annual income pays $94.50 social security tax.
That compares with $92 which he has to pay in federal income tax.

Look to the future for total impact of rising social security taxes.
These taxes now cost employe $144 on income of $4,800.
In 1969, taxes on same income will rise to $216.
Employer matches employe payments.
That means:
Social security taxes in 1969 will equal approximately nine per cent of this employe's income.

WE'RE RUNNING A PART-TIME BUSINESS

A businessman invests his money in property and equipment for the purpose of offering his product to the public. Once he has made this investment, he is primarily interested in operating his business in a manner that will afford him the best possible return from his investment. To do this, he operates his business 12 months of the year.

As taxpayers, we are investing our money in property and equipment for the purpose of offering a product for which there is great demand today. Yet, we operate this business only eight or nine months of the year. Are we getting the best return from our business?

We have invested millions of dollars in property and equipment for the purpose of offering an education to each generation. Yet, we operate this business on a part-time basis.

Let's face it: operation of schools today is big business, perhaps one of the biggest in this country. Operating budgets for the county schools, excluding Elkhart, Goshen and Nappanee, last year approached the million dollar mark. And with operation costs continuing to rise, the budgets for schools next year will be higher than ever before.

Yet, we expect to get a good return from this investment by operating this business on a part-time basis. To be more specific, a nine-month school actually has less than 180 working days for its pupils. This is less than half a year. How many businesses are open 180 days of the year and closed the rest of the time? This is what our schools are doing.

Educators themselves are beginning to wonder why schools are conducted on a part-time basis. History of the eight-month and nine-month school term starts with the one-room schools before the turn of the century. Many schools were open only three or four months of the year. This schedule was adopted to aid the farmers, whose school-age children were needed to help on the farms at that time. Not until after the depression of the 1930's did schools start to operate on an eight-month and nine-month basis.

Today we have the situation of not taking advantage of the full potential.

School buildings stand empty half the time, equipment stands idle, and teachers seek outside employment to help with the budget.

Educators are clamoring for more and more teachers and more and more classrooms, yet we are not using the full potential of those we have. An industrial firm will add an extra shift if the production schedule can't be met, in order to get more from the same equipment.

We believe the schools should be considered as a business and operated as such. Educators should be willing to forget the "professional" status to which they cling and concentrate on being good, sound businessmen.

Many problems involving curriculums, number of schools terms, and use of personnel would have to be solved. Our state universities could provide many of the answers to these matters.

If we, as taxpayers, are to earn the best return from our investment, we need to operate our schools like the big business they are.

—from the Wakarusa Tribune, as quoted in The Indiana Official.

A CHAT WITH THE EDITOR — Roderick Turnbull

Speaking at the Lafayette County, Missouri, annual Farm Bureau meeting last week, J. O. Lynn of Washington, got a smile when he referred to a Communist as a Socialist who is in a hurry. He didn't originate the phrase, but it was apropos to his discussion.

I assume you also could say a Socialist is a fellow who eventually will be a Communist.

One of my gripes against both Communists and Socialists, particularly the American species, is that so often, while they claim their ideal is to raise the standard of living of the masses, actually they are more interested in taking things away from those who have something. They'd never admit it but they get more pleasure out of hurting than helping. Ever notice how some people's solution to all problems is to take money from one group and give it to another?

It's always somebody else's money, too, not theirs.

The real way to help the masses, which is what we have done in America better than any other nation in the world, is to produce as much as possible and then see that everybody has an opportunity to utilize some of that production. If we should divide every dollar in the United States equally next year, but produce not one ounce of beef, we'd have an equal share of the cash, but no beef on the table.

In some of the poorer countries where distribution is terribly out of balance—a few rich at the top, and a great mass of poor below—I can see why communism has an appeal, even though I am convinced it is not the answer. But in any country where unfettered opportunity has produced as much as we have in the United States, I don't think there is much appeal in a plan to wreck the whole scheme of things. I am confident that a vast majority of the people of this country feel the same as I. This is something that I think Kruschchev fails to understand about the United States.

We may scrap at election time over whom we want to run the country but whoever we put at the helm, we expect him to stick with our Constitution. We know that four years later we'll have another scrap and look forward to it.

—from the Weekly Star Farmer, Kansas City, Missouri, passed along to The News by Allen Holman and Gary Hart, Riverdale FFA conventioners.

WHERE OUR MONEY GOES

When Karl Marx, the Socialist, proclaimed the doctrine of Communism a century ago, he contended that Capitalism "makes the rich richer and the poor poorer." He said it exploited the workers. He said only a few people could enjoy living under Capitalism. Marx, who could never hold a job and who dallied away his days in the London library while his children were starving to death, was a colossal fraud. His writings, glorified by dupes throughout the world, were classics of stupidity.

American Capitalism has proved this fact. Nowhere on earth in all history have so many people enjoyed such a high degree of economic well-being as have Americans under our private enterprise system. Every Saturday this fall 10 million Americans in stadiums throughout the nation are paying $4 to watch less than an hour of college football. Each spectator is spending about $1 to get to his game and about $1 for program and knickknacks during the melee. This is wonderful entertainment, and we can afford it! But the $6 is about half a week's salary for the Communists living under the Karl Marx socialistic economic system. He couldn't afford it. He couldn't afford a 25c football game.

Most of the people of the world do not know these facts about American Capitalism and Communism. The very first question that Russians ask American visitors to their land of Socialism is, "How much do you make in America?" Communist propaganda beamed to all the nations of the world carries the big lie - declaring that industrial employees, the wage earners in America, are poverty-stricken, exploited and starving under the heel of Capitalism. Our American information programs, designed to counteract this propaganda, are usually jammed and have not been effective.

And the truth is that not enough Americans themselves realize how equitably the wealth of America is distributed - on the basis of each person's contribution to production, distribution and service. Here are the facts.

During the last 25 years of American Capitalism our national income - everybody's income totaled up - was $5,206,780,000,000 - about five and a quarter trillion! Of this, the workers of America got 67 per cent; the professional men and women (lawyers, doctors, teachers, etc.) received 11.9 per cent; farmers 5.5 per cent; landlords (of rental housing) 3.2 per cent; stockholders in corporations 3.4 per cent; bond holders (investing money to build schools, etc.) 3.2 per cent; corporations 5.7 per cent (gross income).

The average wage in American industry today is $2.20 per hour. And the average family income is more than $6,000 a year. There are about 50 million families in America. Seventeen million, or 38 per cent, have incomes of from $3,000 to $6,000 a year. These two groups contain 84 per cent of the population. That leaves only 16 per cent with incomes under $3,000 and most of these are farm families whose cash income does not truly reflect their good living standard; and the millions of people on retirement incomes and pensions.

Three per cent of American families are in the $15,000 and above bracket. It is from this bracket that comes much of the adventure capital and investment money to build new manufacturing plants and start new businesses - creating new jobs and new products. If all the income in the $15,000 and above bracket, after taxes are paid, were divided evenly among the 175 million people in America, each would recive only a few cents a day. And the reservoir of investment capital would be destroyed.

The farms of America are owned by 25 million people. The houses of America are owned by 100 million. Our 50 million automobiles are owned by 40 million families. In one way or another approximately 100 million people own the wealth of America and most of the rest are children and youth.

So our wealth under American Capitalism is equitably distributed. While it isn't operating perfectly and isn't above constructive criticism, it still is the best system in the world. Let's keep its basic principles from eroding toward Socialism and Communism.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

Methodist Services

Revival services for the Methodist congregations at Concord, Norris Chapel, Rehobeth and Meese Chapel will begin December 4 and continue through December 11, according to an announcement by Rev. Harry McCrumm, pastor of the churches.

Dr. Herbert W. Byrne, Dean of Education of the Fort Wayne Bible College, will be conducting the seven-day Gospel crusade in the Methodist Pioneer parish. The schedule of services is as follows:

December 4-5—7:45 p.m. at Concord Church.

December 6-7—7:45 p.m. at Rehobeth Church.

December 8-9—7:45 p.m. at Meese Chapel.

December 11—11:00 a. m. and 7:45 p.m. at Norris Chapel.

Dr. Byrne is a Methodist pastor with over 12 years in the pastorate prior to his accepting the position at the college.

Special music will be presented during the services. On the evening of December 4 a group of Hawaiian students from the college will present several musical medleys.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Kenneth Baughman and Mrs. John Haiflich, the Junior Young People's Society of Concord, Rehobeth, Norris Chapel and Meese Chapel are sponsoring the appearance of Louise Haberstitch at Meese Chapel December 3 at 7:30 p. m. Miss Haberstitch is a missionary to the peoples of Australia. Her experiences as a missionary will be related.

The young people will present a program of special music during the service. Light refreshments will be served following the service.

In an unusual move, the congregations of Concord, Rehobeth, and Norris Chapel have voted to hold a joint Sunday School and morning worship service at the Concord Church. Rev. Harry McCrumm states that this is an opportunity for many people to gather into one church building in a spirit of Christian unity.

The service is set for the morning of December 4. Sunday School will start at 9:30 a. m. and the worship service at 10:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

The combined choirs of Concord and Norris will present a selection for the service. Ten Hawaiian students from the Fort Wayne Bible College will present several musical numbers, attired in native costume. The congregation of Meese Chapel has been invited to attend.

Group Votes To Reopen Garrett Hospital

With approximately 450 attending a public meeting in the Gala Theater, the Garrett community last week voted to continue plans to reopen Sacred Heart Hospital in that city.

Questions submitted by the crowd present were answered by the non-profit organization board organized to promote the opening of the hospital. At the conclusion of the 2-hour session, a show of hands indicated virtual unanimous agreement on proceeding with reopening plans. The board then voted unanimously to carry out the wishes of the public.

It was announced that the amount needed at once in order to get the hospital opened would be between $60,000 and $70,000. Indications are that a total goal of $250,000 will be set, part of which will be used to purchase the hospital outright.

The price of the hospital is $150,000, of which $25,000 is for the equipment and $125,000 for the property. The equipment is to be paid for immediately, under proposed plans, with a contract calling for monthly rental of $1,500 with an option to purchase the property any time during the next five years, rental payments then applying on the purchase price.

Representatives of the Avilla, LaOtto and Corunna communities were present to indicate interest in the reopening of Sacred Heart.

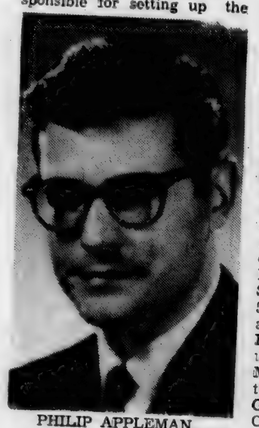
Around the Town

With the Editor

Last week I said I would tell you about that teaching assignment which sister Marge and her husband are enjoying this 1960-61 year.

The name "Jaeger" (pronounced "Yager") nudged me, as I said, because Karl Jaeger, a man in his early 30's, is responsible for setting up the



PHILIP APPLEMAN

International School of America. According to my brother-in-law, Phil, Karl got the idea while working on his master's thesis. Putting the idea into use, however, took something like five years. As a reminder, Karl is an heir to the Jaeger Machinery Construction Company, the name appearing on a piece of Saint Joe's equipment.

This unique school of study abroad is open to high school seniors and graduates. Cost of the round-the-world school year is around $4,600, or roughly $5,000 by the time you allow for incidentals. 18 cities are visited in all parts of the world. Class sessions are conducted oftentimes at the place which is being studied at that particular time. There are 20 students on the present tour, but I do not recall the number of instructors. Marge, who majored in French, is teaching that subject on the tour and Phil is instructor in the humanities course.

The biographical sketches of my relatives tells some things about them that even I didn't remember:

About Phil we read—

"Born in Kendallville, Indiana, Dr. Appleman received the Bachelor's degree from Northwestern University (1950: Phi Beta Kappa), the A. M. from the University of Michigan (1951), and the Ph. D. from Northwestern (1955).

"In 1944-45 Dr. Appleman was a pre-aviation cadet in the U.S. Army Air Force, serving as a physical training instructor, and in 1946 he enlisted in the U.S. Merchant Marine travelling to Cuba, Guatemala, and Honduras. In 1948-49 he made six Atlantic crossings with the Merchant Marine, visiting Greece, Italy, Spain and Germany. In 1951-52 he was a Fulbright Scholar to the University of Lyon, France. During the year and the following summer, he and Mrs. Appleman travelled extensively in France and in Germany, Austria, the Low Countries, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Algeria and the United Kingdom. In 1956 they visited most of these countries for the second time.

"Dr. Appleman taught for two years at Northwestern University as a Teaching Assistant in English before going to Indiana University as Instructor in English in 1955. Since 1958 he has been Assistant Professor of English at Indiana. In 1956 Dr. Appleman and two colleagues at Indiana University founded the scholarly quarterly, 'Victorian Studies,' which they continue to edit. He is also co-Editor and contributor to a recent book, '1859: Entering an Age of Crisis.' He has given a number of lectures to both public and professional groups in this country and abroad, is the author of poems and critical articles in literary magazines, and is contributing an article to a forthcoming volume on the relations of science and the humanities.

"Mrs. Appleman, born in Fort Wayne, Indiana, received the Bachelor's degree from Northwestern University in 1950 and the Master's degree in French from Indiana University in 1958. In 1948-49 she spent her junior year in Paris and received the Degre Superieur for the Cours de Civilisation francaise at the Sorbonne. During the year she travelled extensively throughout Europe. In 1951-52, having accompanied her husband to Lyon, France, she received the Certificat d'Etudes from the University of Lyon. She has taught in Michigan and Illinois elementary schools, in the high schools of Illinois and Indiana, and since 1955, in both the French and English Departments of Indiana University."

Right now the school is studying in New Delhi, India.

The itinerary is as follows:

Boston, Sept. 17-24.
New York, Sept. 24-Oct. 8.
Washington, D.C., Oct. 8-15.
Honolulu, Oct. 15-22.
Tokyo, Oct. 22-Nov. 2.
Kobe, Nov. 2-12.
Hongkong, Nov. 12-26.
Bangkok, Nov. 26-Dec. 8.
New Delhi, Dec. 8-23.
Cairo, Dec. 23-Jan. 15.
Istanbul, Jan. 15-28.
Athens, Jan. 28-Feb. 11.
Rome, Feb. 11-25.
Florence, Feb. 25-March 4.
Geneva, March 4-19.
Berlin, March 19-April 1.
Paris, April 1-22.
London, April 22-May 20.

So, that's part of the story of the round-the-world school. An article appeared in Life magazine last year about the school. If you would care to read it, stop in at the News Office.

Dick Roberts Is Dog Control Officer

Dick Roberts has officially been appointed dog control officer by the local town board. Duties of the officer consist of enforcing the regulations as established in the ordinance recently enacted for the control of stray dogs within the limits of the town.

Under the ordinance the officer has the duty to pick up any dogs found wandering the streets and alleys of the town or on any property not owned by the owner of the dog.

Dogs thus picked up will be kept for three days by the officer with a notice of such pick up to be posted at the door of the town hall. The owner may pick up his pet after payment of a $3.00 fee to the town clerk-rteasurer and presentation of a reecipt for that amount to the dog officer. The cost of reclaiming dogs is $5.00 after the first pick up.

Dogs not claimed within the three day period will be disposed of at the discretion of the officer, under terms of the ordinance.

The purpose of the ordinance is to protect the health of citizens and their valued pets, preventing the incidence and spread of rabies, and to protect private property.

For a limited time the officer is cooperating with the public in establishing terms of the ordinance by returning stray dogs to their owners without charge when the owners can be determined.

PTA Cancelled; Carnival-Supper Plans Continue

The December meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. has been cancelled due to the rush of the Christmas season.

Originally scheduled for its regular third Tuesday date, the meeting was changed to December 10. However, with Christmas programs in the rehearsal stage and other matters pending, the meeting was cancelled. There is a basketball tournament on the regular meeting night, and Tuesdays are rehearsal nights for the Christmas Choir Festival, and churches are preparing for their programs, etc., etc.

However, the busy season is not delaying plans for the Carnival and Supper planned by the P.T.A. for Saturday, January 21.

Virgil Smith and Walter Reinhart are co-chairmen of the event. The most important development thus far has been the appointment of Mrs. Harold Kagey as chairman of the supper which will be served at the elementary building in Spencerville as in the past.

The co-chairmen are presently working on other committee assignments.

Sale of supper tickets will be handled thru the schools as in the past, with prizes to be awarded in a ticket selling contest. Details will be announced at a later date.

Proceeds from the Carnival and Supper will be used to purchase books for elementary and high school buildings.

Another conflict with a basketball game appears on the third Tuesday of January, with the P.T.A. date tentatively changed to Tuesday, January 10.

What Price Glory

In Sunday School class a couple of weeks ago, we were talking about observing certain dates and commemorating certain events with holidays. By chance, I threw in the question, "What does the date November 11 mean?" One of the young ladies gave an answer which indicated November 11 had something to do with the second World War; the year 1945 was mentioned. Incidentally, there was only one answer volunteered. Now, I know that perhaps someone else had another answer and was just afraid to speak up, as everyone usually is when they are in a discussion group and are invited to ask questions or offer observations. But I had gotten the same general answer from another teen ager a week or so earlier, that November 11 had something to do with World War II. With the two answers as vague as they were, I got just a little disturbed and still am disturbed.

Perhaps it is making a mountain out of a mole hill. But I see something significant in the fact that at a time when the whole country has just observed a particular date, even to the extent that schools are dismissed for the day to observe that particular date, junior high and high school students didn't know what it was they were out of school for or why the date is particularly important. I just wonder how many adults remember what November 11 means in world history.

I think part of the confusion is due to an act of legislation which virtually destroyed the significance of November 11. When I was in school and for many years after, November 11 was Armistice Day, observed particularly to commemorate the date upon which firing ceased in World War I and that bloody conflict came to an end. But a few years ago Armistice Day was re-named "Veterans' Day" for some reason and November 11 now means nothing, in effect, except a day's vacation. What began as a day for patriotic observance of the end of the world's first major conflict, and incidentally as a reminder of the uselessness of warfare, now has become a general observance of a general patriotic duty which every American male faces as a citizen. I have all the respect anyone can have for the man who fulfills his duty serving in the armed forces. But the stealing of Armistice Day from the pages of history to use it for another purpose is, to me, a means of destroying whatever value the date might have in burning in the minds of our growing generation, as they read the pages of history, the terrible cost of physical might in solving the world's problems.

If we wonder sometimes how we get into some of the "messes" we do, it might be well to examine what we have been teaching (or failing to teach) not only in our schools but in our actions as citizens. I think it is quite understandable that teen agers don't know the significance of November 11 in history. The older generations haven't felt the date important enough to preserve. Apparently no one dared to say anything against changing the name of Armistice Day to Veterans' Day, because to question the observance of "Veterans' Day" would to some have been an unpatriotic act "against" the veterans of this country, even though a date of world significance was involved.

November 11 may be "Veterans' Day" on the books as it stands now. But with a lot of Americans, November 11 is "Armistice Day," it has been since 1918 and it always will be. November 11 puts the punctuation marks around the truthful statement: "No one ever wins a war."

Others say . . . .

(In a recent address before the Riverdale P. T.A., Judge Harold Stump quoted the following two articles.)

Ten Commandments For Parents, by Sam Levenson.

1. Thou shalt guard thy children in the home and on the street.
2. Thou shalt make thy home a sanctuary of love and devotion,
3. Thou shalt honor the teachers of thy children and teach thy children to honor them.
4. Thou shalt not condone the faults of thy children, through a misguided sense of loyalty.
5. Thou shalt teach thy children respect for the law and keep them from the companionship of children who indicate disrespect for law.
6. Thou shalt not lead thy child into temptation by providing him with the means thereof: to-wit, too much money, a car and adult privileges.
7. Thou shalt enforce decency in the dress of thy daughters and dignity in the dress of thy sons.
8. Thou shalt protect the morals of thy children from the indiscretions of youthful ardor and inexperience.
9. Thou shalt conduct thine own affairs in such a manner as to set an example worthy of imitation by thy children.
10. Thou shalt not permit thy children to bear arms except in the service of their country.

The following is a suggestion by Judge Philip B. Gilliam, juvenile judge of Denver:

"Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teen-ager: what can we do Where can we go? The answer is: go home!

"Hang the storm windows; paint the woodwork; rake the leaves; mow the lawn; shovel the snow; wash the car; learn to cook; scrub the floors; repair the sink; build a boat; get a job; help the minister, priest or rabbi; help the Red Cross, the Salvation Army; visit the sick; help the poor; study your lessons; and then when you're through - and not too tired - read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe you recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and talents and energy, so that no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again.

"In plain words, grow up. Quit being a cry-baby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like a man or a lady. You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibility your parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, helped, appealed, begged, excused, tolerated and denied themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit. This thy have done gladly, for you are their dearest treasure. But now, you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, thinking and requests.

"In Heaven's name, grow up and go home."

The next meeting, "Gentlemen's Evening," will be held December 14 at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kline at 6:30 p. m.

"Dreaming of castles and kings!"
ELECTRICITY helps create life's most treasured moments
Here's one of the prized pictures in the family album! Even in dreamland it looks as if Susie is enjoying the wonders of Hans Christian Andersen. The end of a perfect day, and electricity helped make it so. The lights, the cozy warmth, the good food, the clean clothes were just part of electricity's contribution. What else could possibly do so much, at any price? Yet electricity costs so little! You see, there's a quantity discount—the more electricity you use each month, the less it costs per kilowatthour. Truly the greatest bargain in your family budget!

Comets Win!

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets won their first game in six starts beating Salem Center 66 to 60 in a thrilling game at the Salem Center gym Friday.

The Comets, who fell behind 22 to 16 at the end of one period and were behind 37 to 30 at the half, rallied for the victory. In the third period the Comets started closing the gap and tied the Cardinals at 42 all with 1 minute and 30 seconds left in the period. At the end of the third period Salem Center had a one-point lead of 50 to 49.

To start the fourth quarter Tom McKown hit a foul shot to tie it up at 50 each. Salem Center bounced back to take the lead, but Rodger Cook hit 2 foul shots to tie it up again. The Cardinals again scored and with 4 minutes 50 seconds left Paul Friend knocked a jump ball to Cook who made a lay-up to knot the score. Jerry Dowden hit a field goal to make it 56 to 54 Riverdale with 2 minutse 27 seconds left to play. The fatal blow was struck when D. Emrick, Salem's tallest player, fouled out. No one had been able to guard him successfully. Salem Center tied it up, but Friend made 8 straight points while Salem made only 2 to give the Comets a 64 to 58 lead which they never gave up.

The "B" team lost 34 to 28 in a game of very good shooting by Salem Center. Wetzel Griggs, Rodger Cook and Steve Faehnrich kept the reserves in the game most of the way.

Period scores were 7-5, 16-9, 28-19 and 34-28.

The Comets play Woodlan in the latter's new gym Friday night.

COMET TALES—One of the most interesting parts of the game was when Salem Center asked for time out in the last period. A tall referee gave them time out but before they had moved 2 feet the short referee said, "No time out." After the refs "discussed" it for a while, Salem Center got its time out.— The Comets were playing on a floor which looked like it wasn't as big as the Saint Joe gym, and the seating capacity not as much because it really was crowded. —Toward the end of the game Ronnie Smith got a little mad at Salem Center players who tied him up and he began to clear the way with his elbows in the close quarters. He was given a technical on the play. The players were ALMOST as crowded as the spectators.

The Woodlan freshmen beat the Riverdale freshmen 37 to 20 last Thursday at Woodlan.

Town Business

The Town Board of Saint Joe met Monday for its regular session.

Also present at the meeting were Leon Kees, Dick Roberts, Glen Kinsey and Maurice Kline.

Mr. Kees presented a request from the local American Legion post for the use of the fire hall for a Legion-sponsored fish fry sometime in January. The board rejected the request because of the necessity of removing fire fighting equipment from the fire hall into freezing temperatures while the hall is being used.

Mr. Roberts discussed the duties and responsibilities he has assumed as dog control officer for the town. He reported that he is allowing a "beaking in" period for townspeople in picking up and returning dogs to their owners without penalty before enforcing the dog ordinance as established recently by the board.

Mr. Kline requested permission to investigate the proper procedure for establishing title to property adjacent to the local dairy which formerly was plotted as a street. The street was officially closed a few years ago. The board consented to the request.

Other business discussed included need for improvement of streets and alleys in addition to work already done this fall. It was noted that park plans would provide for greater public convenience with a shelter house and rest room facilities combined. Construction of a shelter or pavillion is anticipated next summer.

It was noted that it is the responsibility of the private citizen to put land or property in its original condition when repair or new construction is done involving town-owned or other privately-owned property.

A request from the county highway department for use of the town tractor in loading sand and salt for winter use was continued to a later date.

Glen Kinsey was given notice to continue with street and drainage repair and improvement. Such work has been in progress for the past few weeks.

The following bills were paid:

Glen Kinsey et al, street and drainage work $297.50; Bud Shockley, board member annual salary 75.00; Roy Bowser, annual salary 75.00; Ted Haberkorn, salary 75.00; Harvey Carr, clerk-treasurer salary 125.00; James Angelone, annual attorney fee 50.00; Willard Hurni, park materials 121.21; A.D. Inlow, gravel 25.00; Randall Balliett, care of town hall 2 mos. 30.00; Willard Hurni, tractor payment 113.97; Halt Hardware, water heater 32.70; Roy Eck, digging 32.00; Halt Hardware, supplies 11.40; Yeiser's Standard Service, tractor supplies 30.34; Indiana-Michigan Electric Co. service 3.26; General Telephone Co., service 9.10.

Waterworks disbursements included: Willard Hurni, salary 240.00; Mrs. Waldo Rosenbury, lease 60.00; Indiana-Michigan Electric Co., service 29.34.

SCHOOL BULLETIN NO. A
Hawaii, October 1960.

At this writing the International School of America has left Hawaii and is on the way to Tokyo. We have left the familiar comforts of home and are plunging into the unknown. What is to come now suddenly seems close, and even faintly alarming. We are in a mood of rising excitement.

This is the hour we have been preparing for during the weeks recently spent in the U. S. They were a necessary prelude. Since we first gathered in Cambridge, Mass., on September 16, we have set up and sustained a demanding academic program and we have developed our own identity as a school.

None of the faculty went around the world last year. They are new to the experience. And so, of course, are the students. There are eighteen of them this year - ten boys and eight girls - and they come from every part of the U. S. Three are making this their final year in high school. They are in effect transfer students who will graduate with their hometown high school class when they get back to the U. S. Most of the group have finished high school and are taking off a year before college to travel around the world with I.S.A. One student has actually finished his freshman year at college. Nearly all are honor students and all have proved by the record of their activities in school that they have the capacity to get the utmost benefit from the extraordinary experience that lies ahead of them.

We have one foreign student, just as we had last year. She is Masayo Yamayoto of Tokyo, and the only member of the group who is taking the thought of going to Japan calmly in stride.

The only member, that is, except Dr. Kazuo Kawai, the Japanese-born Professor of Political Science at Ohio State University, who is teaching the Social Science course. The group this year has the privilege of daily exposure to teaching of university caliber. Our teacher-student ratio of one to three is not likely to be matched by any other school in the country. Mrs. Kawai is our Dean of Women. Dr. Philip Appleman, Assistant Professor of English at Indiana University, is teaching the Humanities course. His wife, Marjorie, who has also taught at Indiana, is teaching French. Dr. Joan Rahn, our Biology teacher, comes to us from Osio State University.

The make-up of the faculty works out well geographically. Dr. Kawai is an authority on the East. Dr. Appleman and several other members of the staff have traveled and studied widely in Europe.

The most decisive advantaye we have this year is the benefit of last year's experience. We are no longer experimenters, out to prove that a school like I.S.A. can work and that global traveling and serious study can be successfully combined. The case for I.S.A. has been proved, even beyond expectation. The framework has been built and tested. All that remains is to improve and enrich our programs in every country we visit, paring down some and adding others, to extract the utmost from our journey.

For this reason it was especially valuable to have Karl Jaeger with us during our first four weeks in the U.S. He could tell us at first hand what happened last year, what programs were successful and should be repeated, and what programs needed changing. He was also a fund of practical advice on group travel, for instance on the advantages of cloth bags for carrying books, and of marking luggage with yellow tape for quick identification in crowded air termin-

New Barber To Build New Shop

Gerald Booher of Fort Wayne has purchased the Lena Meek property in Saint Joe and is currently negotiating for construction of a new barber shop on the property. The transaction came as the result of advertising for a barber in recent weeks by the local Booster Club with club secretary Eddie Halt and board member Maurice Kline providing Mr. Booher with information and assistance.

The building now standing on the property will be removed sometime in the future to make room for new construction.

Included in the transaction was the additional sale by Mr. Booher of 20 feet of the west side of his lot to D.W. Yeiser of Yeiser's Standard Service.

Mr. Booher is currently employed in a barber shop in Fort Wayne but plans to get the new building started shortly after the first of the year.

"The Common Man" - ???

The other night I heard one of our United States Senators use a phrase which has become a favorite of politicians whose party affiliation happens to be Democratic. The phrase is one which is particularly unfair because it contains implications; but it is also powerful. Democrats have capitalized on it since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt in the presidency. As far as I know he was the originator of the phrase in modern politics, or at least he is the one who made it s useage most significant. The phrase is - "the common man."

I don't know how many times I have heard that phrase, "the common man," used in recent years, but I am almost one hundred per cent certain that it has been used only by Democratic candidates and supporters. The other night it was used by a Democratic Senator who, in answer to a question about his opinions on foreign policy, said he thought we would be more successful in our foreign relations if we associated ourselves more with the interests of "the common man" in foreign nations.

I have no argument with his reasoning; upholding the interests of "the common man" would understandably bring greater support because there are so many "common" men. But I just wonder, what does he mean by "the common man"?

I give the late Mr. Roosevelt credit for a masterful bit of psychology in coining the phrase or extending its use, because he then associated himself not with particular party interests of only Democratic supporters but he associated himself with the "underdog" interests that every human being feels himself associated with, in one way or another. Every one of us feels that he is a "common man" because of the influence, wielded by someone else, which we seek to overcome in company with others, influence that we don't like. However, the appeal of "the common man" would seem to have lost its power today. When Mr. Roosevelt used it in the 30's, there was a deep depression and "the common man," the one suffering from the nation's depression, numbered in the millions. The appeal of "the common man" was in the conflict between the masses without money as against those with money. If we look at today's world, such a conflict is rather ludicrous, use of the phrase is almost indicative of blindness to actual conditions, because there are more "with" money today than there have ever been before. The average family today, compared with the average family a generation ago, is almost a "millionaire" family because of the advancement in technical knowledge which has brought modern comforts and conveniences, along with the advancement of the monetary return for an hour's labor. But we often overlook how well off we are because someone throws in that "common man" idea and we are once again back in the ranks of the sweat shop laborers, figuratively speaking, fighting to overcome the power wielded by those with money.

It was a good bit of psychology years ago and it is apparently still useful. I get tired of it, however, because the interests of "the common man," as this nation is concerned for "the common man," include the poorest laborer up to the wealthiest industrialist. Our concept of the rights and privileges of men ideally excludes consideration of how much money they may have individually. So, I am not only tired of hearing the phrase, it also irritates me because its users are appealing to the selfish nature of every man, appealing to the "underdog" nature that is in every human being in one form or another. Appealing to baser temptations does little to lift anyone to higher aspirations, does little to make for individual understanding of human problems.

When the Senator, the other night, mentioned that we should associate ourselves more with "the common man" in our foreign relations, I asked myself, for goodness sake, what in the world have we been associating ourselves with? Our purpose has been to promote freedom in the world, to bring greater understanding. There isn't anything closer to "the common man" than upholding and protecting, if not establishing, his freedom. How in the world can we associate ourselves more with "the common man" when we seek to promote UNIVERSAL freedom? The answer I get is that the Senator's use of the word was strictly politics; he has associated himself with the underdog, and you know how many of us underdogs there are.

The association with "the common man" with which the Democratic party has endowed itself is not an act which promotes understanding; it promotes misunderstanding. It is particularly eyebrow-raising that such an association has been so well accepted by a lot of American citizens inasmuch as we popularly think of "the common man" as being one of not too great means. The champions of "the common man" in Democratic Party promotions have been and are millionaires.

AMERICA'S COMPETITIVE STRUGGLE

One day recently the owner of a small hardware store in the outskirts of Cleveland drove his pickup truck to a warehouse in the big city's wholesale district. He wanted to buy 50 spools of barbed wire. On the loading platform he saw two stacks of barbed wire, one stack with several hundred spools, the other with only eight or ten. He approached the big stack of barbed wire. A shipping label showed that it had been manufactured in Dusseldorf, Germany. The small stack showed the brand name of a leading Cleveland steel mill.

The store owner examined the imported and the home-produced barbed wire. The quality was identical. Only the price was different. The barbed wire made in Desseldorf was $40 a ton cheaper than the Cleveland product; 20 per cent less per spool. The hardware merchant was amazed. He knew that the Dusseldorf barbed wire had traveled more than 3,000 miles. He shook his head in disbelief - and bought 50 spools of barbed wire made in Dusseldorf, Germany.

This episode could be duplicated in many American warehouses and stores. Cameras, made in Japan and Germany, transistor radios and other electronic equipment manufactured abroad, plywood, men's and women's clothing, typewriters, chinaware and an unending list of products made in foreign countries are jamming the showroom floors and shelves all over America. And they are taking away business from American manufacturers who cannot meet the price competition.

A midwestern company which has been in business for 58 years making fencing nails and wire, closed down one plant primarily because of its inability to meet foreign competition. Another steel mill which used to ship 25,000 tons of barbed wire sold only 220 tons in 1958. To the employees of these mills, foreign competition is a very real and pressing problem.

Not only are the foreign-made products taking away business in the domestic American market, they are taking away business in the world market. The most significant fact is that we are exporting jobs. It is simple arithmetic: when foreign-made goods are bought by Americans, we are supporting and creating jobs in foreign countries; and when American-made goods are left on the shelves because of their high prices, we are destroying jobs here in America.

Our basic trouble is that rising labor costs in America have pushed up prices so that our American goods are being priced out of the markets. There are other factors involved, but this is the big one. America's rising industrial productivity has not been passed along to reduce prices of our products. And yet, in Europe, Japan and some Asian nations competitive products are being made at much lower cost - so much lower that they can be shipped across oceans and still sold, at good profit, at considerably lower prices than the American product.

In recent months I have talked to many leading manufacturers about this problem. It is actually threatening the whole American enterprise system. These manufacturers tell me that we can catch up with foreign competition in a few years if production costs can be held in line. They have showed me their profit statements. On the average, American manufacturers are making less than six per cent profit on each sales dollar. If all this profit were to be cut out, many foreign-made products would still sell 15 to 20 per cent cheaper than American-made. So profits are not causing the difficulty.

DECEMBER

The solution to this problem which is jeopardizing the jobs of millions of Americans - and actually endangering the economic security of all of us - is for organized labor to take a clear, long-range view of what's happening, and then pitch in with our industrial management to regain our lost position in the world markets. Everybody's economic welfare then would gradually improve and we would overcome a grave danger to our whole economic system. Yes, genuine cooperation, with elimination of feather-bedding, without any cut in wages, and without longer hours.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

NIXON RESPONSIBLE FOR KENNEDY'S VICTORY

If Vice-President Nixon could run within one-half of one per cent of the popular vote for Senator Kennedy with his hands in his pockets, the fault and the blame for this defeat, and the implied additional danger of war and inflation, are Nixon's. As some of his friends observed to him soon after the first of his so-called debates with Kennedy, he was mincing around on his toes like Dewey in '44 and '48, and Kennedy was carrying the fight to him. He could and should have stood flat-footed and belted Kennedy with his party's treacherous and reckless responsibility for the rise of Soviet Russia, Red China and the Iron Curtain.

It was a terrible performance and Nixon has no excuse except, in my uncharitable opinion, the malady which ballplayers and fight managers call throat trouble. He choked up and tin-canned. So now the hope of the country rests in Congress, which almost continuously since 1933 has been a docile instrument of the Presidential will. The popular vote shows that every second voter in the country is opposed to Kennedy, many of them to the degree of absolute hatred for the heartless, personal nature which he revealed in his betrayal of Senator Joe McCarthy long after McCarthy's death, and in other ways.

Thus, Kennedy has no such "mandate" as Roosevelt assumed on the strength of the panicky and somewhat sullen vote which dispossessed President Hoover in 1933.

There were many idle breadwinners in 1932 including, be it always remembered, the usual proportion of ne'er-do-wells and incompetents who always make up a hard core of any emergency of unemployment. But there were also many Republicans or uncommitted voters then who would have voted Republican if Hoover had been frank enough to admit that prohibition had not only failed of its declared purpose but had brought upon the country a criminal condition which for the first time required the services of two national police forces, the FBI and the alcohol tax unit of the Treasury. We have never got the G-men and the T-men out of our hair and Congress has continued busily to pass laws which create additional opportunities for these and other such federal forces to intrade in criminal situations which normally would be the business of the state and municipal cops.

With roughly half of the population against him, this new President will proceed at the risk of his own political success if he has the effontery now to bid to the White House Frank Sinatra and the rather sinister band freely described by the knowing journalists of the Hollywood-Las Vegas axis as the rat pack. It will not take long to rally against the Kennedy family a solid element of citizens who, smugly or not, regard themselves as "decent" if the White House is given over to Bongo, Expresso and weird characters wearing Castrovian beards.

The connection here is wispy, for the only link between Kennedy and Sinatra is the marriage of Kennedy's sister, Pat, to a hitherto unknown or at best obscure Hollywood figure, sometimes an actor, named Peter Lawford. Lawford runs with Sinatra and company as any ambitious ham well might considering Sinatra's amazing control of the entertainment industry. But it was hardly necessary to line up Sinatra and others of his "pack" in actual groups with Kennedy and his mother at Los Angeles and there is a plain social commitment between the Presidential family circle and an element which ramifies into the underworlds of Las Vegas, Los Angeles, New York and Florida. It used to have a big chapter in Havana where Sinatra and his underworld friends, the Fischettis, raised historic hell for five days with Lucky Luciano.

There will be touch football on the White House lawn and other developments reminiscent of the days when Jimmy and Elliott were using the White House as a boiler room for their Kathleen Mavourneen loans and other pressures and the old lady and Anna were grinding the crank for dough in the sudden access of literary grace which descended on them with the election returns.

Jack Kennedy is such a notorious ingrate that he is bound to curdle the adulation of many.

—Westbrook Pegler in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

OPEN LETTER

(A copy of an open letter sent to all leading farm machinery manufacturers by John C. Raber, President of Indiana Farmers Union, December 6, 1960.)

Dear Sir:

The trade journals have indicated that despite recent reversals in the sale of farm machinery you intend to sustain or augment your advertising program in 1961.

This is as it should be but may I suggest that you do a thorough job of defining your problem before you invest your money. Your market, American farmer, is struggling to stay alive. The concept of individual capitalism in our rural areas is being choked to death by misunderstanding and abuse.

The family famer who is the backbone of your business is desperately in need of your product. He wants to buy, but first he needs your assistance to get a fair and equitable return for his labor and investment. We have a new President who wants to assist the farmer, not in a "give away" program but in a program of supply management that will insure a fair return for the farmer but he must first have the will of the people.

The effects of the farm problem have already been allowed to spread. Fifty-one of the nation's one hundred and fifty major markets in America have already been classified in the disaster area in unemployment. Much of the unemployment is originating in rural areas and little towns that survive on the farmers income. They in turn are not buying from the industrial areas where the warehouses are filling up with manufactured goods that are not selling.

Your advertising money could be of great assistance to sell your goods and at the same time inform the public of the problem that is facing the farmer. Your assistance in this way will help our new President in establishing an atmosphere of understanding that would allow our government the wherewithal to pass legislation which would save individual capitalism on the American farm and return to you a financially strong prospect for your goods and services.

More than 1,000 men and women of the hospital service area have agreed to serve as volunteer workers in the campaign organization and funds subscribed have surpassed the $500,000 mark.

Campaign leaders lauded the response of citizens of the DeKalb County area to the call for volunteer campaign workers. Leaders state that enlistments recorded to date amount to 70 per cent of predicted enlistment requirements. Mr. Maxton stated that every effort is being made to bring enlistments to the 1,400 mark before December 16.

The need is for this week and next in order to keep the campaign calendar up to date as the Christmas holiday season arrives.

During the past six weeks 29 women of the county have put in 476 hours of time without remuneration except the satisfaction of helping along this philanthropic enterprise which will serve all the people of this hospital service area.

Mrs. Bert Dickman of the Auburn Mobile Home Park has offered her excellent facilities for child care for those women who may need a babysitter in order to help with office work in the hospital campaign.

Comets Defeated

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets lost to the Woodlan Warriors Friday night 76 to 49.

The Comets fell behind 41 to 19 at the end of the second period and in the second half they were outscored only by 35 to 30.

Ronnie Smith led scoring for the Comets with 23 points followed by Jerry Dowden with 15.

The Comets main troubles were inaccurate shooting and inability to stop Scheiman who scored 15 points for Woodlan.

In the third period the Comets started to get some offensive punch with Ronnie Smith and Orval Wallace leading the scoring. In the 4th period Jerry Dowden began to hit scoring six points in that period.

Quarter scores were 17-9, 41-19, 58-32 and the final 76 to 49.

The reserves lost to Woodlan 50 to 32 in a game that was much like the varsity in that the reserves fell behind 15 to 1 at the quarter and 27 to 8 at the half.

In the third period Aubrey Griggs and Norm Lothamer led an attack in which the reserves scored as many points as they did in the whole first half. The score was 39 to 16.

The reserves scored 16 in the fourth period but by then it was too late. The reserves actually outscored the Warriors in the second half, 24 to 23.

The Comets have a busy week coming. They play Butler at Butler on Friday night and Arcola at New Haven Saturday, the latter being a game with one of the toughest teams in the area. On December 20 and 21 the Comets participate in a four-way tourney at Hamilton.

COMET TALES—Although the scoring wouldn't prove it, Tom McKown was one of the outstanding players in the game, getting many rebounds and passing out for many baskets by other players.—The Woodlan cheering section had a chant that kept the game in a peppy air.—Steve Faehnrich scored his first varsity point with a foul shot in the second period.—The Woodlan gym was a lot different from the Salem Center gym where it was crowded. At Woodlan a fourth of the seats weren't even set up and there still was plenty of room.

BOSTON

Boston, where we spent the first week of school, was the shakedown period for I.S.A. Here we got acquainted, and considered how well we would be getting along together in the future. In the homey atmosphere of the Brattle Inn, where I.S.A. had made its headquarters last year, the rules of the school and the practical procedures of traveling were promulgated. One of I.S.A.'s students from last year, now a Harvard freshman, described the wonders ahead with an air of genial superiority to a young and open-mouthed audience.

Classes began full blast, meeting as they did last year in Cambridge First Unitarian Church. Following last year's successful program, students had a full day of classes on Monday and Friday, leaving the middle of the week free for field trips, guest speakers and other special events. French was the only subject taught every day. This year we have two French sections, one for beginners and another for more advanced students. In both the emphasis is on spoken French. We want our students to feel at ease with the language by the time they get to France.

Boston is a home of learning and the cradle of American history. Here as elsewhere the field trips were intimately related to what the students learned in the classroom. Dr. Rahn's opening lectures on biology became more vivid when the group learned firsthand about the challenges of biological research in a tour of Harvard's biology laboratories and studied different special of plants in the Peabody Museum's world-famous collection of glass flowers. Dr. Appleman's introductory lectures on the meaning of the word "Humanities" gained special emphasis from a visit to Harvard's Widener library especially the rare book section, a repository of Humanities, where ancient and irreplaceable volumes are kept under constant air conditioning and humidity control.

Even more literally related was Dr. Kawai's lecture on our national purpose (based on Life magazine's series "The National Purpose") and an all-day field trip in and around Boston, during which the group explored the home of Paul Revere, passed the site of the Boston Massacre, and went aboard Old Ironsides, and drove out to see where the Minutemen fought at Lexington and Concord, first witnesses to a youthful national purpose.

One evening the whole school went downtown to Boston to see the play "A Raisin In the Sun," which last year won the Drama Critics Award: a fine piece of dramatic craftsmanship and, incidentally, an early opportunity for the school to consider the tragic contradictions of the race question.

And in the times between, the moments snatched here and there between excursions, and the hours of evening after curfew, came the inevitable tide of homework. If students had illusions that the approaching journey was a guided pleasure tour, they quickly lost them. It takes long and careful preparation for a trip like this, and the group found itself tackling a load of reading and study (see reading lists at the end of this bulletin) considerably more demanding than anything they had ever confronted in their previous year of school.

By the end of the week teachers and students felt that a sound pattern had been established for the school. After a farewell reception for local school and college officials, held in Harvard's faculty club, the school, singing and in high spirits, left by chartered bus in the midst of early morning for Logan Airport and New York. For the first time I.S.A. was on the move.

(To be continued)

(The list of books referred to in the above account, used by the students in this first phase of their travels, contains a total of 42 required texts! They have their work cut out for them.—Ed.)

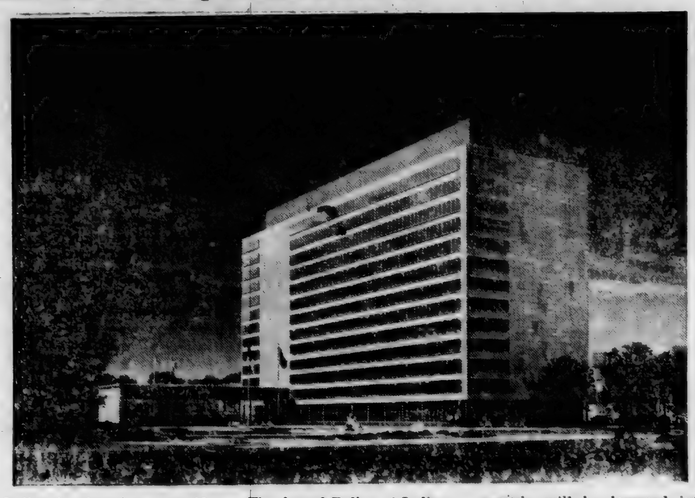
State Office Building Dedication Dec. 20



Indiana's gleaming new 13-story state office building will be officially dedicated in Indianapolis Tuesday, December 20 at 10 a.m.

Participants in the dedecation ceremony will include Governor Harold W. Handley, Lieutenant-Governor Crawford F. Parker, member of the state office building commission, builders and designers of the new $25 million structure and civic leaders. The ceremony will be staged in the lobby and on the plaza of the new building.

The famed Belles of Indiana, popular Indiana University all-girls singing group, directed by Prof. Eugene Bayless of the I.U. School of Music, will provide a musical backdrop.

An open house, featuring conducted tours of the new building, will be held until 5 p.m.

Constructed principally of Indiana limestone with 2,000 windows of heat - resistant glass, the new office building will be more than 50 per cent occupied by the dedication date.

A stainless steel sealed time capsule will be lowered into a vault in the center of the floor during the dedication ceremony. Included in the contents of the capsule will be records pertaining to the construction of the building including copies of Indiana newspapers carrying accounts of the dedication. The Saint Joe News has been requested to forward a copy of this issue to be placed in the capsule.

The capsule will then be opened July 1, 1988, the date of maturity for the last series of Revenue Debenture Bonds sold to finance the building.

Dear Ted-

We are having a fine time here in Redlands. The weather is really beautiful - with temperatures of 65 and 75 degrees in the daytime but the nights are cool. We can hardly realize that it's winter.

There are roses, pansies and many other flowers in bloom and everything is nice and green.

We want to wish everyone back home a very Merry Christmas with love and best wishes for health and happiness till we return.

Ouch!

The average Hoosier taxpayer will work the equivalent of 112 days in 1961 for the tax collector - eight days more than he did in 1960.

That was the report of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce this week as it issued its new, 1961 "Indiana Tax Calendar" with reminder of dates on federal, state and local taxes. A copy of the calendar is on display at the News Office.

The 112 days will mean it will be April 23 before Hoosiers "start earning" for themselves. This compares with an April 14 date, or 104 days of earning to pay taxes in 1960.

The April 23 date was set out on the Tax Calendar with this notation: "Approximately 30.7 per cent of the total personal income of individuals goes to meet total federal, state and local tax bills in Indiana. On this basis on the average, income for 112 days of the year is required to meet tax costs."

Those 112 days of earning to pay taxes will include 78 days, federal; 16 days, state; and 18 days, local governments.

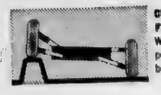
THEY WORK HARDER BECAUSE THEY RIDE EASIER!

CHEVROLET

Because they ride easier they last longer, too. They take better care of payloads and they make a long day's work a lot more pleasant for the driver. All that—primarily because of Independent Front Suspension (I.F.S.). If you think it's stretching a point to attribute that many advantages to a suspension system, you haven't driven a new Chevy with I.F.S. Take the wheel and feel its road-leveling ride, its almost total absence of shimmy and wheel fight, its ease of steering even in the big rigs. Spend hours behind the wheel and you're not nearly as tired. You're not and neither is the truck. That independent suspension soaks up the worst shock and vibration—the kind that can twist sheet metal and loosen joints and increase your maintenance costs. That's why Chevy trucks keep on working and saving for extra thousands of miles.

I-beam type front axle. A stiff-beam design that transmits road shock right through the truck.



Chevy Independent Front Suspension. Wheels flex independently, minimize body wear and tear.

Letter to Santa Claus

Dear Santa Claus: There's folks who say
That you do not exist,
That you're the children's fantasy,
And too these folks insist
That children are the only ones
Who still believe in you -
I'm writing this Dear Santa Claus
To tell you that's not true.

When people reach a certain age
With wisdom most naive,
They say, "There is no Santa Claus
That stuff I don't believe -
He's just a man in masquerade
Who plays a chosen part" -
Oh, foolish folks, they do not know
You live in every heart!

It's plain to see they're getting old
When they say you're a bluff,
But Santa Claus I still believe,
So I'm not old enough.
I know you come on Christmas Eve
With bells and rain-deer team,
When I'm so old I scoff at you
I'll be too old to dream.

For let me tell you Santa Claus
A bit of solemn truth,
The folks who say you don't exist
Have lost their grip on youth.
Their number's coming up - they're old,
If they'd stay young and smart,
They'll keep alive their faith in you
Who lives in every heart!

On Christmas day we celebrate
The birthday of a King,
Who came to this old sorry earth
Great peace and joy to bring.
Then gifts were brought by wise men three -
A Star shone from above
To guide them to the manger babe,
To leave their gifts of love.

Two thousand years have gone since then
And ages passed away,
Still gifts we bring to those we love
On every Christmas day.
God loved the world, so gave His Son,
"Love suffers long - is kind."
If they say there's no Santa Claus
Then they've left love behind.

They celebrate God's gift to man,
By giving gifts because
They love someone - they call it Love
I call it Santa Claus.
And still they say you're just a man
Who plays a chosen part -
Oh, foolish folks, they do not know
You live in every heart!

—Gertrude Borthwick

Tale Of A Tree— And A Car

Horse-play with a pop bottle brought injuries to two brothers in an auto accident west of Saint Joe last week.

Steve and Larry Faehnrich, 16 and 11 years of age, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Faehnrich of R1, Spencerville, were involved in an accident Wednesday of last week when the younger boy, riding in the rear of the Faehnrich 1959 Chevrolet, distracted his brother's attention as the latter drove past the conservation club grounds. Steve turned around to admonish his brother and when he turned his attention to the road, the car was headed for a big oak tree, the only tree along that portion of the road. The car skidded after leaving the berm and traveled 50 feet before slamming into the tree. The car was demolished.

Steve suffered bruises and cuts on his head, a laceration on a finger on his left hand and other minor lacerations and bruises. Larry received a cut on the left leg, bruises and shock.

Recreation Schedule

Glenn Moore, president of the Spencerville Community Club, has announced that the community building will have a slightly altered schedule for the holidays.

There will be no roller skating Saturday or Sunday, December 24 and 25. There will be skating next week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Basketball and other recreation will be scheduled for Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, 2:00 to 4:00 p.m.

There will be no charge for skating.

Participants in basketball and other recreation must wear gym shoes or be in stocking feet to play on the floor.

Carols From the Sky

"Carols From the Sky," two half-hour interludes of Christmas music, are being presented during the Christmas season over the public address system in the tower of St. Mark Lutheran Church.

The programs of "live music," familiar Christmas carols and other appropriate religious music, are being played on the church organ for the pleasure of Saint Joe residents and shoppers. The half-hour interludes run from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. and 5:30 to 6:00 p.m. daily.

Recorded music will be used to augment the organ presentations.

Nellie Richards

Funeral services were held Friday for Mrs. Nellie J. Richards, 71, wife of R. E. Richards of Newville. Mrs. Richards suffered a sudden cerebral homerrhage while visiting in Saint Joe Tuesday of last week. She was rushed to Souder Hospital where she died Tuesday night. She was the mother of Mrs. Esther Coburn and Mrs. May Ervin of Saint Joe.

Mrs. Richards was born at Orland October 16, 1889, the daughter of the late George and Hester Jennings of Warner. She married Mr. Richards in 1912 and the couple resided a mile and one-half northeast of Newville for the past 44 years.

Survivors include the husband; a third daughter, Miss Anna Richards of Fort Wayne; and two sons, William and Russell Richards, both at home.

Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiated at the funeral and burial was in Riverside Cemtery at Saint Joe.

NEW YORK

In New York the group was initiated into the special feature of the I.S.A. - the experience of living with families. Our hosts were families belonging to the Riverdale chapter of the UN Association, and for the full term of our two-week visit to New York our students and staff enjoyed their hospitality in the comfortable homes of this tree-shaded oasis on the fringe of the Bronx. Classroom space was provided for us at Christ Church in Riverdale through the good offices of the Riverdale Neighborhood School, I.S.A.'s official headquarters in New York.

We found the city in the midst of its greatest excitement in years. Most of the leaders of Iron Curtain and neutral countries were in town. Krushchev was trying to take the UN by storm with almost daily tantrums in the General Assembly, and wherever our students went they ran into police cordons and motorcades of black Fleetwoods, sirens wailing, whisking delegates from place to place. With the spotlight turned on the UN, it was impossible for us to get into the buildings to attend a UN session as we had planned, and we had to content ourselves with a briefing by the U.S. Mission to the UN. Still, the daily drama enacted in the city streets and described in the newspapers brought the realities of the Cold War closer to the students who spent as much free time as they could watching on television the debates in the UN Assembly chamber.

All the international brouhaha did not distract us from studying some of the other aspects of life in this fascinating city. Primed by readings in Packard, Gerbner and Spectorsky, the group toured the offices of the new TIME-LIFE Building and took on a panel of top editors of both magazines in an exhilarating rough-and-tumble debate on the meaning of responsible journalism. Later on they visited the plush offices of Cunningham and Walsh, one of New York's top advertising agencies, where they had a chance to throw their questions at a group of admen.

Field trips took us to the Bronx Zoo to see one of the largest zoological collections in the world, and to the Museum of Natural History. One morning the school plunged into the heart of the Wall Street business district to hear an officer of the Chase Manhattan Bank discuss finance and trade.

The sociological problems of a big city - minorities, race prejudice and delinquency - got special attention. James Baffman, a Negro teacher from a New York public school, came up to Riverdale to talk to the students from a personal point of view the problems of being a member of a racial minority. One rainy morning the entire school took the subway downtown to spend the day in classes at a big city public high school. Most of the pupils were either Puerto Rican or colored and the school had the reputation of being a blackboard jungle. We half expected to be mugged on sight, but we were agreeably surprised to discover that the students were well mannered and that the school was fairly and efficiently run by an able and dedicated administrator who took us on a personally conducted tour of his school and saw to it that our students sat in on classes they wanted most to see. Later that same week we plunged once again into the lower depths to watch petty thieves, gamblers and pimps arraigned before Magistrates Court in the Justice Building, a side of reality that our students had scarcely imagined even existed.

Few of our students had ever been in New York City, and learning to go from place to place without getting lost was an educational experience which would be useful in the future. Travelling downtown daily from Riverdale was quite a project in itself, and many a student found himself at one time or another on the wrong subway, and traveling in the wrong direction. But in spite of these frustrations, the group managed to see a large part of the city - first in an organized tour which took place right at the outset of the New York visit, and subsequently on their own.

Our two-week sojourn was now over, too soon to do more than scratch the surface of the city, and early one sunny Saturday morning we waved an affectionate goodbye to our hosts in front of the Riverdale school and left by bus for LaGuardia and Washington, D.C.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington, D.C., was a final compact week to prepare us for our first leap abroad. This time we were back together in a hotel, as we had been in Cambridge. Classroom space was placed at our disposal by an indulgent management, with the result that we could start classes an hour earlier in the morning, and be finished with them soon after lunch. This freed the students for independent sightseeing during the afternoons.

We only had three days for field trips in Washington, but we crowded at least two weeks' worth of work into them. As usual we started with a tour of the city, visiting the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington, then the U.S. Capitol, and afterwards the Supreme Court, where we tiptoed into the midst of a case. Quite a contrast here to the roughshod routine of New York City Magistrates' Court. Other items included a morning at AFL-CIO Headquarters, where Union officials presented the case for labor. One morning Dr. Rahn took the group to the Armed Forces Medical Museum to show them the exhibits on tropical diseases - a useful undertaking as we will be spending some weeks in the tropics.

In the crowed schedule of New York we had not found time for a group visit to an art museum. Some of us made up for the omission in Washington by spending part of the day in the National Gallery, admiring especially the famous Rembrandt and Italian Renaissance paintings in the collection.

The high point of the stay, however, was a special briefing laid on for us by the State Department, following a morning tour of the U.S. Information Agency. In Secretary of State Herter's conference room in the State Department building, seated around the long polished table, we listened to a series of experts discuss the areas of their specialty - the Far East, India and Egypt, the Near East, Europe, Great Britain - in concentrated capsule lectures which left us exhausted but enlightened.

The last thing we did before leaving was to hold a lengthy and informal conference of students and teachers to discuss all the things we had seen and done in the U.S., to raise and try to answer questions and to make coherent sense out of many separate and disconnected experiences. The experiment was successful, and we will hold a conference like this periodically.

The week hurried past, and before we realized it we were aloft in a giant PanAm jet rushing westwards six miles high in the air. Hours later we touched down in San Francisco for a two-hour layover, and then another jet carried us further westward, over the Pacific toward the Hawaiian Islands. It was only a little past eight o'clock in the evening when the big plane reached a standstill on the landing strip, but after one in the morning, Washington, D. C., time, the time all of us were still living in. Somewhat groggily we stumbled down the ramp. A moist warm breeze greeted us, laden with the heavy scent of tropical flowers. Under the dark sky palm trees stirred against the runway floodlights. We looked down into a sea of smiling faces - our host families had come to the airport to greet us - and a moment later we were wreathed with garlands and led away through the perfumed night.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

PANIC

PAN, the god of flocks and patron of shepherds, delighted in causing sudden fear among men and animals. Such a disturbance is known as a panic.

Mental hygienists and psychiatrists insist that healthy persons do not panic suddenly. Panic, these men claim, only follows a prolonged state of tension, worry and insecurity.

The problem of civilian panic, in the event of an atomic bomb attack, has been considered by civil defense authorities.

Panic generally is not inevitable. Man is possibly better able to withstand shock, air raids and other such actual dangers than he is given credit for.

In World Wars I and II, psychiatrists and psychologists were prepared for widespread panic in bombed cities. But these never took place and oddly, a number of neurotics and maladjusted persons were not affected adversely by the bombings in European cities. Epileptics did not display any increase in seizures during bombings.

Children and adults alike have shown a surprising capacity for coping with fear.

Immunity to panic depends upon one's entire make-up, his whole pattern of living, physical, emotional and social.

The first step in the promotion of emotional health is to appreciate the fact that man has the capacity to meet considerable danger and shock without going to pieces.

It is medicine's responsibility, through mental hygiene and psychiatry and psychoanalysis, to guide in recognizing and fostering those factors that make for a healthful balance in living.

Comets Defeated

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets lost a thrilling game to the Butler Windmills Friday night, 52-49.

With Orval Wallace and Ronnie Lake leading a two-man scoring attack in the first period, the Comets were behind only 15 to 12. In the second period the Comets fell behind six points at 29 to 23. They dropped behind 12 points at 46-34 in the third period. Then in the final quarter Riverdale caught fire midway through the period and outscored the Windmills 15 to 6. But as is often the case, the Comets caught fire when it was too late.

In the first period the Comets grabbed a quick 8 to 2 lead midway in the period. But Butler started hitting their shots and when the period ended the Comets were 3 points behind.

In the third period the Comets started to miss their shots and Butler kept hitting as the Comets were outscored 17 to 11.

In the fourth period Jack Scott hit a shot in close, Paul Friend made a foul shot, Ronnie Smith 2 foul shots to make it 48-39 Butler. Butler then came back with 3 points to make it 51-39. Paul Friend hit 2 field goals and Tom McKown 1 to made it 51-45. As time ran out Butler made a foul shot for their final point and the Comets were defeated.

The "B" team lost 38-23. After being behind only 16-14 at the half the Comets managed only 9 points in the second half while Butler scored 22.

COMET TALES — The "B" team is getting fewer players every game. When the season started 5 freshmen were on the team and now there are only one or two.—The Comet players tempers rose pretty high in the games and on several occasions they came close to getting a technical foul. — The cheering block was opened to the whole school and it increased the cheering a little in volume.

The Riverdale Comets stayed with the Arcola Aces for most of the way but lost in a thrilling game 82 to 64 Saturday night at the New Haven gym.

Despite Arcola's winning margin of 18 points, the underdog Comets made a game of it by keeping within 12 points most of the way.

At the end of the first period the Comets were behind only 13-10 with Orval Wallace leading the offense.

The Comets had a bad second period and fell behind by 12 points at 35-23. In the third period Ronnie Smith, who had been held to only 1 point in the first half, started finding the range and scored 9 pionts in the period as the Comets matched the Aces in scoring, each getting 21 points.

In the fourth period the Comets matched the Aces for a while but Arcola's height of 2 giants and 3 tall men proved to be too much. The Comets dropped behind 23 points.

Ronnie Smith again found the range and he ended up with 22 points for the night.

The Comets produced one of their finest balanced scoring attacks with 3 men in double figures.

The "B" team lost 42-25 after being behind by only 1 point at 15-14 at the half.

Rodger Cook scored 7 points for the reserves and 4 points for the varsity playing very good in both games.

COMET TALES — When Mr. Brookfield and the referees were talking at half time about a foul called on Paul Friend, the ref was showing how Paul supposedly elbowed the Arcola player. After showing him about 3 times, it looked like he was showing a new dance step and Mr. Brookfield couldn't understand it.

The 6th grade lost to Hamilton 42-9 and the 5th grade was defeated by 15 to 5.

Scholarship Opportunity

Scholarships and cash awards totaling $10,500.00 will be awarded to Indiana high school juniors and seniors who write the best essays on "The Differences Between a Republic and a Democracy," Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of The Indianapolis Star, announced this week.

In a letter to more than 700 Indiana high school principles Mr. Pulliam said he realized classes in American history and government emphasize the subject, but the word "democracy" is used so often, in so many ways by so many people and newspapers, the word describing our form of government - "republic" - seems to be losing its importance.

The essay contest began Thanksgiving Day and ends on Washington's birthday, February 22. It is open to all Indiana high school students in their junior or senior years and entry blanks may be obtained from school principals.

In selecting winners, the judges will pick three $2,000 scholarship winners, one each from the northern, central and southern third of the state. In addition to the scholarship awards, the three schools represented by the scholarship winners will receive $500.00 cash gifts to be used to improve the school's library. Also, ten additional awards of $100.00 each will be given as honorable mention prizes in each of the three sections of the state.

Entries will be judged on adherence to contest rules, sound reasoning and clearness of presentation. All entries will become the property of The Star and the decisions of the judges will be final. The prime rule of the contest is that the entrant shall be the sole author of his or her essay. If there is a quotation from text, the source must be acknowledged.

Only one entry may be submitted by a student and the essay may not exceed 500 words, exclusive of the bibliography.

Winter Short Course

The 8-week winter course in agriculture will be offered at Purdue University between January 3 and February 24, 1961, according to Robert Honnold, assistant county agent.

Three winter short courses are offered for those who want to learn more about science and business of agriculture.

Students can select one of three programs of study: general agriculture, animal science or dairy production. Each program is a scheduled unit of instruction that is planned for young prospective farmers who are unable to take a four year course in agriculture. Mature men and women who are developing farm interest as part of an investment program will find these short courses helpful.

No tuition is charged to Indiana students. However, the total cost, including room, board, books and incidental expense will range from $225 to $275. Arrangements will be made for university housing for most of the students who wish to attend.

Prospective or interested people should contact the county extension office for additional information. Several state scholarships are available for qualified students.

The Christmas season would not be complete or a happy one if we did not take this opportunity to thank our many friends for their support and patronage.

Census Proves You Were Born

Last year 1,746 residents of Indiana turned to the U.S. Bureau of the Census for help in proving they were born. These persons were among an estimated 30 million United States residents who are without proof of age or birth. The historical records of the Census Bureau provide the only source of this information for most of these 30 million people.

Proof of age or birth is needed today to collect social security and other retirement benefits. It is needed to obtain passports. It is needed to qualify for jobs carrying certain age or citizenship requirements. It is needed for some forms of insurance.

Since 1920 the Census Bureau has provided more than three and one-half million persons with copies of their Census records on age, place of birth, citizenship or kinship. Persons seeking such records of facts about themselves should write to the Personal Census Service Branch, Bureau of the Census, Pittsburg, Kansas, for a Census Records Search Application Form. A fee of $3.00 is charged for a search of not more than two censuses for one person and for one copy of the information found. Additional copies cost $1.00 each. An expedited search costs $4.00. Expedited searches are usually completed within a few days while the routine $3.00 search may take up to 30 days, depending upon the backlog of requests and the ease or difficulty in locating the information.

The personal information in the records of the 1900 and later censuses is confidential by law and may be furnished only upon the written request of the person to whom it relates or, for a proper purpose, a legal representative such as guardian or administrator of an estate. Information regarding a child who has not reached legal age may be obtained upon the written request of either parent.

With the Editor

I noticed an item in the county daily recently that told of a switch in the offering of the Protestant service at Perrin Air Force Base at Denison, Texas. When the collection plate was passed, it was heaped with $5 bills and worshipers wer urged to take one. An anonymous donor provided the funds which were to be given to needy families. People at the service were "flabbergasted" and only 88 of 130 present took one of the bills.

There was another item about a minister who, at the age of 47, married for the 13th time. He had been married to his bride, 20, two years ago, but it didn't last. Now the 47-year-old preacher says she is "more mature"

Ah, me.

I understand Rudolph the red-nosed reindeer had company last week with Casey, the red-faced auto service man.

When the cold weather hit, Casey Casebere had to get a lift into town because he couldn't get his own car started. And he's one of those who is supposed to get everyone else started.

Life's embarrassing moments.

I was rather red-faced, too, for not catching a typographical error which made "reindeer" come out "rain-deer" in Mrs. Borthwick's poem last week.

That was really a mob at the Christmas Choir Festival the 18th. Mention should be made of the cooperation of everyone in presenting the program, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowry who did so much with the elementary and upper grades in presenting musical selections.

I think my nomination for the bravest boy at the program would be Wally Graham. I heard that other boys wanted to take chorus but couldn't work it in with their other subjects on their daily schedule at school. As a result Wally was the only boy participating with the high school chorus, surrounded by a flock of girls.

Yessir, he was the bravest. - - - Or smartest???

Talk about effective newspaper advertising. I know a whole family who drove up to Saint Joe just to get a Christwas tree after seeing the Kern ad recently. Of course, he's a friend of mine, but still Bob Snowball and wife, Bunny, with the kids, Jeri, Doug and Braley, took advantage of picking their own tree from Ken Kern's batch of trees. The Snowballs live way out on the southwest edge of Fort Wayne.

Incidentally, Mr. Kern has been out of commission for a spell, having injured a shoulder in a hockey game recently.

The firemen made their annual rounds Saturday, taking a bit of Christmas cheer to the shut-ins in the community in the form of sacked candy.

Mose Yeiser, Roy Bowser, Cliff Billow, Dick Roberts, Don Yeiser and Jack Bowser were the good-deeders.

I hear Bill Sible performed an astounding feat of magic last week—made a whole automobile disappear.

It was found later in a creek ditch across from the Sible residence. The car disappeared while Bill was busy alsewhere. The motor was running and—there she goes!

HAWAII

The seductions of Waikiki put I.S.A. to its severest test so far, and it can be reported with pride that we succeeded in getting some work done. The time had come to give the students a free day, one of the six or seven holidays they are permitted to take during the trip. We decided to let them have Monday off, and on Tuesday morning when the students assembled, pink-faced, peeling and bemused, at the Punahou School for their classes, their minds were on anything but study. But the class routine proceeded just the same. The Punahou School, our host for the visit, generously turned over their single air conditioned classroom for our exclusive use, and one of the two French sections, lacking a classroom, met every morning outdoors on the lawn.

This time we dispensed with the guided tour, figuring correctly that the host families would show the island to their proteges more thoroughly and intimately than we could. The families, incidentally, were found for us through the Punahou P.T.A., and one of our hosts was no less a personage than Governor Quinn himself.

By the time the week was out most of the group had driven around the island, seen the memorial and Pearl Harbor and taken a try at surfboarding on Waikiki Beach. Our visit happened to fall on Aloha Week, and the streets were bright with flowers and resonant to the music of Hawaiian guitars. During Aloha Week the girls are allowed to wear muumuus to class - bright cotton print, ankle-length nightgowns, the traditional dress of Hawaiian women. Our girls followed suit, and so did the boys with aloha shirts, until our classroom looked as gaudy as the parrot cage in the zoo.

From the first moment Punahou School took us to their collective bosom and made us feel at home. The first day of classes the Punahou students gave a dinner in our honor, entertaining us with Hawaiian songs and dances. One incongruous but enjoyable item: a Punahou student in full Scot regalia solemnly serenading us on the bagpipe. A couple of days later we reciprocated in a small way when Fred Rawe and Nell Johnson delivered the sermon at morning chapel testifying to their faith before the assembled students of Punahou.

In between these diversions we learned a considerable amount about the history of Hawaii. At the Bishop Museum, with its unique collection of objects from different Pacific cultures, we were given a lecture on the history of migrations through the great archipelagos of the Pacific. In the Hawaiian Hall we were lured by the sound of girlish voices singing, and found a small detachment of girls from the Kamahameha School - a school reserved exclusively for students with Hawaiian blood in their veins - seated on a dais before a grass hut. They had heard in advance of our coming and had come to greet us with folk songs and games. One game they introduced us to was Kilo. Girls sit in a row on one side of the rush mat, boys on the other. Each player has half of a coconut shell which he sends spinning across the mat toward the row of coconuts of players opposite. If the coconut scores a hit, the player can claim the prize of a kiss. The I.S.A. boys took to the game with surprising speed and the Hawaiian Hall echoed first to the sharp crack of coconut against coconut, and later with softer and more affectionate noises as pledges were faithfully redeemed.

There was also time for serious study. Professor Douglas S. Yamamura of the University of Hawaii repeated his successful lecture of last year, telling the group about the subtler problems of racial and social relations on the islands. A visit to the research labs of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association taught us about recent achievements in the island's biggest industry, and at Waikiki Aquarium we were fascinated by the strange forms of reef fish that inhabit the waters of the Pacific.

The restful week in Hawaii was now over. Our host families stayed up past midnight to see us off at the airport. Some real tears were shed as we said goodbye and climbed aboard the now familiar jet liner to leave the U.S. irrevocably behind us.

School Bulletin No. B
Hongkong - November 1960

On October 22, 1960, the I.S.A., which had been a functioning school for five weeks, became International. Leis in plastic bags, we said our Alohas to Hawaii and took off for our great adventure in the Orient. Six miles up, flying at 570 miles per hour, we slept and waited; daylight came over the clouds as we reached the Land of the Rising Sun, and we came down to earth. But only physically.

Our knowledgeable Tokyo representative, Mr. Earle Buckley, led us to Keio University, where the students met their host-students, and then the I.S.A. parted company in its first foreign land. Immediately we began to form impressions and to imbibe the new atmosphere. We were fascinated by the colorful kimonos, by the huge department stores, by the tiny shops and the fairy tale lights of the Ginza, the the newspaper account of the I.S.A., referring to Mr. Kern as Associate Editor of "WIFE" magazine, by the incredible crush in the subways and the kamikaze taxi drivers and homicidal bicyclists, by the terraced countryside, and by that popular Japanese sandlot game, baseball.

Comets Defeated In Tourney

Merle Holden, Sports Rep. (Freshman), Riverdale H.S.)

The Riverdale Comets lost to Fremont 68-52 in the nightcap of the first round games of the holiday tourney at Hamilton last week. Hamilton beat Woodlan 73-53 in the first game Tuesday night.

The Comets, who were behind only 30-26 at halftime, scored only 9 points in the third period while Fremont scored 17. In the last period the Comets' offense started to click but their defense didn't and the weakness cost them the game.

In the first period the Comets fell behind at 13-9. They put on a late point surge and were behind by only 15-12 at the end of the period.

With 2:36 left in the first half the Comets took the lead at 24-23 on a field goal by Jerry Dowden. Fremont then scored 5 straight points while Riverdale scored only 2 to lead at the half 30-26.

In the third period the Eagles took a 45-32 lead midway in the period as the Comets' defense fell apart.

In the last period the Comets shot too little and it seemed at first that Dowden was the only one who could hit. But Paul Friend and Orval Wallace came through with some points. However, it was too late.

Ronnie Smith led scoring for the Comets with 17 points, bringing his season total to 154.

COMET TALES— The Comets used only 5 players in the game, using no substitutes. — The Comet section of the gym was rather low in attendance. —Jerry Dowden's 11 points made him the 3rd Comet to go over the 100 point mark.

In the consolation game last Wednesday night, Riverdale lost to Woodlan 62-53.

In the championship game Fremont made its record 8-0 by beating Hamilton 67-48. Hamilton's record is 8-1.

The Comets who were trailing 30-29 at the half and were ahead 16-13 at the end of one period, scored only 24 points in the second half while Woodlan scored 32 for the victory.

Orval Wallace, until this game averaging only 6.9 points per game, scored 21 points, 15 of them in the first half, to lead Comet scoring.

The Comets jumped to a quick lead in the first period with all of the starting five scoring. In the second period Orval's fantastic shots from all over the court were all that kept the Comets in the game. He scored on sensible shots and passed off for many other baskets.

The Comets kept pace with Woodlan in the third period and were behind by only 40-39. with Wallace and Paul Friend each getting 4 points.

In the fourth period the Comets jumped to a 43-40 lead on baskets by Ronnie Smith and Jerry Dowden. Woodlan then scored 9 straight points to make it 49-43 Woodlan. The Comtes were unable to overcome the Warrior lead and it ended at 62-53.

The Comets have a needed rest period over Christmas vacation, not playing until January 7 aginst Edon, Ohio, at Hamilton.

COMET TALES — Every time Ronnie Smith shot in the second half a girl's voice said "Ronnie!" as if trying to tell him he shouldn't shoot. — About three-fourths of the crowd (not counting Hamilton) was for Hamilton and there were a lot of people very disappointed when Fremont won. — In beating Hamilton much of the credit can go to Fremont coach Ned Schlosser because every time they started to fall behind, he called time, talked to the boys, and bang! 6 or 8 straight points!— The game showed improvement in the Comets. The last time they played Woodlan, they lost 76-49.—The loss left Riverdale with a 1-10 record.
